Report of Eminent Americans Says They Are Unequaled in a Thousand Years.

TURKISH RECORD OUTDONE

A Policy of Extermination Put in Effect Against a Helpless People.

ENTIRE VILLAGES SCATTERED

Men and Boys Massacred, Women and Girls Sold as Slaves and Distributed Among Moslems.

The Committee on Armenian Atrocities, a body of eminent Americans which for weeks has been investigating the situation in Turkish Armenia, issued, yesterday, a detailed report of that investigation, in which it is asserted that in cruelty and in horror nothing in the past thousand years has equalled the present persecutions of the Armenian people by the Turks. The committee adds that the sources of its information are " unquestioned as to veracity, integrity, and authority of the writers."

The data on which the report is based, were gathered from all parts of the Turkish Empire.

The report tells of children under 15 years of age thrown into the Euphrates to be drowned; of women forced to desert infants in arms and to leave them by the roadside to die; of young women and girls appropriated by the Turks, thrown into harems, attacked, or else sold to the highest bidder, and of men murdered and tortured. Everything that an Armenian possesses, even to the clothes on his back, are stolen by his persecutors. The report says the use of the bastinado has been revived, high dignitaries of the Church have been hanged, families scattered to the four winds, and thousands upon thousands of defenseless, miserable persons herded together like cattle and driven into the desert lands of the empire, there to starve and die.

Men Who Sign the Report.

The men who signed this report are:

The Right Rev. DAVID H. GREER, Protestant Episcopal Bishop of the Diocese of New York.

CLEVELAND H. DODGE of Phelps, Dodge & Co.

The Rev. Dr. STEPHEN S. WISE, Rabbi of the Free Synagogue, New York.

CHARLES R. CRANE of Chicago, Vice Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Democratic National Committee during the last campaign.

ARTHUR CURTISS JAMES, Director of many railroads and of the Hanover National Bank, the United States Trust Company, and of Phelps, Dodge & Co.

The Rev. Dr. FRANK MASON NORTH of the Board of Foreign Missions of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

JOHN R. MOTT of the International Committee of the Young Men's Christian Association.

WILLIAM W. ROCKHILL, former Ambassador to Turkey and former Ambassador to Russia.

WILLIAM SLOANE, President of W. & J. Sloane, 575 Fifth Avenue.

The Rev. Dr. FREDERICK LYNCH of the New York Peace Society.

GEORGE A. PLIMPTON of Ginn & Co., a trustee of Constantinople College.

The Rev. Dr. JAMES L. BARTON, for many years a missionary in Turkey, and now the Secretary of the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions.

The Rev. Dr. WILLIAM J. HAVEN, one of the founders of the Epworth League.

STANLEY WHITE, President of the White Advertising Corporation.

Professor SAMUEL P. DUTTON, an authority on Balkan affairs.

Identity of Writers Concealed.

"For reasons that will be obvious to all," says the committee in a foreword to its report, " the names and positions of the various writers cannot be given at this time. These are known to the committee, who vouch for them and their statements. In most cases it will be necessary to conceal the place from which the satements were written, and even the names of the cities and towns referred to, in order that the writer or his interests may not suffer irreparable harm."

Sources of the information, it is added, are Greek, Bulgarian, American, Turkish, German, British, and Armenian.

The report, which contains 20,000 words, is divided into twenty-five parts. The first, dated April 27, 1915, states that a " movement against the Armenians forms part of a concerted movement against all non-Turkish and mission and progress elements, including Zionists."

The second, dated three days later, tells of persecution, plunder, and massacre in the interior of Turkey, and of " incredible severity " against Armenians in Zeitun and Marash.

July 10, the writer stated that it was then evident that a " systematic attempt to uproot the peaceful Armenian population had been decided upon. Torture, pillage, rape, murder wholesale expulsion and deportation, and massacre, came from all parts of the empire and was due, not to fanatical or popular demand, but was purely arbitrary, and directed from Constantinople." July 16 another writer reported that " a campaign of race extermination is in progress."

Chapter VI. tells of the massacre in late July of women and children, most of whom had been deported from the Erzerum district. The massacre occurred near the town of Kemakh, between Erzerum and Harput.

Deportation Was Begun in Zeitun.

Chapters VII. and VIII. form two of the most horrible of all the chapters of horrors, into which the report is divided. They are, in part, as follows:

June 20. The deportation began some six weeks ago with 180 families from Zeitun; since which time all the in-

HESPERIAN HIT A MINE, NAVY EXPERTS FIND

American Officers Decide That Fragments of Metal Were Not from a Torpedo.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Naval officers assigned to examine pieces of metal, which were said to have been found aboard the Allan liner Hesperian before she sank off the Irish coast on Sept. 4, are practically convinced that the vessel was wrecked by a mine. Their findings will be submitted to Secretary Daniels this week.

While there never has been a formal announcement on the subject, dispatches from London have credited the British Admiralty with the belief that the Hesperian was torpedoed without warning by a German submarine. The Captain of the vessel expressed this opinion and submitted the metal fragments which he contended were pieces of a torpedo. Some of the pieces were submitted to the Naval Attaché at the American Embassy at London, who turned them over to Ambassador Page to be forwarded to the State Department along with the affidavits of the officers and passengers of the Hesperian.

BIG FRENCH DIRIGIBLE REPORTED CAPTURED

Forced to Descend and the Crew Made Prisoners Near Rethel, Berlin Says.

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—The destruction of the French dirigible Alsace is reported in the following communication from General Headquarters:

> The enemy repeated his aerial attacks on Laon and Vouziers. At both places several civilians again fell victims to the bomb-droppers. In the Rethel district the French airship Alsace was forced to make a landing, and the crew were taken prisoners.

BELGIANS FORCED TO WORK FOR ARMY

Germans Starved and Cruelly Maltreated the Rebellious Ones, Belgian Memorandum Charges.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The Belgian Minister, E. Havenith, has presented to the State Department a memorandum from his Government dealing with allegations that the German authorities have, in violation of The Hague conventions, forced Belgian workmen to perform labor for the German Army.

It alleges that in the early Summer when Belgian railway employes, at Malines, Luttre, and Sweveghen refused to perform work which would have released from the transportation service and made available for the trenches a whole German army corps, they were subjected to coercive measures, which included starvation and cruel and inhuman punishments.

The statement tells of the penalties which it is alleged were inflicted upon the Belgians and says that many now are in hospitals in Germany and others have been returned to Belgium in a broken condition.

SWISS MOVING TROOPS TO GERMAN FRONTIER

Several Squadrons of Cavalry Ordered to Assemble at Northern Posts.

GENEVA, Oct. 3, (via Paris.)—The Swiss Federal Council has ordered several squadrons of cavalry to assemble at Schaffhausen, Zurich, and Frauenfeld. This unexpected step has aroused much discussion, as the troops will be stationed along the German frontier.

Schauffhausen, near the Falls of the Rhine, is on the Baden frontier. Zurich and Frauenfeld are only a short distance from the German border, the latter being on the railway line from Zurich to the Lake of Constance, over which the new Zeppelins make their trial trips from the Friedrichshafen shops. Earlier in the war friction arose between Swiss and German authorities over restrictions imposed by the latter upon the navigation by Swiss boats of what had been regarded as neutral waters. More recently a German aviator dropped bombs on Swiss territory, (without, however, doing any damage,) and the German Government tendered an apology.

GENERAL ELECTRIC MEN THREATEN TO STRIKE

5,000 May Walk Out Today at Schnectady Plant Unless Eight-Hour Day Is Granted.

Special to The New York Times.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Oct. 3.—The General Electric Company tomorrow will face the most serious labor question in its history. Following the success of their fellow workmen in other plants throughout the country, in obtaining an eight-hour day, the local machinists, numbering possibly five thousand, have became insistent, and the local union has reaffirmed its demands for an eight-hour day. This action has been taken in defiance to the Metal Trades Alliance, of which the machinists' union is a part.

The men employed at the electric plant have voted to leave the factory at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning in a body unless the demand for an eight-hour day is conceded.

The Metal Trades Alliance, fearing drastic action, last night dispatched a committee to confer with the machinists in session and urge moderation, but this committee was sidestepped.

The alliance is to vote on a compromise offered by the company for a nine-hour day beginning Jan. 1, at an adjourned meeting Wednesday night. J. J. Keppler, Vice President of the International Association of Machinists, is expected here in the morning. He is not looked upon as a probable peacemaker.

ARABIC NOTE FAILS TO MEET DEMANDS

Germany Still Avoids Agreeing to Reparation for Loss of American Lives.

BUT ADMITS U-BOAT ERRED

This May Be Regarded as a Technical Disavowal of Submarine Captain's Act.

WHITE HOUSE CONFERENCE

President and Lansing Silent, but Bernstorff Will Be Notified of Their View.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Germany has failed to satisfy the request of the United States, that the sinking of the Arabic, with a loss of American lives, be disavowed and liability for the act assumed by the Imperial Government. This became known after a conference tonight between President Wilson and Secretary Lansing at which the Secretary of State submitted a note given to him yesterday in New York by Count von Bernstorff, the German Ambassador.

No announcement was made after the White House conference. Secretary Lansing merely said that it was inadvisable to comment on the situation while the negotiations were still confidential. He declined to say what the next step would be, but it was learned later that the German Ambassador would be asked to come to Washington soon to receive the American Government's view of the last German note. Count von Bernstorff is fully authorized by his Government to conduct the submarine negotiations.

While the situation has improved to the extent that there is no danger of an immediate break in diplomatic relations, the note affording an opportunity for further negotiation, it was stated reliably that final refusal by Germany to meet the American viewpoint on the Arabic case might bring about the threatened rupture in diplomatic relations.

Convinced of U-Boat's Error.

Just what the details are on which the two Governments are in conflict was not definitely known tonight because of the veil of secrecy enveloping the negotiations. In general, it was learned that Germany, after examining the evidence submitted by the United States, came to the conclusion that her submarine commander erred in assuming that the Arabic was intent on ramming the German submarine when steering to rescue the crew of the British steamer Dunsley. This admission of a mistake would amount to a disavowal of the act, but the United States has insisted that disavowal must be accompanied by an assumption of responsibility and liability, and that full reparation must be given for American lives lost.

Germany in her first note indicated that even if the German Commander made a mistake, the Imperial Government would not feel obligated to pay damages, but was willing to submit to arbitration the question of whether in the circumstances the German Commander did make an honest mistake, thus leaving it to an arbitral tribunal to decide what liability, if any, was thereby incurred.

President Wilson has taken the position that the United States cannot arbitrate questions involving the loss of American lives and it is believed that in the next step the Washington Government will indicate that the only matter it can submit to arbitration is the amount of damages to be paid after the question of liability itself already is admitted.

May Supplement Note.

The fact that the negotiations are being conducted without publication of the texts of the notes, messages, or memoranda that are passing between the two Governments is considered by high officials an important factor, for it permits of frank discussion of the points at issue.

There were rumors today that Count von Bernstorff was preparing to supplement the note he left with Secretary Lansing yesterday, if he found that it did not satisfy the American Government. This could not be confirmed here on account of the absence of the Ambassador.

The Arabic case has entirely subordinated other cases that previously had arisen between the United States and the Arabic negotiations as a test of good it has been known to Germany that the American Government is looking upon the Arabic negotiations as atest of good faith. The fact that no American lives have been lost recently has encouraged officials to believe that more care is being exercised by German submarine commanders. Official information indicates that Germany is desirous of avoiding a break, and on this officials are basing their hopes that in subsequent negotiations the Berlin Foreign Office will adjust amicably the question of reparation for lives lost.

French Aeroplanes Shell Kaiser's Headquarters

PARIS, Oct. 3.—The French night official report of today's fighting on the western front contains this paragraph:

> A group of aeroplanes this morning bombarded the station, the railroad bridge, and the military buildings at Luxemburg.

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—The following communication is issued from General Headquarters:

> Today bombs were dropped by French aviators on the neutral city of Luxemburg. Two Luxemburg soldiers and a workman and one shopgirl were wounded.

Luxemburg is one of the points at which the Kaiser has been reported to have established his headquarters since his return to the western front.

5 WESTERN STATES FEEL EARTHQUAKE

SOUTHERN PACIFIC R. R. HIT

Much Damage Done Along One Hundred Miles of Line in Humboldt County, Nevada.

RENO, Nev., Oct. 3.—Considerable damage was done by three earthquake shocks last night along 100 miles of the Southern Pacific Railroad in Humboldt County, according to reports received here today from Imlay, a small town on the railway about 125 miles northeast of this city.

Several railroad water tanks toppled from their high supports and one at Lovelocks thirty-three miles south of Imlay, crushed the end of a dwelling.

Many persons fled from their homes in their night clothing at several places. The walls of three brick buildings at Lovelocks were cracked.

Slow orders were issued to all trains when the third tremor was felt at 11 o'clock last night. One approach to a railroad bridge at Golconda, thirty-five miles northeast of Imlay, sank five inches.

The section affected by the shock is mountainous.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 3.—There were no further seismic disturbances today following a series of earthquakes yesterday believed to have originated in the Wasatch fault underlying the Wasatch Mountains in Utah.

The severest shock was felt last night at 10:56. The quakes were felt in Utah, Nevada, California, Oregon, and Idaho. In San Francisco the shocks were barely perceptible.

SALT LAKE, Oct. 3.—Professor F. J. Pack, geologist of the University of Utah, today said a slip of the Wasatch fault, extending about 150 miles north and south along the Wasatch Mountains of Utah, caused the third and most violent shock yesterday. This shock threw the stylus of the seismograph against the flange of the drum, putting the instrument out of service.

BUFFALO, Oct. 3.—At Caniseus College here, the seismograph today registered the most severe earthquake since the instrument was installed seven years ago.

According to calculations by Professor Curtin, the direction was 10 degrees north latitude and 115 degrees west longitude, about 2,500 miles southwest, which would place it in the region of Guatemala, where a severe shock occurred about two weeks ago.

LINDSEY THREATENS TO USE A SHOT GUN

Will Take the Law Into His Own Hands, He Says, if Not Protected Against Liars.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Oct. 3.—Following the many open and veiled attacks made upon him by enemies since he wrote "The Beast and the Jungle," Judge Ben B. Lindsey declared yesterday afternoon that he would take a shot gun and kill the men who again assailed his reputation, if the law would not give him protection.

"It's the only thing left for me to do," he exclaimed. "I am a law-abiding citizen and sworn to uphold the law, but I am entitled to protection, and if I cannot get it from the law, I am going to see that I get it otherwise. When you learn that a man is lying in wait for you to kill you, you arm yourself. If you kill that man the law acquits you on the ground of self defense. The man who assassinates your reputation is as bad as the man who lies in wait and kills you from ambush."

Judge Lindsey made the statement in commenting upon the trial tomorrow of Frank L. Rose, indicted for criminal libel, the charge being found on the publication of an alleged libelous affidavit against Lindsey, which he later repudiated.

"I will testify against Rose," he added, "and I shall tell the jury that I will use a shot-gun, if necessary, to protect my reputation."

TO HEAR MEXICAN FACTIONS.

This Week Set Aside for Informal Conferences in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—Secretary Lansing, who returned to Washington today, and the other members of the Pan-American conference will give over the coming week to a series of informal conferences with Mexican leaders. The Secretary of State will receive any delegates sent here by any of the Mexican factions to present their respective claims to recognition or other matters. The Pan-American diplomats will likewise receive informally any Mexican ueaders who may wish to present their views. After this "open week," in which representatives of either faction may do their talking, the conference of Saturday will canvass the situation.

Sir John French's Order of the Day Acknowledges Its Co-operation with the Land Forces.

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Oct. 3, (via London.)—Field Marshal Sir John French has issued the following special order of the day on the recent fighting:

> We have now reached a definite stage in the great battle which commenced on the 25th inst. Our Allies in the South have pierced the enemy's last line intrenchments and effected large captures of prisoners, guns, and tents.
>
> The French Army on our immediate right has been heavily opposed, but has brilliantly succeeded in securing an important position known as the Vimy Ridge.
>
> The operations of the British forces have been most successful and have had great and important results.
>
> On the morning of the 25th the First and Fourth Corps attacked and carried the enemy's first and most powerful line of intrenchments, extending from our extreme right flank at Grenay, to a point north of the Hohenzollern Redoubt, a distance of 6,500 yards.
>
> This position was exceptionally strong, consisting of a double line which included some large redoubts and a network of trencnes, and a bombproof shelter. Duguouts were constructed at short intervals all along the line, some of them being large caves thirty feet below the ground.
>
> The Eleventh Corps in general reserve and the Third Cavalry Division were subsequently thrown into the fight, and finally the Twenty-eighth Division. After the vicissitudes attendant upon every great fight the enemy's line and second line posts were taken. A commanding position known as Hill 70, in advance of Loos, was finally captured, and a strong line established and consolidated in close proximity to the German Third and last line.
>
> Indians Did Good Work.
>
> The main operations south of the La Bassée Canal were much facilitated and assisted by subsidiary attacks delivered by the Third and Indian Corps and the troops of the second army. Great help also was rendered the operations by the Fifth Corps east of Ypres, during which some important captures were made.
>
> We also are much indebted to Vice Admiral Bacon and our naval comrades for the valuable co-operation of the fleet.
>
> Our captures have amounted to over 3,000 prisoners and some twenty-five guns, besides many machine guns and a quantity of war material.
>
> The enemy nas suffered heavy losses, particularly in many counterattacks by which he has vainly endeavored to wrest back captured positions, but which have all been gallantly repulsed by our troops.
>
> I desire to express to the army under my command my deep appreciation of the splendid work they have accomplished and my heartfelt thanks for the brilliant leadership displayed by General Sir Douglas Haig and the corps and divisional commanders who acted under his orders in the main attack.
>
> In the same spirit of admiration and gratitude I wish particularly to comment upon the magnificent spirit, indomitable courage, and dogged tenacity displayed by the troops of the old and new army of the Territorials, who have vied with one another in the heroic conduct displayed throughout the battle, and by the officers and non-commissioned officers.
>
> I feel the utmost confidence and assurance that the same glorious spirit which has been so marked a feature throughout the first phase of this great battle will continue until our efforts are crowned by final and complete victory.

Text of Russia's Ultimatum to Bulgaria; Compliance Within 24 Hours Is Demanded

PETROGRAD, Oct. 3.—The semi-official news agency issues the following note, which the Minister at Sofia has been ordered to hand to M. Radoslavoff, the Bulgarian Premier:

"The events which are taking place in Bulgaria at this moment give evidence of a definite decision of King Ferdinand's Government to place the fate of its country in the hands of Germany.

"The presence of German and Austrian officers at the Ministry of War and on the staff of the army, the concentration of troops in the zone bordering Serbia, and the extensive financial support accepted from our enemies by the Sofia Cabinet, no longer leave any doubt as to the object of the military preparations of Bulgaria.

"The powers of the Entente, who have at heart the realization of the aspirations of the Bulgarian people, have, on many occasions, warned M. Radoslavoff that any hostile act against Serbia would be considered as directed against themselves. The assurances given by the head of the Bulgarian Cabinet in reply to these warnings are contradicted by the facts.

"The representative of Russia, which is bound to Bulgaria by the imperishable memory of her liberation from the Turkish yoke, cannot sanction by his presence preparations for fratricidal aggression against a Slav and allied people.

"The Russian Minister, therefore, has received orders to leave Bulgaria with all the staffs of the Legation and Consulates if the Bulgarian Government does not within twenty-four hours break with the enemies of the Slav cause and of Russia, and does not at once proceed to send away officers belonging to armies of States which are at war with the powers of the Entente."

FOUR SUBMARINES CROSS ATLANTIC

Little Vessels Built in Canada Steam to Gibraltar Under Their Own Power.

VOYAGE WITHOUT MISHAP

New Craft Win High Praise from British Officers for Seaworthiness.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—The flotilla of new submarines, which started across the Atlantic to join the British naval forces at Gibraltar, made the passage safetly under their own power and without extraordinary discomfort for the crews, according to letters received here today from men who were in the expedition. The departure of the squadron was described in THE NEW YORK TIMES the day after it started, although at the time a strict censorship prevented the publication in the Canadian press or the transmission to the United States of anything regarding the movements of any warships.

Convoyed by larger warships, the little squadron of four vessels, fresh from the yards at which they were assembled in Montreal, proceeded down the St. Lawrence River, and, after a stop at St. John's, N. F., put to sea for Gibraltar.

No extremely rough weather was encountered, and all the boats were able to make the long run under their own power. Provision had been made to tow them if they got into any trouble. The crews stood the heavy rolling of the craft very well, and are said to to have enjoyed the trip.

Washington decreed early in the war that the construction in this country of sumarines for any of the belligerents would be a violation of neutrality. It is said, however, that parts were supplied to Canada, where submarines were completed in the yards of the Vickers-Maxim Company, an English concern, which two years ago established a branch in Montreal for the building of merchant ships. At the outbreak of the war the yard was given over to naval construction.

By the middle of July the submarines were ready for the water, and navy officers, who had arrived from England, conducted a series of trials in the St. Lawrence River. During one of these trials a submarine ran down the Canadian Government steamer Montmagny. The submarine was somewhat damaged, but not disabled.

When it was established that the new vessels were seaworthy they sailed from Montreal under convoy of the gunboat Canada. Off the Island of Anticosti, in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, they were joined by the cruiser Calgarian, an Allan liner which had been taken over by the British Admiralty at the beginning of the war, and fitted out as an auxiliary cruiser with four-inch guns.

With the Calgarian and Canada showing the way, the submarines followed the south coast of Newfoundland to St. John's. The only misadventure was the loss of one of them in a fog for two days. They remained in the Harbor of St. John's for four days to have their machinery adjusted, while the Calgarian took on supplies for all the boats. One hundred men of the Newfoundland regiment went aboard the Calgarian to join the British land forces.

Thoroughly outfitted, the Calgarian turned her bow eastward, suiting her pace to the wallowing stride of her protégés. The submarines traveled on the surface throughout the voyage, propelled by crude oil engines. Each carried a crew of two officers and sixteen men. Some of the crews say they suffered somewhat from the cold and that their food was not always warm. The cooking in the submarines was done by electricity, the supply of which did not always equal the demand.

The writers say that the English officers, who had their first experience with American submarines, were well pleased with them. The vessels are not so large as some of the British-built boats, and are designed more for offshore operations than for deep sea work. Submerged they are driven by electric motors, but in the voyage to Gibraltar electricity was used only for heating and cooking.

RUSSIANS ROLL HINDENBURG BACK

Defeat Invaders in Series of Fierce Actions—Take 14 Cannon in One Fight.

CZAR'S LINE NOW STRAIGHT

400,000 Men Used in German Leader's Futile Attempt to Capture Fortress of Dvinsk.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 4.—Field Marshal von Hindenburg's drive at Minsk, like that at Dvinsk, has been checked, and every day sees his line being rolled further back under the savage onslaughts of the Russians, who continue to make brilliant use of their Cossack cavalry and otherwise appear to have recovered their old fighting form.

In one action, at the southern extremity of Lake Narotche, which region for several days has been the theatre of desperate fighting, the Russians at the point of the bayonet stormed a strong German position on a farm and captured fourteen cannon.

The Petrograd correspondent of The Times says that, according to the Novoe Vremya's Dvinsk correspondent, the Germans have concentrated an enormous weight of guns on the Dvinsk front, relying on their hurricane of fire to reduce the position. The losses on both sides are great and the enemy is making desperate efforts to pierce the front.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 3.—The Russian General Staff, in commenting upon the military situation directs attention to the completion of the task of straightening the line south of Dvinsk. The German wedge pointing toward Molocechno now has been thrust back. The failure of this great German effort, made with two corps of cavalry and eight infantry corps, (400,000 men,) has materially improved the Russian position, as it is not believed the Teutons will be able for some time to concentrate for another drive.

Arrivals from Riga report the situation in the city is normal. Street cars and theatres are operating as usual. Many refugees are returning, and the sound of cannon cannot be heard. The only diversion is an occasional raid by German aircraft, and their projectiles have caused little alarm or damage.

Official Report of Latest Fighting.

The following official communication from General Headquarters was issued tonight:

> A German offensive near Dvinsk in the region of the railways southwest of Illoukst was repulsed by our fire. On the line of lakes Demmen, Drisitiata, and Boginskoie there has been artillery action.
>
> In the district of Gresenthal, north of Lake Drisitiata, the Germans, after having been cannonaded by our artillery, fled, evacuating the village of Tylja. An attempt by the enemy to cross the River Drisitiata, between the villages of Pelikany and Koripichki, south of Lake Obole, failed. Our cavalry expelled the Germans from the village of Borsouki, south of Lake Boginskoie.
>
> Many Germans were sabred during a charge of our cavalry near the village of Deviatinki, south of Koziany. A fierce combat occurred near the farm of Stakovzy, at the southern extremity of Lake Narotche, which we eventually captured by a bayonet assault. By a counterattack, supported by artillery, the Germans dislodged us from the farm, but we recaptured it by a new attack.
>
> In the first attack on the farm and the village of Stakovzy we captured eight German mortars and six light guns. Being unable to remove these guns before the German counterattack, we put them out of action.
>
> Bayonet attacks also resulted in our troops carrying strongly organized German trenches and positions near the village of Baltaguzy, northeast of Lake Vichnevskoie. Two enemy attacks in the region of Wiridovtchi,

BULGARIAN ARMY MOVING

Report That Great Austro-German Attack on Serbia Will Begin on Wednesday.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 4.—The Russian Minister at Sofia has been ordered by his Government to leave the Bulgarian capital if within twenty-four hours Bulgaria does not openly break with the Central Powers and dismiss the Austro-German officers who recently arrived in that country to direct the operations of King Ferdinand's army.

The other powers of the Quadruple Entente are backing up Russia in this demand, and so Bulgaria must, within a few hours, decide on continued neutrality or be considered definitely committed to the Central Powers.

From the news received during the past few days from the Balkans it is considered certain that King Ferdinand and Premier Radoslavoff made their choice, and are only awaiting the completion of mobilization to strike at Serbia and assist the Austro-Germans to open the road to Constantinople, which has been anxiously waiting for many weeks for promised aid from the Central Powers.

Greece, it is believed, will live up to her treaty with Serbia and come to her assistance, if she is attacked by her neighbor, but the attitude of Rumania, which remains an only partially mobilized spectator, is a matter of uncertainty.

The Rumanian Legation here has received no information regarding the report that an Austro-Hungarian ultimatum has been delivered to Rumania demanding permission to transport munitions across Rumanian territory to Turkey.

While fully confident of their ability to handle the new situation, the Allies do not belittle it, which accounts in some respects for their activities.

A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Company from Petrograd says:

" Opinion in high quarters here is that the Bulgarian Government is so tied hand and foot by Germany and Austria that there is little or no likelihood of Bulgaria's compliance with the demands of the Allies. The latest news received from Sofia is that the German Colonel von Tarlow has been appointed commandant at the Konak, (the ropal residence,) with German and Austrian aides.

Premier Radoslavoff's residence is under the surveillance of German secret agents with a view to the possibility of the Premier vacillating at the last moment. All the orders of the Bulgarian War Ministry are submitted for the sanction of German and Austrian officers. The German and Austrian Legations are described as having been transformed into fortresses as a precaution against possible disorders by opponents of the Government's policy.

" Two German journalists recommended by the German Minister are co-operating with the Germanophile head of the Press Bureau in the Foreign Office."

An Athens dispatch to the same news agency says:

" The Austro-German attack on Serbia will begin Oct. 6 and 7, according to a report from Vienna."

PETROGRAD, Oct. 3, (Dispatch to The London Morning Post.)—The ultimatum to Bulgaria expires at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. The decision to send an ultimatum was arrived at during a conference of Ministers at Imperial Headquarters in the field, but the delivery had been delayed in deference to the British Government's desire to exhaust all possible efforts at settlement before proceeding to extremities.

As expected, these were fruitless, and the ultimatum delivered in Sofia represents the joint decision of England, Russia, France, and Italy, who in every respect are absolutely solid in agreement regarding future action.

WAR MEASURES AT SOFIA.

Martial Law in Force and Prices of Provisions Fixed.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—Municipal authorities at Sofia have adopted rigorous measures made necessary by the military situation, says a dispatch to the Temps from the Bulgarian capital. Citizens have been prohibited from promenading the streets after 10 o'clock at night. Meetings, political gatherings and public demonstrations have been forbidden. Restaurants and theatres must close at 10 o'clock and stores at an early hour except bakeries, which are permitted to sell bread until 9 o'clock.

Grocers, butchers and wood dealers have been ordered not to advance prices above the scale established by the municipality. Landlords have been prohibited from raising rents or evicting tenants for non-payment of rent.

350,000 BULGARIANS CONCENTRATED FOR WAR

Moving to Serbian and Greek Frontiers—Revenue Cutter Chases Greek Vessels.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ATHENS, Oct. 3, (Dispatch to The London Daily News.)—Bulgarian mobilization was completed Thursday, and Bulgaria has now started to place troops at various points on the frontier. Her total strength is estimated at 350,000.

The Sixth and Seventh divisions have been sent to Kula and Bielogradchik, near the Serbian frontier. Speaking generally three-fifths of the total Bulgarian strength will go to the Serbian frontier and two-fifths of the Greek border.

Three Greek sailing vessels have been chased by a Bulgarian customs cutter. Shots were fired.

The tone of yesterday's British communication referring to the presence of German officers in Bulgaria has made a good impression here.

HOPE BULGARS WILL HEED.

British Reluctant to Believe They Will Oppose Russia.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 4.—In an editorial this morning The Daily Chronicle says:

"The Russian ultimatum to Bulgaria is not exactly a surprise. The Entente powers could not be expected to sit still indefinitely while their enemies chose the place and time for dealing a deadly blow. Initiative in war is much too valuable for that.

"One has only to look at the map and see how close are the Bulgarian striking points to the vital railway along which Serbia gets all her supplies in order to appreciate the impracticability of allowing German officers at their leisure to concentrate an unopposed Bulgarian army against it.

"There may still, we hope, be some possibility that the Russian note will bring Bulgarian statesmanship to its senses. To Russia Bulgaria owes her very existence as a nation, and it was secured by enormous sacrifices of Russian blood and treasure. To turn against her deliverer and fight on behalf of Austria, the traditional foe of the independence of all the Balkan peoples, would be ingratitude almost without parallel in history.

"In spite of the intensity of Bulgar hatred against Serb and Greek, we have still great difficulty in believing Ferdinand can carry his people with him on such a desperate course."

The Times says:

"The Russian Government has taken the only course now possible in handing to Bulgaria the ultimatum which expires today. We greatly fear this stern protest will not deter the Bulgarian ruler and his pliant Ministers from pursuing a course which violates the whole spirit of their recent national history.

"In all the sad record of the Balkans there has been no sight more mournful and tragic than the preparations of Bulgaria to shatter forever the prospects of Balkan unity and to march into battle by the side of the Turks, who oppressed the Bulgarian race for five hundred years.

"We believe the path along which Bulgaria is now being urged spells suicide to the nation, which only won its independence through Russian valor less than forty years ago. Bulgaria is being led into these false courses by an ambitious German ruler and a few misguided soldiers of high rank and a handful of Austrophile politicians whose collective intrigue must assuredly involve the doom of their race.

"Meanwhile the Western Allies are taking prompt measures to deal with the situation. The French press has been permitted to announce that a Franco-British force is to be landed at Saloniki to give support to Greece and Serbia. We may expect early news that this step actually has been taken."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Oct. 3, (Dispatch to the London Daily Telegraph.)—A Sofia telegram to the Messagero, dispatched with permission of the censor, says the Radoslavist organs continue to affirm that Bulgaria will not attack Serbia. The Bulgarian Government has issued a denial of the reports concerning the entry of German officers into the Bulgarian Army. These reports, it is declared, are due to the fact that many German offivers arrived from Constantinople to spend a few days in Sofia, but afterward left for Germany.

Despite the assertion of the Government that the country is quiet, information received by the Corriere della Sera from Bucharest and Athens is to the effect that agitations, disorders and conflicts between the population and the police are frequent in Bulgaria. Bucharest is full of deserters, of whom 500 arrived yesterday.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Oct. 3.—The Messagero hears from Sofia that, while the situation is considered very grave, there is still hope that a conflict may be averted if the Allies are ready to propose a basis more in accord with Bulgarian national aspirations. As the censor at Sofia allowed this dispatch to pass it is regarded here as an important sign that the Bulgarian Government wishes it to be known it is still disposed to negotiate.

YOUNG TURKS JUBILANT.

Confident of Victory with Bulgaria as an Ally.

Special to The New York Times.

SALONIKI, Oct. 1, (Dispatch to The London Times.)—The exultation of the young Turks at the news of Bulgaria's mobilization must have been considerably damped by subsequent events as is shown in letters received from Constantinople. Enthusiastic meetings of the Committee are reported. Enver Pasha presided and is said to have declared that now that Bulgarian co-operation had been obtained a Turco-German victory from the Baltic to the Persian Gulf was assured.

At the first meeting of the Turkish Chamber, which has just reassembled, the Vice President read the visieral rescript amid acclamations. He then made a speech in the course of which he said events were tending to justify the former prediction of President Halil Bey that the Dardanelles would be the tomb of the Entente Powers.

Enos is stated to have been evacuated by the Turks.

It is reported that in consequence of the discovery of a widespread plot organized by the Macedonian Committee in Sofia numerous arrests of Bulgarian secret service agents have been made in the last few days by the Serbian authorities in Serbian Macedonia. The prisoners will be tried by court-martial.

SALONIKI AS ALLIES' BASE.

Greek Port Decided on for Landing of Armies to Aid Serbia.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—The landing of an Anglo-French expedition at Saloniki preparatory to meeting possible eventualities in the Balkans, is about to take place, according to the usually well informed Temps. The paper adds that Greece gave her approval last April to the use of this port, although it was not expected then that the present contingency would arise.

SECOND ARTICLE.

WARSAW, Sept. 2.—A Warsaw cab driver is a devil unchained. They say his brother Jehu in Moscow is that and e'en more. Let two Warsaw cab drivers start from the same point, and the idea seems to be a breakneck race to destination.

It is entirely a personal matter between them. The passenger does not count. Arriving at the destination, the victorious driver pulls up his horse, looks casually down into the body of the vehicle, discovers the panting remnants of a passenger, and seems to say, "Ah, you still there? I had not thought so."

If the race is desperate when only two contestants are entered, it is just five times worse when ten participate. And ten cabmen, ten horses, and ten droschkes were ready and waiting when two officers of the German General Staff deposited twenty foreign journalists in the ten droschkes and told the cabmen to drive to the nearest dinner.

It was a wild ride. The passengers included correspondents from Spain, Rumania, Switzerland, Holland, Sweden, Argentine Republic, and the United States. For most of them this is not their first war and most of them can ride. But it was an extremely subdued lot that stepped from the low hung droschkes. We had swept through the most crowded parts of Warsaw to an accompaniment of yells from the contesting drivers.

We had barely grazed pedestrians and street cars had just missed taking off our rear wheels. Schuette of The Chicago Daily News and I shared a cab, and as our man pulled up his horse Schuette said, "Now take me to a battle—I'll never be any better prepared to die!"

A "Stricken City" Dinner.

But the dinner was worth the risk, especially as our expectations were very moderate, because we had all been reading in Berlin those London papers which had given the heartrending accounts of the "stricken city" that was supposed to be "plunged in darkness" and deserted by scores of thousands of its population. The waiters, to be sure, were distracted by the rush of business and the service was a shade incoherent. But the bouillon was excellent, the schnitzel good, the vegetables (three kinds) savory, the wine pretty fair, the cake delicious, and the coffee as good as it is in Germany, and that is saying a great deal for it.

Set even a fairly good dinner and a bottle of wine before a hungry man and almost any kind of music making sounds pretty good to him, but, conceding all that to criticism, as it ought to be, I still think that the Polish violinist who played all through the meal was a remarkable performer, because one moment he could draw such plaintive, pleading tones from his instrument and the next make it talk to you in a chattering, whispering, high fantastical way that, if it was not art, was at least artistry of no mean order. At any rate, he was exhilarating, and I never saw a performer put more ardor into his work.

Doubtful though I may have been as to the violinist, I had no doubt at all that the young Polish woman sitting at a table on the opposite side of the room was an extraordinarily beautiful creature—was, indeed, to use the banal old phrase, one of the most beautiful women I ever saw in my life. I think it is the eyes that make so many of these Polish women so enchanting—that feature coupled with an expression of high intelligence that does not so much betoken intellectuality as it does poetic feeling. Strange, speaking eyes they have—slumberous, yet fiery. I think you might call them smoldering eyes.

The countenance opposite was exactly of the type of women who looked down from the canvases of a young Polish painter who exhibited at the world's fair twenty-two years ago. His name I cannot remember. This girl had the complexion one often sees among her countrywomen of the more delicately molded class—a soft pink blending into light olive. Her hair was dark and copious, her manner one of complete unselfconsciousness. Aye, she was very lovely.

But my romances always go shattering, and it was a chicken leg that parted our destinies forever. When she took the morsel between a pitiless thumb and a confident first and second finger and bent over it, the kinder way for all concerned was to avert the gaze and let her work out the proposition in her own unabashed, thorough paced way. But even when she was thus zealously engaged the poise of aloof pride never left her.

Men Vehement in Conversation.

The women in the café were much more sedate than the men. The men made all the clamor of Frenchmen, but displayed none of the grace. At a table in a corner were two young men who quarreled and made up four times in the course of an hour, and each time they made up they kissed each other on the cheek and seemed as if crying. Their passing from hot argument to sweet reconciliation was not the result of drink, for their modest bottle of wine could hardly have so inflamed them. Their embrace appeared to be the custom of the country and nobody but the foreigners gave them a second look.

With the cigars and cigarettes damp newspapers printed in the German language and in Warsaw were served, and that gave the lie to another picturesque detail in the London accounts of the evacuation, for those accounts had said that just before their departure "the Russian police and soldiery had rooted up the linotype machines from the floors and carted them away, and had visited every printing establishment and every newspaper office, taking the fonts of type and dismantling the presses."

So, after all, only one picturesque war detail was left to us while we dined, and that was the rumble of the German ammunition carts on their way to feed the guns encircling the forts of Novo Georgievsk. It rose above the wild music of the Polish violinist, and, delicately weighing its poetic value, we pronounced the rumble Byronic and good.

At a signal from the officers of the General Staff who were our escorts we finally rose from the long table, and ten of the madmen who drive droschkes were summoned in the street below. There was another wild ride to the Hotel Bristol, where every man's room key had already been assigned to his name and every man found the bedclothes turned back and a clean bed awaiting him.

So we fell asleep to the faint throb of the guns that were pounding all night long upon the outer works to the northwest of the town.

But before I went to bed I thought it well to look into the matter of the water famine and the threatened pestilence, so I pressed the water taps in my quarters, expecting nothing, but being rewarded by a strong flow of cool, clean water. Hence, I could not work up any panic in that respect, and tumbled into bed reassured but a bit disappointed.

Hotel Without Woman Guest.

In the morning when we all met in the lobbies there seemed to be something curious about the hotel, and at first catch one did not quite grasp what it was. In two seconds one realized what it was. There was not a woman guest in the place. And there were hardly any civilians except the journalists, and they do not count as either civilian or military—just annoyances. Officers, officers, everywhere! Old Generals of the Franco-Prussian days, who had been sent to Warsaw more on administrative than military duty, and young Lieutenants who were rushing through a breakfast of coffee, fresh eggs, and white bread preparatory to piling into their automobiles for the ride to the front.

The white bread was a treat. One cannot get it in Germany, and everybody who was canny tucked half a dozen rolls into his pocket, for when you start on a trip into the devastated region these days the one thing you can be pretty sure of is that you won't get anything to eat for another ten hours. The morning paper and the one-sheet extras that went with breakfast were, like the evening papers of the night before, printed in the German language.

Ignace Paderewski is the principal owner of the Hotel Bristol, and the establishment does him credit. It is a big, white, seven-story structure with a great garden court on which the dining rooms look. The court is occupied solely by a peacock that is intent upon itself, and the corridors are populous with German military servants intent upon nothing but listening for the bells that give them their orders. When the bells sound they leap.

The multitude of officers summoned to aid in the administration of the city is a marvel to me, because it is hard to believe that any nation fighting on two fronts can spare so many men for administrative work. Besides, every time I see the pagentary in the crowded lobbies and dining rooms I correlate the spectacle with identical sights I have seen in a dozen other captured cities during the last year—Liége, Namur, Dinant, Maubeuge, Laon, Brussels, Antwerp, Lille, Lodz, Lowicz, and so on, far over the borders on the west and on the east. Always and everywhere it is the same—an enormous amount of work to be done and an enormous number of men to do it.

After breakfast I went into the street, and there—reaching for a block along the opposite sidewalk—was a line of not very prosperous-looking men and women who were making their way by threes and fours into a building.

"Ah," thought I, "now it comes! These are the famished refugees from the villages outside and the population of the 'stricken city,' and they are waiting for their pitiful dole of bread."

I like the sound of "pitiful dole of bread," though it struck me that it lacked the charm of novelty.

It is neither necessary nor kind to keep the reader in suspense.

Crowd in Line for Cigarettes.

The line of 500 or more men and women on the opposite sidewalk were persons of small means, each waiting for the issue of cigarettes made to the population every morning by the German authorities so that they should not be robbed by tobacco merchants who might take advantage of the situation to charge extortionate prices. It was not a bread line at all, but a cigarette line!

Every man who comes receives every morning twenty cigarettes, for which he pays a cent and a half in either Russian or German money. I believe that figures out at three-fourths of a mill per cigarette.

I tried one of them. They seemed to me worth just about that. You could taste them a long time after. But that was no recommendation. Every morning at 7 o'clock the line is there. In other parts of the city there are other lines, also buying cigarettes.

Thus with another illusion about captured cities shattered I fared further along the streets. All the streets were notably clean and they were full of eager people who, if they did not seem excited people who, if they did not seem would get excited. They did not look unhappy and yet you could not say they looked happy. I have seen the same look on the faces of the people in Brussels. It is perhaps a look of reaction—as if they had been through a great deal and had not yet found themselves again.

The shops were open but they were not crowded.

The genuinely care-free beings I see are the children of the streets and the dogs. To the children the constant passing of soldiers and prisoners is just a show, and they love it. The rush of military autos keeps the dogs occupied in dodging destruction, and so they have no time to brood upon the facts of invasion.

Food is plentiful. In the poorer streets white loaves and brown are displayed in baskets and on bits of cloth laid on the sidewalk or on benches set before the shop doors. These extemporized places of sale are usually presided over by extremely untidy old women. The shop windows are also full of bread. The butchers' shops appear to be well supplied. Far out on the highways leading into the city one comes upon mounds of bread piled on benches in front of a little grocery or a cottage.

Germans Not Spenders.

Naturally it is not easy to learn whether the Poles resent the German occupation of Warsaw, because in such times as these every man gives guarded answers to leading questions. Such discontent with the occupation as I have been able to learn of springs solely from imperiled self-interest. For example, a dentist who speaks several languages and appears to be a good deal of a cosmopolite said this: "Politically the Poles don't care who holds Warsaw. Economically they do care just now, for they are beginning to realize how much more lavishly the Russian officers and officials spent money than the Germans do. The Germans, ah! these Germans, they don't spend anything by comparison, and when they do they get every kopek of their money's worth."

"Lavish!" said a German officer to whom I repeated what the dentist had said. "Lavish! I should think they were. They held high revel in this town. Brought their women along and made the money and the days fly. Lingerie! Lingerie, sir—we unearth it in the most unexpected places. In governmental palaces, I mean. Women, women, always women!"

Then he shook his head quite solemnly—not sanctimoniously, though—and uttered what I thought was a variant on an old line, that was worthy of a Frenchman, for he said:

"The idea seems to be, when you're in Russia do as the Romans do."

When I was in Berlin I read in the dispatches about a Hyde Park orator who asked his hearers:

"What did the Germans get out of Warsaw?"

"Nothing," he answered for himself. "Nothing. They found a hollow shell."

Well, they didn't. They are unearthing thousands of tons of stores, among them, as one of the German administrators told me, being tons of sugar.

But among the things the Germans did not find in Warsaw when they marched in were nineteen wagonloads of paintings which the Russians had carted away from the ancient palace of the Polish Kings and 500 prisoners whom they had released from the prison for criminals. I saw the palace. The walls of its vast rooms were as bare as the cells of the prison. But in the prison hospital were eight men who were too sick when the order of release came to take advantage of it.

Work of Reconstruction.

Work on the reconstruction of the enormous railway and carriage bridges leading across the Vistula to the suburb of Praga goes on day and night and Sundays. Temporary bridges were laid immediately the city was occupied and more are now in course of construction across the Narew twenty miles from the town. These structures are emergency affairs, of course, but they don't look temporary and it is significant of the eye to the future with which the Germans are going about their work that they are building above the level of the Spring freshets.

In Praga the reconstruction of the water works, which were damaged through the blowing up of the bridges, progresses rapidly. Pending the completion of this work water is pumped as high as the second floors of the houses by means of two steam pumps connected with an artesian well.

The reconstruction of public and private utilities, the clearing of burned switch yards and goods depots, the administration of places of public amusement, the regulation of the sale of tobacco, the placing of German shop signs and public office signs for the benefit of the soldiery, the reorganization of the police force, the disposition of refugees whom the Russians had sent into the city from the countryside, the control of the coal supply, the management of the municipal street car lines and canals, the opening of branches of the German Imperial Bank, the establishing of a postal service to Germany, and the formulating of regulations covering a score of phases of municipal administration—these are a few of the multitude of tasks and problems on which the new German military and official population of Warsaw is at work.

It is hard work, and it is day and night work.

Afraid of Imperial Pleasantries.

I had an amusing illustration of the vigor with which it is being pushed on.

The morning after the fall of Novo Georgievsk, many of the officers and all the journalists in Warsaw had but one thought, and that was to get out to the captured fortress with all dispatch. Some of us did it. Upon my return next morning from one of the most thrilling experiences of my life I said to an officer of the civil administration:

"Wasn't it a wonderful day?"

"I don't know," he replied; "I was not there."

"But you had spoken of going," I said.

"Yes," he answered, "but the Emperor was there."

I suppose I looked a little at a loss at this reply, and the officer added:

"Yes, the Emperor was there, and nothing, as you may have heard, escapes his Majesty. If we of the civil administration had gone out there he would have seen us and he would have known better than anybody else that we had no work to do there. He would have been extremely gracious, and he would have said: 'I am glad to see you, gentlemen. Evidently there is little to do in Warsaw. You are very fortunate.'

"No, we decided not to go to Novo Georgievsk. One does not invite his Majesty's pleasantries when one has run away from one's task."

HUNGARY SEIZES ALL COTTON STOCK

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUDAPEST, Sept. 21, (via London, Oct. 3.)—(Dispatch to the London Morning Post.)—The Government, by a decree published today in Official Gazette, orders all factories engaged in fabricating cotton yarn to cease work and deliver up all cotton stock for army purposes. This decree affects especially the Czech industries, and it is estimated that more than 100,000 people will lose their means of livelihood in consequence.

In Bohemia alone economic and trade conditions in the Monarchy were never so bad as now, and only agricultural laborers, farmers, and estate owners are making profits. The prices for wheat in Hungary now are as high as they were before the harvest, for the influence of the great landowners has prohibited the Government from fixing maximum prices lower than they were fixed in the Spring.

Wage earners in shops, offices, and banks are still receiving war salaries—that is, 50 per cent. of their original salaries before the war, of which 5 per cent. is being deducted for war charities. The Neweszask, the Socialist organ, points out that the average wage of the working man in Budapest is 24 kronen a week and of a clerk 26 kronen. In the country it is 30 per cent. less. Women earn 50 per cent. less.

All those workers who were engaged in the building, rubber, cotton and other industries where complete stoppage of work has set in, are without employment, for in the war material trades only skilled hands find employment. The unprecedented cost of living makes the situation of these many hundreds of thousands of people very bad.

Statistics published by the police in a monthly record show an increase of more than 100 per cent. in the number of crimes and suicides as compared with that of the corresponding months of last year and the year before. Especially is this notable in the case of suicides among women. These have run into the thousands every month since last winter, and are ascribed to poverty in seventy and to the loss of husbands in thirty cases out of every hundred.

REPUBLISHES JOFFRE ORDER

German Staff Says It Has a Copy of Instructions for the Drive.

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—The German General Headquarters has issued this statement:

"The following army order of General Joffre has been known to the German administration for some time:

Main Headquarters of the Western Army. General Staff to the General in command: The spirit of the troops and their willingness to sacrifice themselves represent the highest conditions in an attack. The better be understands the importance of the movements of an attack in which he participates the more bravely a French soldier fights, and the more trust he puts in measures taken by his leaders. It therefore is necessary that officers of all grades from today onward explain to their subordinates the favorable conditions under which the next attack of the French fighting forces will be conducted. The following points must be made known to all:

In order to drive the Germans out of France it is necessary that we begin the attack in the French theatre. Not only will we liberate those of our countrymen who have been oppressed for the past twelve months, but we also will snatch away from the enemy possession of valuable occupied territory.

south of Smorgon, were repulsed with great losses to the enemy.

The Germans who had crossed the Niemen near Lubetch, northeast of Novo Grodek, were thrown back to the left bank. They fled precipitately, abandoning about one hundred dead.

On the Styr, near the village of Novo Selki and Kulikovichi, between the towns of Kolki and Ciartorisk, there were minor engagements.

Local Successes by the Teutons.

BERLIN, Oct. 3.—The War Office today issued the following bulletin:

Eastern War Theatre:

Army group of Field Marshal von Hindenburg: During cavalry engagements south of Kosieny the opposing forces were driven back across the Mjadsjolka. Otherwise there is nothing of importance to report.

Army groups of Prince Leopold of Bavaria and Field Marshal von Mackensen: The situation is unchanged.

Army group of General von Linsingen: After their defeat at Sarny and the failure of Russian attacks against the front north of this place, the Russians abandoned the western bank of the Kormin, with the exception of small posts at a few crossings. The number of prisoners taken by German troops was increased to 2,400.

VIENNA, Oct. 3, (via London.)—The statement issued today at the Austrian War Office concerning the operations on the Russian front was as follows:

The enemy, exhausted by the many attacks which he undertook Friday, in which he suffered great losses, yesterday evacuated the western bank of the lower Kormin rivulet. Otherwise no important events occurred, and the situation is unchanged.

CAPTURE 9,000 AUSTRIANS.

Russians Surround Entrenched Regiments in Volhynia Hills.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 4.—Nine thousand Austrian prisoners, including 185 officers, belonging to five Hungarian and Honved regiments, have arrived at Kiev, says a Petrograd dispatch to Reuter's.

These regiments had intrenched themselves in the hills near the celebrated Potchaeff Monastery, in Volhynia, but were cleverly outflanked by the Russians. Their desperate efforts to escape were frustrated by the terrible Russian fire, and finally they were forced to surrender.

Library Bureau originated vertical filing, too!

Before Library Bureau existed, everybody "filed" letters and important records on hooks, in boxes—any old way. Perhaps you remember. It was always a needle-in-the-haystack hunt to find anything.

Library Bureau originated vertical filing, which is the modern business term for simplicity, economy, accuracy and quickness in filing method.

Our work didn't end with originating it—we have kept right on developing it for forty years, the L. B. Automatic Index being the latest feature.

Experience taught us what to put into L. B. filing methods to make them the most practical and useful for every different business. In the L. B. "Automatic" there is speed and accuracy, and it checks itself against mistakes. Ordinary intelligence is all that's needed to run it.

Enough businesses of all kinds are using the L. B. "Automatic" to make it worth your while to find out what it does and how easily it works. You can see it in the L. B. salesroom, or a salesman will call. Catalog free.

RUSSIANS GAIN AT VAN.

Petrograd Announces Pursuit of Turks In That Region.

PETROGRAD, Oct. 3, (via London.)—The following official statement was issued today at the headquarters of the Army of the Caucasus:

Our reconnoitring parties operated successfully Thursday in the direction of Olti and Melazghert.

There have been encounters between our cavalry and the Turks near the villages of Moyola and Domdan.

In the region of Van our troops are pressing the Turks near Vastan.

Elsewhere the situation is unchanged.

A later statement regarding operations in the Caucasus issued this afternoon says:

In the direction of Olti Friday an attempt on the part of the Turks to open an offensive between Mounts Duraketa and Tchilgasor was paralyzed.

In the direction of Van our troops continue to press the enemy. We captured his positions west of Vastan after fighting. The pursuit of the enemy continues.

TURKS HIT A CRUISER.

Artillery Battle Continues on South Gallipoli Front.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Oct. 3, (by Wireless to Amsterdam and London.)—An official statement issued at the Turkish War Office says:

Our artillery hit an enemy cruiser which unsuccessfully bombarded our positions on the Jourk height in the Ari Burnu district. The cruiser steamed away.

Near Sedd-el-Bahr the artillery combat continued. We silenced some enemy batteries and destroyed a portion of the enemy trenches on the left wing. We exploded an enemy mine by a countermine on the right wing.

AUSTRIANS PREVENT BIG ITALIAN ATTACK

Movement Southwest of Gorizia Foreseen and Countered, Vienna Reports.

INCREASED ACTIVITY NOTED

And "Vigorous Traffic on the Venice Railway"—Heavy Snows Falling in the Alps.

VIENNA, Oct. 3, (via London.)—The Austrian official report of today on the Italian operations is as follows:

Before daybreak yesterday the Italians grouped for a great attack against the northwestern sector of the Plateau of Doberdo (southwest of Gorizsa). Our artillery made a surprise attack on them, dispersing the majority. Thus the enemy's enterprise resulted in an atack by one Italian battalion along the road from Sdrussina to San Martino. This attack and a similar attack toward noon were repulsed.

Attempts by the enemy to advance east of Redipuglia also failed.

Certain movements behind the enemy's front, and vigorous traffic on the Venice railway did not escape our observation.

On the remainder of the southwestern front nothing of importance occurred.

ROME, (via Paris,) Oct. 3.—The following official statement from the Italian General Headquarters was issucd today:

In the higher mountain regions, where snow is now thickly falling, there have been small engagements which ended in our favor at the Lagoscuro Pass (at the head of the Genova Valley) and at Pramosio (in Carnia).

In the Tolmino section Italian troops repulsed an attack directed against positions recently conquered by us on the heights of Santa Maria.

There has been no event of any importance on the rest of the front.

LIEUT. RANDOLPH KILLED.

Officer Whose Mother Married W. C. Whitney Dies at the Front.

Lieutenant Arthur Bertram Randolph, a son of the late Captain Arthur Randolph of the British Army, and whose mother, Mrs. Edith S. May Randolph, became the second wife of the late William C. Whitney of this city, was killed in France on Sept. 27, when his regiment, the Welsh Guards, went into action, according to information received by THE NEW YORK TIMES last night.

His father, who owned East Court, in Wiltshire, England, married his mother, who was Miss Edith S. May, a daughter of the late Dr. William May, in this city, and lived here for many years, during which Lieutenant Randolph was born. After Captain Randolph's death his mother was married to Mr. Whitney, the eldest of whose four children by his first marriage is Harry Payne Whitney of this city, the noted polo player, who married Miss Gertrude Vanderbilt. After Lieutenant Randolph's mother died he went to England to live, and entered the British Army at the outbreak of the war.

FRENCH PIERCE ENEMY'S LAST LINE

stubborn nature, however, is still going on in that region, both sides endeavoring to secure vantage points. Success here, as in Champagne, is apparently varying, although the Allies are holding virtually all the ground they gained in last week's thrust.

That other similar thrusts will take place before long is the settled conviction of military writers, who see in the repeated bombardments of the German positions on the Belgian coast by British ships and big French guns and in air raids over the German lines evidence of another storm brewing. Naturally it will take some days to prepare, as the guns which now play such a large part in the campaign have to be brought up, and this is no easy matter after the heavy rains, particularly in the low countries of Flanders and Artois.

The air raid in Champagne yesterday by sixty-five French aeroplanes is the biggest enterprise of the kind ever undertaken. The French, according to the German report, have lost the airship Alsace, which was mentioned a few days ago in the official communication as doing valuable work.

French Capture a Blockhouse.

The text of the night official report, issued in Paris, follows:

In Artois we have made progress, capturing a blockhouse and intrenchments to the south of the woods of Givenchy.

There has been a bombardment by both sides of quite a violent nature to the south of the Somme, in the environs of Beaufort and Bouchoir, as well as on the Champagne front and in the Argonne to the north of La Harazée.

In the Vosges the enemy has attempted, but unsuccessfully, to direct jets of liquid flame on our trenches at La Violu, between the Col de Ste. Marie and the Col du Bonhomme. We replied by shattering his mine works by an effective camouflet (a small mine).

The Belgian official communication reads as follows:

There have been artillery actions on all sides on the Belgian front.

The afternoon communique of the French War Office says:

Between Souchez and the woods of Givenchy, the enemy attempted in four hand grenade assaults to retake some partions of the trenches which he had lost. He was everywhere repulsed.

In the Champagne a German counterattack against the positions which we conquered on Oct. 1 to the north of Mesnil was likewise thrown back.

The enemy bombarded the rear of our front, particularly in the valley of the Suippes, continuously with asphyxiating shells. Our artillery took the opposing batteries to task and reduced a number of them to silence.

On the remainder of the front the night was calm.

Following is the German official report:

In the afternoon enemy monitors directed a fruitless bombardment against the neighborhood of Westende.

Repeated attempts by the English during the night to regain territory lost by them north of Loos were completely repulsed with heavy losses. After bitter hand-to-hand fighting in certain quarters the enemy abandoned his attack here.

East of Souchez a French advance failed, notwithstanding the employment of a considerable quantity of gas grenades. An enemy attempt to make an attack from Neuville against hill positions east of that place was repulsed with very heavy losses to the enemy. In a nocturnal hand grenade engagement following this attack we lost a section of trench extending over a length of forty meters.

Yesterday the French repeated their infantry attacks in Champagne. Enemy artillery fire continued with varying intensity. North of Le Mesnil the enemy was driven out of a trench section projecting toward our position, suffering considerable losses in prisoners. During a hand-grenade attack for the possession of a position northwest of Ville-sur-Tourbe we maintained the upper hand.

CALLED 'KAMERAD!' AS FRENCH CHARGED

Infantryman Describes German Terror of Bayonets in Champagne Fighting.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 3, (Dispatch to The London Chronicle.)—The enemy is making feverish preparations, but if there is something like equality in material conditions there is a vast and increasing difference between the morale of the opposing forces. The French have never lost their stoical determination never to yield, but in the last week there has been a perceptible return of the old elasticity of spirit.

The wounded who have returned and officers at the front in their letters alike speak of the demoralization of the enemy in their first position. In the more open country of Champagne, particularly, they were captured in large groups in a dumfounded condition, and in the first advance it was only in some favorable folds of ground or in pine woods where men and mitrailleuses found shelter that serious German resistance was encountered.

Everywhere in Champagne the French artillery has been brought forward, the captured trenches and shelters are being rebuilt, the dead buried, the wounded carried to the rear, the whole battlefield cleared, and a thousand preparations organized for the next encounter. Last week so clearly proved that there was no really impregnable fieldwork that we shall be safe in watching closely the new front in Champagne.

"I tried to keep calm and cool," says a young infantryman. "I wanted to look around to see it all and not to lose any impression, but I saw nothing. My head whirled; my eyes were blinded. I vaguely noticed figures that ran in front and others beside me; sometimes we collided. Then I trod on bodies living or dead, still plunging forward like a madman. Then suddenly the ground seemed to give way under me, and I fell into a deep ditch amid a mass of broken wood and iron. It was full of dead bodies of German soldiers. They were in line as though on parade. It was a last review. One of them was leaning his back against the trench. He had twisted upward his great eyes, gazing up to heaven. Blood was oozing from his contorted mouth.

"I leaped from the trench, supporting myself on this body, and joined my comrades. One of them growled and swore furiously as he ran, shaking his rifle, of which the bayonet dripped with blood. I felt rather than saw him. He was speaking, but I could not understand him. My ears were bursting; my head was on fire.

"Still we raced forward. Soon a row of faces appeared above ground, and I heard cries of hatred and terror. Bayonets were raised and fell with a horrible choking sound, and were raised again, dripping red. Others of our men used their rifles as clubs, while some voices behind shouted, 'Go on, boys! Steady!'

"At the deepest part of the trench, hidden like a drove of trapped beasts, paralyzed with fear, German soldiers raised their hands with the piteous cry, 'Kamerad!' Then we raised the flag above the trenches to warn our guns not to fire upon us."

POUR SHELLS INTO FRANCE.

British Position in the Matter of Munitions Much Improved.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The Daily Mail's political correspondent says: "The production of high explosive shells has recently shown a very marked improvement. The difficulties of labor resulting in a restriction of output of which there was for some time much reason to complain, have within the last fortnight, largely disappeared.

"It is not suggested that the maximum output required has yet been reached, but the position is much better than at any previous time since the war began, and the result, to quote the words of my informant is that 'we are literally pouring shells into France.'"

BRITISH CASUALTIES 3,726 MEN.

Recent Casualties Lists Show 20 Officers Killed in France.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 4.—Casualty lists published today include the names of 119 officers and 3,607 men.

A list under date of Sept. 26 gives the names of eighty-five officers from the Western front, of whom twenty are dead. The dead include many prominent officers, among them Lieut.-Col. John R. E. Stansfeld, commander of the Second Gordon Highlanders; Lieut.-Col. Arthur Parkin, commander of the Seventh Battalion of the Northamptonshire Regiment; Lieut.-Col. Godfrey Morris of the Eighth Gurkhas, and Lieutenant Browne, son of the Earl of Kenmare.

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 3.—Arthur Chevally of Gouverneur, N. Y., a member of the Second Battalion with the Canadian contingent, whose next of kin is his father, Arthur Chevally of Gouveneur, is reported as having died of wounds, in the casualty list issued by the Militia Department here tonight.

Sergeant George S. Sedgewick Playfair of Boston is mentioned as wounded, and John J. Johnston of New Waterford, N. S., as seriously ill.

KING FELICITATES HIS ARMY.

Recognizes in Artois Fighting "the Prelude to Greater Deeds."

BRITISH HEADQUARTERS IN FRANCE, Oct. 3, (via London.)—The following special orders of the day have been issued by Field Marshal Sir John French:

"The Field Marshal, Commander in Chief, has received the following message from the King, dated the 30th of September, 1915:

I heartily congratulate you and all ranks of my army under your command upon the success which has attended their gallant efforts since the commencement of the combined attack. I recognize that this strenuous, determined fighting is but the prelude to greater deeds and further victories. I trust the sick and wounded are doing well.

GEORGE R. AND I.

"The following reply has been sent to his Majesty:

To his Majesty the King, Buckingham Palace:

Your Majesty's forces in France are deeply grateful for your Majesty's most gracious message. There is no sacrifice the troops are not prepared to make to uphold the honor and traditions of your Majesty's army and to secure a final and complete victory.

J. D. P. FRENCH, Field Marshal.

"The Field Marshal, Commander in Chief, has received the following message from Earl Kitchener, dated the 27th of September, 1915:

To Sir John French, General Headquarters:

My warmest congratulations to you and all serving under you, on the substantial success you have achieved, and my best wishes for progress in your important operations.

KITCHENER.

STILL HAS FREE RESERVES.

Germany Can Meet Fresh Attack, Frankfort Paper Says.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 4.—German papers reaching London, in their comments on the fighting on the western front, breathe an air of confidence concerning the results of the Anglo-French offensive, after the first day's "surprise attack."

"The German people realize the frightful seriousness of the bloody struggle," says the Frankfurter Zeitung, "but Germany is not yet exhausted as her enemies would like to believe. We have at our disposal a sufficient number of free reserves who can be thrown in at any time and at any place without weakening our fronts elsewhere."

NEW LIGHT BRIGADE IN HEROIC CHARGE

Australians Willingly Sacrificed Themselves and One in Six Came Back.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 4.—As illustrating the difficult and desperate character of the fighting in the Dardanelles, at the same time paying tribute to the fighting qualities and heroism of both Australian and Turk, Captain C. E. W. Bean, official press representative with the Australian forces, sends a belated description of the "glorious charge" of two Australian light horse brigades at Anzac.

The attack of these two brigades occurred at a spot where natural obstacles made success impossible, but the movement was regarded as necessary in order to draw Turkish troops away from points where real advances could be made successfully. Only one man in six of the Australians who left the trenches came back safely.

"This charge differed from that of the Light Brigade," says Captain Bean, "in that it was made by horsemen who had volunteered to fight on foot or in any other way, provided they could get to the Gallipoli Peninsula and help the other Australians there. The two scaling ladders they carried with them are lying out there in the scrub about half way to the enemy trenches and there are a number of tumbled little heaps of that dull, pea-soup colored Australian khaki, which is the hallmark of unrecorded heroism on every battlefield on this Peninsula.

"You can piece together a few simple deductions as to the details. There are no Victoria Crosses, there are no birthday honors, but I know just this, that for sheer self-sacrificing heroism there never was a deed of history that surpassed the charge which two Australian Light Horse Brigades made in the first light of Saturday, Aug. 7, in order to help their comrades in a critical moment of a great battle."

TURKS RENEW ATTACKS AGAINST CHRISTIANS

Bands of Irregulars Operating in Zone Just Ceded to Bulgaria.

London, Monday, Oct. 4.—A new series of Turkish outrages against Christians is reported to have taken place in the zone which Turkey has just ceded to Bulgaria, and which Turkish officials and troops are now evacuating. A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Company from Athens says:

"Bands of Turkish irregulars have been organized expressly to pillage Christian shops and habitations. All the women have been maltreated. Four Christian villages outside the ceded zone have been forcibly evacuated to make room for Turks who did not wish to remain under Bulgarian rule."

habitants of that place and its neighboring villages have been deported; also most of the Christians in Albustan, many from Hadjin, Sis, Kars Pazar, Hassan Beyli, and Deort Yol.

The numbers involved are approximately, to date, 26,500. Of these, about 5,000 have been sent to the Konieh region, 5,500 are in Aleppo and surrounding towns and villages, and the remainder are in Der Zor, Racca, and various places in Mesopotamia, even as far as the neighborhood of Bagdad.

The process is still going on, and there is no telling how far it may be carried. The orders already issued will bring the number in this region up to 32,000, and there have been as yet none exiled from Aintab, and very few from Marash and Oorfa.

The orders of commanders may have been reasonably humane; but the execution of them has been for the most part unnecessarily harsh, and in many cases accompanied by horrible brutality to women and children, to the sick and the aged. Whole villages were deported at an hour's notice, with no opportunity to prepare for the journey, not even, in some cases, to gather together the scattered members of the family, so that little children were left behind.

In Hadjin, well-to-do people, who had prepared food and bedding for the road, were obliged to leave it in the street, and afterward suffered greatly from hunger.

Women Driven Under the Lash.

In many cases the men were (those of military age were nearly all in the army) bound tightly together with ropes or chains. Women with little children in their arms, or in the last days of pregnancy, were driven along under the whip like cattle. Three different cases came under my knowledge where the woman was delivered on the road, and because her brutal driver hurried her along she died of hemorrhage. I also know of one case where the gendarme in charge was a humane man, and allowed the poor woman several hours rest, and then procured a wagon for her to ride in. Some women became so completely worn out and hopeless that they left their infants beside the road. Many women and girls have been outraged. At one place the commander of gendarmerie openly told the men to whom he consigned a large company that they were at liberty to do what they chose with the women and girls.

As to subsistence, there has been a great difference in different places. In some places the Government has fed them, in some places it has permitted the inhabitants to feed them. In some places it has neither fed them nor permitted others to do so. There has been much hunger, thirst and sickness, and some real starvation and death.

These people are being scattered in small units, three or four families in a place, among a population of different race and religion, and speaking a different language. I speak of them as being composed of families, but four-fifths of them are women and children, and what men there are are for the most part old or incompetent.

If a means is not found to aid them through the next few months, until they get established in their new surroundings, two-thirds or three-fourths of them will die of starvation and disease.

Prisoners' Feet Beaten to Pieces.

I was called to a house one day where I saw a sheet which originated from the prison and which was being sent to the wash. This sheet was covered with blood and running in long streams. I was also shown clothes which were drenched and exceedingly dirty. It was a puzzle to me what they could possibly have done to the prisoners, but I got to the bottom of the matter by the help of two very reliable persons who witnessed part of it themselves:

The prisoner is put in a room (similar to the times of the Romans) Gendarmes standing in twos at both sides and two at the end of the room administer, each in their turn, bastinadoes as long as they have enough force in them. At the time of the Romans 40 strokes were administered at the very most; in this place, however, 200, 300, 500, even 800 strokes are administered. The foot swells up, then bursts open, due to the numerous blows, and thus the blood spurts out. The prisoner is then carried back into prison, and brought to bed by the rest of the prisoners—this explains the bloody sheet. The prisoners who become unconscious after these blows are revived through the means of some cold water, which is thrown on their heads, and which accounts for the wet and dirty clothes.

A young man was beaten to death within the space of five minutes.

Apart from the bastinadoing other methods were employed, too, such as putting hot irons on the chest. A forger, who was suspected to have forged the shells of the bombs, was let free only after his toes were burned off with sulphur, (called Kerab.)

The German Consul of Aleppo estimates the number of deported to be 30,000. Five thousand people were deported to the unhealthy spot of Sultani, in the District of Konia. The Government gave in the first days some bread. When the bread was finished and they received none, the misery was heartrending.

In Chapter 9 the writer tells of another reign of terror, during which the terrible bastinado was again brought into use, with torture by fire added. He had heard instances of the burning out of the eyes of the poor victims. In another instance some old bombs found in a cemetery and planted there probably during the reign of Abdul Hamid were used as an excuse to torture and kill hundreds who were accused of having hidden them there for use against the Turks.

On June 26 the Armenian men of a certain town were ordered to leave the town. No exception was made; old and young, rich and poor, sick and well, all had to go. When seriously ill the victim was dragged from his bed into the streets. They were robbed of their shoes and clothing. They were thrown into prison and marched away in groups of thirty and more. Some groups were chained. A man in touch with the Turkish Government subsequently stated they had been killed.

Women of Sultan's Soldiers Deported.

Following the deportation of the men the women and children were ordered to be ready to leave. They were told to be ready to leave on a Wedesday. This is what happened:

On Tuesday, about 3:30 A. M., the ox carts appeared at the doors of the first district to be removed, and the people were ordered to depart at once. Some were dragged from their beds without even sufficient clothing. All the morning the ox carts creaked out of the town, laden with women and children, and here and there a man who had escaped the previous deportations. In many cases the husbands and brothers of these same women were away in the army, fighting for the Turkish Government.

The panic in the city was terrible. The people felt that the Government was determined to exterminate the Armenian race, and they were powerless to resist. The people were sure that the men were being killed and the women kidnapped. Many of the convicts in the prison had been released, and the mountains around —— were full of bands of outlaws. It was feared that the women and children were taken some distance from the city and left to the mercy of these men. However that may be, there are provable cases of the kidnapping of attractive young girls by the Turkish officials of ——. One Moslem reported that a gendarme had offered to sell him two girls for a medjidie, ($4.00.) The women believed that they were going to worse than death, and many carried poison in their pockets to use if necessary. Some carried picks and shovels to bury those they knew would die by the wayside.

During this reign of terror notice was given that escape was easy; that any one who accepted Islam would be allowed to remain safely at home. The offices of the lawyers who recorded applications were crowded with people petitioning to become Mohammedans. Many did it for the sake of their women and children, feeling that it would be a matter of only a few weeks before relief would come.

This deportation continued at intervals for about two weeks. It is estimated that out of about 12,000 Armenians in ——, only a few hundred were left. Even those who offered to accept Islam were sent away. At the time of writing no definite word has been heard from any of these groups.

Another chapter tells of the deportation of 12,000 Armenians, of all classes and ages, and that "the whole Mohammedan population knew these people were to be their prey from the beginning, and they were treated as criminals." The route of this unhappy band was marked by corpses.

Beat Child's Brains Out on Rock.

This is what happened in a village in which many Armenians once lived:

——, a village about two hours from ——, is inhabited by Gregorian and Catholic Armenians and Turks. A wealthy and influential Armenian, together with his two sons, according to a reliable witness, were placed one behind the other and shot through. Forty-five men and women were taken a short distance from the village into a valley. The women were first outraged by the officers of the gendarmerie, and then turned over to the gendarmes to dispose of. According to this witness a child was killed by beating its brains out on a rock. The men were all killed, and not a single person survived from this group of forty-five.

Here is, in part, the story of another unhappy Armenian town:

Daily the police are searching the houses of the Armenians for weapons, and not finding any, they are taking the best and most honorable men and imprisoning them; some of them they are exiling, and others they are torturing with red hot irons to make them reveal the supposedly concealed weapons.

The Gendarmerie Department seems to have full control of affairs and the Mutessarif upholds them. They are now holding about a hundred of the best citizens of the city in prison, and today the gendarmerie chief called the Armenian Bishop and told him that unless the Armenians deliver their arms and the revolutionists among them, that he has orders to exile the entire Armenian population of ——, as they did the people of ——. We know how the latter were treated, for hundreds of them have been dragged through —— on their way to the desert whither they have been exiled. These poor exiles were mostly women, children and old men, and they were clubbed and beaten and lashed along as though they had been wild animals, and their women and girls were daily criminally outraged, both by their guards and the ruffians of every village through which they passed.

Woman Writes of Horrible Experience

Another document in the hands of the American Committee states that "the Young Turk Government pursues unceasingly, and every day with added violence, the war to the finish that it has declared against its Armenian subjects."

A letter from a woman in Turkey, of unquestioned integrity, reads, in part, as follows:

Our party left June 1, (old style,) fifteen gendarmes going with us. The party numbered 400 or 500 persons. We had got only two hours away from home when bands of villagers and brigands in large numbers, with rifles, guns, axes, &c., surrounded us on the road and robbed us of all we had. The gendarmes took my three horses and sold them to Turkish mouhadjirs, pocketing the money. They took my money and that from my daughter's neck, also all our food. After this they separated the men, one by one, and shot them all within six or seven days—every male above 15 years old. By my side were killed two priests, one of them over 90 years of age.

These bandsmen took all the good-looking women and carried them off on their horses. Very many women and girls were thus carried off to the mountains, among them my sister, whose one-year-old baby they threw away; a Turk picked it up and carried it off, I know not where. My mother walked till she could walk no further, and dropped by the roadside on a mountain top. We found on the road many of those who had been in previous sections carried from ——; some women were among the killed, with their husbands and sons.

We also came across some old people and little infants still alive, but in a pitiful condition, having shouted their voices away. We were not allowed to sleep at night in the villages, but lay down outside. Under cover of the night indescribable deeds were committed by the gendarmes, bandsmen, and villagers. Many of us died from hunger and strokes of apoplexy. Others were left by the roadside, too feeble to go on.

One morning we saw fifty to sixty wagons with about thirty Turkish widows, whose husbands had been killed in the war; and they were going to Constantinople. One of these women made a sign to one of the gendarmes to kill a certain Armenian whom she pointed out. The gendarmes asked her if she did not wish to kill him herself, at which she said, "Why not?" and, drawing a revolver from her pocket shot and killed him.

Each one of these Turkish hanums had five or six Armenian girls of 10 or under with her. Boys the Turks never wished to take; they killed all, of whatever age. These women wanted to take my daughter, too, but she would not be separated from me. Finally we were both taken into their wagons on our promising to become Moslems. As soon as we entered the araba they began to teach us how to be Moslems, and changed our names, calling me —— and her ——.

The worst and most unimaginable horrors were reserved for us at the banks of the Euphrates and in the Erzingian plain. The mutilated bodies of women, girls, and little children made everybody shudder. The bandsmen were doing all sorts of awful deeds to the women and girls that were with us, whose cries went up to heaven. At the Euphrates the bandsmen and gendarmes threw into the river all the remaining children under 15 years old. Those that could swim were shot down as they struggled in the water.

After seven days we reached ——. Not an Armenian was left alive there. The Turkish women took my daughter and me to the bath, and there showed us many other women and girls that had accepted Islam.

Moslem Criminals Released for Pillage.

Excerpts from various statements included in the report given out yesterday follow:

Aug. 2 about 800 middle-aged and old women, and children under the age of 10 years, arrived afoot from Diarbekr, after forty-five days en route, and in the most pitiable condition imaginable. They report the taking of all the young women and girls by the Kurds, the pillaging even of the last bit of money and other belongings, of starvation, of privation, and hardship of every description.

All over the country leading Armenians have been shot or hanged. Leading merchants have been beggared and exiled.

Thirty thousand Mohammedan criminals have been released from jail and formed into bands under strict military discipline. One of the duties of these bands is to pillage villages and to rob and assassinate exiles.

The Greek and Armenian patriarchs have been refused audiences with the Ministers of the Turkish Government. Foreign Ambassadors, among them the United States Ambassador, have been rebuffed and told that what the Imperial Government wishes to do with its subjects is none of their business.

Turkish Ministers and other officials have repeatedly avowed the intention to smash the Christian nationalities and thus forever put an end to the Armenian question.

The important American religious and educational institutions in this region are losing their professors, teachers, helpers, and students, and even the orphanages are to be emptied of the hundreds of children therein, which ruins the fruits of fifty years of untiring effort in this field. The Government officials in a mocking way ask what the Americans are going to do with these establishments now that the Armenians are being done away with.

The situation is becoming more critical daily, as there is no telling where this thing will end. The Germans are being blamed on every hand, for if they have not directely ordered this wholesale slaughter, (for it is nothing less than the extermination of the Armenian race,) they at least condone it.

The story of a visit to one of the desert camps to which the Armenians have been exiled is given near the close of the report. It tells of famished old men, women, and children, reduced to the very lowest state of misery by their persecutors. There are only a few men in the camp, the report reads, "as most of them have been killed on the road." Likewise many women and little children had been murdered.

"The condition of these people," says the report, "indicates clearly the fate of those who have left and are about to leave here. The system that is being followed seems to be to have bands of Kurds awaiting them on the road to kill the men especially, and incidentally some of the others. The entire movement seems to be the most thoroughly organized and effective massacre this country has ever known."

Turks Foil Missionaries' Efforts.

The American missionaries began considering plans to aid the women and children who would be left here with no means of support. It was thought that perhaps an orphanage could be opened to care for some of the children, and especially those who had been born in America and then brought here by their parents, and also those who belonged to parents who had been connected in some way with the American mission and schools. There would be plenty of opportunity, though there might not be sufficient means, to care for children who reached here with the exiles from other vilayets and whose parents had died on the way. I went to see the Vali about this matter yesterday and was met with a flat refusal. He said we could aid these people if we wished to do so, but the Government was establishing orphanages for the children and we could not undertake any work of that nature. An hour after I left the Vali the announcement was made that all the Armenians remaining here, including women and children, must leave on July 13.

"In response to the urgent appeal of Ambassador Morgenthau," the report concludes, "the Committee on Armenian Atrocities, in co-operation with the Committee of Mercy, has decided to make a wide appeal for funds.

"Several gentlemen have already pledged large contributions, but the need is very great, and it is expected that a good number of smaller gifts will be received.

"The crimes now being perpetrated upon the Armenian people surpass in their horror and cruelty anything that history has recorded during the past thousand years. The educated and the ignorant, the rich and the poor, are all being subjected to every form of barbarity and outrage. It is understood, however, that very many Turks are opposed to this policy of persecution.

"It is hoped that prompt action will make it possible to save a great many lives, and repatriate some at least of those who have been driven from their homes.

"Funds will be forwarded to the Ambassador as fast as received. Donations should be sent to the Treasurer, Charles R. Crane, 70 Fifth Avenue, New York.'"

To Those Who Want Electric Light in Their Homes And To Those Who Are Paying Too Much For It Now.

We have secured the American rights of the famous Bruston Unit System of England for light and power.

An absolutely automatic plant by which you generate your current in your own home at a cost of less than one-third the charges of public lighting corporations. Outfits of 50 lights and up.

Labor and care almost entirely eliminated. Does not require an engineer or even experienced attendant.

One thousand plants in successful operation for three years furnishing light and power for the modest fishing camp up to the complete lighting of a small town.

The Bruston System is making the isolated electric light and power plant popular, and is filling a long-felt demand.

Send for cata'ogue, or call at our office and see a plant in actual demonstration.

DE PINNA

FIFTH AVENUE
AT THIRTY-SIXTH ST.

Meeting Young Men's Ideas

This establishment is daily equipping the college man from head to foot with apparel which is entirely correct.

De Pinna clothes present the conservative smartness that is in accordance with his code.

They embody the spirit of fashionable young manhood, which is apt to be exaggerated in young men's clothes.

The preparatory school boy, the youth, and the young fellow in between, are all understood and provided for by the De Pinna tailors.

Suits and Overcoats for Young Men

Made of imported materials, selected because of their appropriateness, and cut on the English young men's lines.

Models identical with those being turned out by the De Pinna custom department.

Sizes, 33 to 40; prices, $22 to $40.

English Norfolk Suits, specially adapted to college wear; of homespuns, tweeds and heather mixtures; from $18 up.

Slip-ons and topcoats for college and preparatory school men—exclusive fabrics; latest English models.

College hats, caps, sweaters, raincoats and shoes.

'Twixt Boyhood and Youth

First-long-trouser suits, in plain colors and mixtures selected for this type of suit—lending themselves to the trim, inconspicuous effects desired—$18 to $30.

These suits are usually very difficult to find. They are the subject of particular study and care by De Pinna designers.

Norfolk Suits and Overcoats for the Younger Boys

The youthful manliness which attaches to De Pinna clothes for young men is the thing that gives character to these suits and coats for boys of seven to fifteen.

The well-known De Pinna special Norfolk knickerbocker suit at $8.75 is shown in wider selection than in former years.

Only serviceable, smart, appropriate materials, intended for vigorous daily wear.

Other Norfolk suits up to $18.

Young Men's Haberdashery

The De Pinna haberdashery store, maintained for young men and boys exclusively, is the only shop of its kind in the country.

Underwear, shirts, neckwear, bathrobes, dressing gowns—everything in furnishings that a boy or young man going away to school needs to complete his outfit.

De Pinna representatives visit the principal college towns and keep in intimate touch with the college situation.

TAXPAYERS UNITE TO FIGHT INCREASE

Association Will Organize for Reduction of Personal Assessment Levy.

BLUFF BY CITY SUSPECTED

Some See Ruse in the Tentative List, Which May Provoke a Legal Contest.

LEGISLATIVE INQUIRY TODAY

Mayor and Other Officials Will Be Called On to Explain at a Series of Hearings.

Steps were taken yesterday by representatives of several corporations and by individuals to make an organized fight against the increase in the personal tax assessment list for 1916, which was jumped to $3,704,305,965. They purpose to organize and incorporate the Personal Tax Association of New York and to obtain as members as many as possible. Former Corporation Counsel Archibald R. Watson has been asked to serve as counsel for the proposed organization.

The joint legislative Committee on taxation, of which State Senator Ogden L. Mills is Chairman, will investigate the increased assessment at a series of meetings which will be given at 11 o'clock this morning in the rooms of the Merchants' Association in the Woolworth Building. Mayor Mitchel, Controller Prendergast, members of the Tax Board, and other officials will be called, and the persons affected by the jump also will get a chance to testify. Mr. Mills admitted yesterday that he had been startled by the heavy increase in the tentative list.

The joint committee will attempt to ascertain on just what basis the increases were made, as up to the present this has not been explained satisfactorily. Senator Mills said he did not believe the sudden boost in values would serve any good purpose in the end or provide a solution for the tax problem.

Tax Hearings All Week.

The members of the joint legislative committee are Senators Mills, Boylan, and Sanders, and Assemblymen Thorne, Marchold, Everett, Gillen, and Donohue. The hearings will be continued throughout the week.

The prediction was made that the organization of taxpayers would soon include a majority of those who have grievances. A list of members probably will be given out within a day or two, along with a call for a meeting to arrange for the campaign. The organization will seek to work with the assessors to procure what it considers a fair basis of assessment on personal property.

One of those interested in the movement said yesterday that the tentative tax list which has been made public was impossible, if not a bit ridiculous. Others looked upon the list as a sort of bluff on the part of the municipality to get the corporations and individuals affected to consent to higher valuations.

George Henry Payne of Oakman & Payne, architects at 345 Fifth Avenue, gave out a short statement at the Vanderbilt Hotel about the proposed organization. He would not make public a list of persons or corporations who had joined in the movement.

"I have been in communication with a number of prominent citizens," he said, "who as individuals or officials of corporations deem themselves aggrieved by the arbitrary rise of the personal tax assessments. An organized effort will be made to present the hundreds of cases of excessive assessment fully to the Board of Assessors for a reduction. There is much mystery in the method of assessment adopted by the board, and it may be questioned whether the assessments are based upon that 'diligent inquiry' required by law."

Legal Action Possible.

A study of the law will be made to determine what, if any, action the association may be able to take to restrain the city from carrying out the collection of taxes on the assessments as published, if it is found that co-operation does not result in radical reductions.

Alfred E. Marling, Chairman of the Committee on Taxation, which was appointed on April 10, 1914, by Mayor Mitchel, announced last night that it would hold hearings in November on the question of relieving buildings from taxation. The committee has made a detailed study of the tax problem, and to obtain light on the actual workings of the system of relieving improvements from taxation has employed Dr. Robert Murray Haig, instructor in economics at Columbia University, to visit cities in Western Canada and the United States. Dr. Haig has prepared a report, which will be made public on Oct. 11.

Much time has also been devoted by the committee to the subject of new sources of revenue, and definite recommendations may be made before Jan. 1. The committee has obtained a report also on excess condemnation, prepared by Herbert S. Swan of the National Municipal League.

RUSH TO REGISTER BONDS.

State's Revenues Increased $114,676 One Day Last Week.

The rush to the State Controller's office in the Woolworth Building to pay the secured debt tax which exempts bonds and mortgages from further taxation for a period of five years has been unprecedented. The haste of the bondholders to have their securities registered was due to the prediction of an advance in the personal tax assessment. By payment of the secured debt tax the bonds are exempted from this taxation.

The amount of stamps sold last month was 665,482. The biggest day's business was on Sept. 28, when the receipts were $114,676. When the secured debt tax law was amended this year it was expected that the revenues would increase, but the State Controller did not anticipate such a rush. The old law provided for a tax of one-half of 1 per cent., which would exempt bonds from further taxation during the life of the holder. The present law makes bonds exempt for five years, if registered before Oct. 31, by the payment of $7.50 on every $1,000 bond.

UNION MINERS ATTACK ROCKEFELLER PLAN

Committee in Denver Declares It Insures Domination of Situation by Company.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Oct. 3.—A committee of the United Mine Workers of America, composed of Robert H. Hartin, Percy Tetlow and J. F. Moran, has issued a statement which practically rejects the plan for industrial peace just proposed by John D. Rockefeller, Jr. The statement in part says:

"The proclamation fails to provide for meetings or conventions of the miners, except locally, and by so doing insures company domination of its workings. All meetings, except local mine meetings, are to be joint meetings, where the company will have equal representation, thus eliminating the danger of the collective action that might result if the men from several mines met together free from company influence.

"The document arbitrarily fixes living and working conditions until Jan. 1, 1918, with a proviso that any increase in wages granted in competitive districts where the company does not conduct operations, a proportional increase shall be made; no doubt with the end in view of safeguarding the competitive advantage the company now has over the Wyoming and other adjacent fields where the union scale is much higher than in Colorado."

GERMANY RESTRICTS ACTS OF SOCIALISTS

Liebknecht's Followers Prevented from Speaking at Meetings in Several Cities.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 4.—That there is more trouble between the German authorities and the so-called Liebknecht group of Socialists is reported by the Morning Post's Amsterdam correspondent.

The military officials, the correspondent says, have forbidden the followers of Dr. Karl Liebknecht to issue any pamphlets or to speak at either public or private meetings in Essen, Düsseldorf and several other towns. The prohibition will be rescinded, the correspondent adds, if the group apologizes for a recent communication in which it was stated that the followers of Liebknecht were no longer in accord with the regular Socialist Party's declaration of Aug. 4, 1914, agreeing to work with the Government during the period of the war.

MRS. KELLY HINTS AT ACTION

Insists She Will Prevent Her Daughter from Marrying.

While Mrs. Edward Kelly of 116 East Sixty-third Street was as emphatic as ever last night in her assertions that she would prevent the marriage of her daughter, Miss Eugenia Kelly, to Al Davis, she did not have any very definite plan of procedure to offer. She told a TIMES reporter that she did not know where her daughter was, but expressed no surprise when she was told that the young woman had spent most of the day on Long Island, presumably with Davis.

"I don't know," said Mrs. Kelly. "Eugenia went out early this morning, and I haven't seen her since. I asked her where she was going, and she didn't answer. She doesn't talk to me very much, although she does live here. I'm not spending any good money to have detectives follow her, either. But, believe me, I am still her guardian, and she is going to realize that."

Mrs. Kelly said that she might apply to a Magistrate in the Yorkville Court soon to restrain her daughter.

"I can't tell you about that now," she said. "I never said that I would seek the aid of the courts tomorrow. I might, you know, but I'm not saying that I will. In a little while you may know a lot of things you don't know now."

Mrs. Kelly took occasion to deny that she had introduced her daughter to Broadway, as the girl had alleged, or that she was responsible for the acquaintance with Davis.

CORRECTION BY MR. TESLA.

Of Wireless Apparatus He Meant to Say "Ineffective," Not "Inefficient."

THE TIMES received last night from Nikola Tesla a letter saying the inventor wished to correct a statement in his forecast of the possibilities of wireless, published in THE TIMES of yesterday morning, when he was quoted as saying that the apparatus used by the American Telephone & Telegraph Company to talk from Arlington to Hawaii was "inefficient." The inventor wrote that he wished to say that the apparatus was "ineffective."

"Although I can guess the character of the apparatus which was employed in projecting the human voice through 4,000 miles of space," Mr. Tesla wrote, "I am unable to judge of its efficiency, but from the technical particulars available I know that the plants are ineffective, inasmuch as they would have furnished currents of much greater volume and tension had they been differently designed. Incidentally, they would then have been immune against static disturbances, unfailing in their operation and adapted to secure secrecy of messages.

"In calling attention to this fact I have meant to give testimony to the excellence of the means of control and magnification resorted to by the experimentors. Had the same devices been used in connection with plants designed for maximum effect the results would have been such as to cause a most profound sensation and to stir great commercial interests all the world over, perhaps to the point of powerfully effecting and hastening the finish of the awful struggle in which nations of the earth are now engaged."

CONTRACT FOR LOAN READY TO BE SIGNED

Except for a Few Minor Details, Allies' Commissioners Have Completed Their Work.

PLAN TO HELP EXCHANGE

P. Farquhar Would Have United States Take Over Europe's South American Investments.

The contract for the $500,000,000 credit loan to Great Britain and France probably will be signed today or tomorrow by the members of the Anglo-French Commission and J. P. Morgan & Co., fiscal agents in the United States of England and France. Lord Reading is expected to sign for Great Britain, and Ernest Mallet probably will sign for the French Government.

This is one of only a few remaining duties which hold the members of the commission here. Others are giving their approval to the prospectus explaining the bonds, which is to be issued this week, and the straightening out of minor details pertaining to the loan. With the formal signing of the contract preparations will be made to close the underwriters' books, which probably will be done on Tuesday. The Commissioners expect to sail for home in about ten days or two weeks.

Members of the commission, who spent yesterday at the country homes of their friends, as has been their custom at the end of each week, returned to the city last night.

Every mail is bringing to the syndicate applications from investors, and the two days' mail which will be received this morning is expected to add heavily to the oversubscription. The lists will not be closed, however, it was said yesterday, until the last possible moment, so that opportunity may be given to the investors in the South and West to get their applications in.

After the list has closed there are some formalities to be carried out, but they are not expected to delay the public offering of the loan more than a day or two. The foreign commissioners have plenary powers, but it will be necessary for them to await formal action by Parliament and the Chamber of Deputies. They have been in constant touch with their Governments throughout the negotiations.

Bankers predicted a big commercial era for this country as a result of the loan. "We have always been a debtor nation," one of them said yesterday, "although we should be a creditor nation to extend our foreign trade. Germany and Great Britain have increased their commerce with South America and China by loaning money there, and we should profit likewise."

SEES WAY TO HELP EXCHANGE.

Farquhar Wants Us to Take Over Europe's Pan-American Holdings.

In the October number of The South American, out today, Percival Farquhar, the American capitalist who is at the head of the Brazil Railway Company, the whole system covering 5,000 miles of territory, and who has many other investments in various South American countries, advocates the taking over of Europe's South American investments by the United States as the best possible solution to the present problem of exchange.

The Brazil Railway is an American enterprise, the company having been chartered in Maine. It is the one great South American railroad financed and controlled by American capitalists.

The resale of American securities held in Europe, and even the sale of European Government bonds, has been insufficient to equalize exchange rates. The situation must be met or our export sales will be heavily curtailed, and this neither suits the United States nor Europe, Mr. Farquhar argues.

He estimates that England alone owns something like $3,000,000,000 (American gold) of South American properties. The fact accounts for the dominance heretofore enjoyed by Great Britain in the immense trade of Latin America. As to the relative figures, those of Argentina perhaps are the most striking. The latest available normal figures are for the first six months of 1914. For that period the trade of England with Argentina amounted to $116,639,732. This was approximately one-third of the whole trade of Argentina. The United States trade totaled only $44,574,228, or approximately one-tenth of Argentina's total trade.

This investment of $3,000,000,000 of British money in South America gives to England, Mr. Farquhar says, large potentialities of payment and to us great opportunity of acquiring some of the best South American railways on terms according with the present situation and earnings, the lowest likely to be seen for years to come. The fact that these properties, he says, are owned by the European public, while it is the Governments which must pay us for supplies, makes no difference, as the latter can buy the American exchange created by such sales.

Mr. Farquhar holds the United States will be saved all the usual experiments in entering a new field of investment, such as risk of construction estimates, delays, development and realization of earnings, &c. The problems of new countries are more familiar to us than to those of Europe, and through experience gained in our own development our entry into this field should have a beneficial influence, recognized by South American Governments, which are in consequence sympathetically disposed. On our side, financial objections to acquisition of these foreign-owned properties are removed by the fact that they would only be carried out within the requirements of payments due to us by Europe and in order to meet them so that no money would leave the United States. The article says it must be made clear to the public that in any case it will have to take some sort of foreign security if our sales to Europe are to be kept up and that there is no safer nor more advantageous form, from an American standpoint, than those of good companies in the neighboring republics, and that nothing would do so much to cement permanent intimacy.

LONDON PRESS ON LOAN.

The Times Says Bonds Will Sell Here for Reasons of Personal Sympathy.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Monday, Oct. 4.—The Times says on the success of the American loan:

"The unconcealed chagrin in Germany at the conclusion of the agreement is really a better measure of what it means than any purely financial criticism here of the terms on which the loan is being effected. It may not be thought politic to emphasize the fact that the loan will be subscribed because of the widespread American sympathy for the British cause, but it would certainly not be subscribed merely because of the terms offered. In countless American households the $100 bonds will be taken as a tangible sign of active personal interest in the fortunes of individual English, Scottish, Irish or Welsh soldiers belonging to families connected nearly or even remotely with those of the investors."

The Daily Mail says:

"The prompt, complete success of the great Anglo-French loan project in New York and Chicago fills Germans with disappointment. To the last they pinned hopes on the ability of their 'American organization,' diplomatic and hyphenated, to wreck this latest product of pro-ally sentiment in the United States.

"The Tageblatt, the chief organ of the Berlin financial community in lament, smacking strongly of sour grapes, considers Wilson's sanction of the transaction a breach of neutrality in keeping with his refusal to obey Germany's demand for the embargo on shipments of American munitions. The Tageblatt says: 'It would undoubtedly have been more desirable from our standpoint if Americans had not taken over this loan. At any rate, it may well fill us with pride that we can finance all our necessities in our own country while England and France become debtors to the United tSates. They had to accept conditions far more unfavorable than the last domestic loan.'"

LOAN DELIGHTS PARIS.

A Success for Allied Governments, French Journal Asserts.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—In a review of the financial situation the Journal des Debats says:

"The terms of the Anglo-French loan in America are clearly very advantageous to the subscribers, but the allied Governments properly attach greater importance to the loan itself and its size than to details or terms. The truth is that under existing circumstances the floating of this loan ought to be recognized as a great financial success for France and England.

"The rapidity of the negotiations shows the friendly feeling the United States has for us and the confidence of American financiers in French credit. It should be remembered this loan is without precedent and that this is the first time in the United States that an appeal has been made to the public to purchase the securities of a foreign State. There is added reason for French felicitation when we recall the pitiable result of Germany's effort to procure money in America."

The Journal des Debats says the loan will have little effect on French internal finances, as the amount will be used in settling trade balances due the United States. Neither should the loan be expected to stop entirely the shipment of French gold, as that probably will continue. The Bank of France, it is asserted, is ready to meet all demands, as its stock of gold recently has been augmented by public subscriptions amounting to 800,000,000 francs, ($160,000,000.)

Hungary Pays High Interest.

BERLIN, Oct. 3, (By Wireless to Sayville, L. I.)—The forthcoming Hungarian war loan, according to the Overseas News Agency, will bear 6 per cent. interest, and will be issued at 97½. It will be redeemable in 1921.

SHOES

The fashions in women's footwear were never so varied as this year and a really comprehensive showing with full sizes in all styles requires a huge stock such as few stores maintain. Our 58th Fall season finds us adequately prepared with the store a veritable treasure trove of new things. The smartest models are usually shown here first, many of them being originated by us. Early selections are advisable, as the most attractive lines are soonest depleted.

Timely Topics

The mercantile and industrial as well as the financial interests of this country are in enjoyment of unusual and important experiences, such as sometimes make a man and often mark the growth of a nation, politically as well as commercially.

We are shouldered with burdens and responsibilities new to us that require not only material and physical strength, which we have, but also moral strength and mental breadth. We are bankers and department store for the world at this time. We have reached man's estate, commercially, financially and industrially, and it behooves us to bear ourselves like men. We must put aside childish fears, traditions and prejudices. We have always been seeking the prestige and power that have come to us, and now that we have them let us demonstrate that we know how to use them. Let us look ahead and be prepared in every way to retain the distinguished position we have gained.

The Harriman National Bank believes that this attitude will meet with the approbation of all thoughtful men and women. It is assumed by the bank in a liberal spirit of willingness to fully share in the responsibilities, and, as a public institution, to extend its aid and friendly advice whenever and wherever it consistently can.

THE COST

The cost of a building operation is not to be computed in figures alone.

A low figure for a building does not mean anything at all, if the work is delayed three months in the building.

What the Owner of a building operation really wants is the right price, the quickest possible delivery, and absolute specification quality, and that is the combination that he can get from us.

LIGHT MAKES MUSIC IN DE FOREST LAMP

Inventor Promises Composers Medium for Producing Harmonies Undreamed Of.

USES INCANDESCENT BULBS

Announces Discovery of the Long-Sought Secret of Transmuting Electrical Rays.

Has the riddle of the Memnon been solved? Tradition has it that 3,000 years ago one of the giant statues on the plains of Egypt emitted weirdly beautiful notes when struck by the first rays of the rising sun.

Dr. Lee de Forest announced yesterday that he had made electric lights play for him music surpassing far the best efforts of the best orchestra. "The music of the lamps" he called it, this music of light rays, the secret of which lay for so long wrapped among the many other secrets of the banks of the Nile.

It is but a detail of the possibilities of Dr. de Forest's invention that the master musician may sit in his studio in modern New York and play by wireless "the music of the lamps" into the ear of the Sphinx, recalling the tunes of the long ago. For all that is necessary, he says, is to transmit the electric current to the lamps which give out the music.

"Now that the attention of the public has been drawn to the astonishing use of the incandescent lamp, not only as a receiver in transcontinental wireless telephony, but as a generator of power necessary to transmit the voice in the first place, it may be interesting to know that this incandescent lamp, or audion, has another entirely different field of utility—that of producing sound or music. Music from light—that, in a word, is the latest magic of the lamp," said Dr. de Forest last night.

From Light to Sound.

"We have at last reached the point of changing light rays directly into sound rays; that which has hitherto been only for the pleasure of the eye can now be made a pleasure also to the ear.

"In my laboratory there are a number of small spherical incandescent bulbs from which I am able to obtain a succession of musical notes, clear and sweet, of surprising volume, the pitch and timbre of which can be varied almost at will to imitate any musical tone of any orchestra. The infinite variety of tones and the consequent infinite combination of notes will enable musicians to reach a height of musical perfection never attainable with any instrument now used. Here, then, in my laboratory we have for the first time the music of the lamps.

"While working on my experiments in developing the audion as a wireless telephone detector and incidentally as an amplifier to be used on long-distance telephone wire lines, I made the discovery that when the circuits of the audion were connected in a certain way, a clear musical note was heard in a telephone receiver connected with one of these circuits. The quality of the tone was very beautiful and I found, after a little experimenting, that I could change this quality into a great variety of sounds, imitating with one lamp, for example, the flute, oboe, cornet, stringed instruments, and other sounds pleasing to the ear yet quite unlike those from any musical instrument with which we are familiar.

"The pitch of the notes was easily regulated by changing the capacity of the inductance in the circuits, which can be effected by a sliding contact or simply by turning the knob of the condenser. In fact, the pitch of the notes can be changed by merely putting the finger on certain parts of the circuit or even holding the hand close to parts of the circuit. In this way very weird and beautiful effects can be obtained. At the earlier stage of these investigations I found that the pitch of the note could be varied by a simple arrangement, such as a graphite pencil mark on a piece of paper or slate across parts of the circuit, and this offered the most ready means of altering the pitch and quality of the notes.

Arranges a Scale.

"Acting on these discoveries, I found it was a comparatively simple matter to arrange a crude scale similar in function to that of an organ, with switches in place of the ordinary keys, so that by pressing certain switches I could cut out, or in, more or less inductance, thus changing the notes emitted from the telephone receiver at will. In order to bring the volume of sound out large and full in the room, it was necessary to connect a number of loud-speaking horns with the telephone receivers, similar to those used in railroad stations as announcers. With these horns distributed in different parts of my laboratory or grouped together in one place, the sound can be made to emanate from all quarters of the room, or from one corner, as I choose.

"It will be remembered that several years ago a very elaborate undertaking was started in New York for producing music by gigantic electric dynamos, mixing the tones from 100 or more machines, in accordance with the will of a skilled performer, who in that way produced musical tones of large volume, and which simulated those of every instrument in an orchestra. The idea was to generate this music at a central station and distribute it through telephone wires to hotels, restaurants, lobbies, concert halls, and private residences. This was a most meritorious idea and deserved great success. However, the extraordinarily heavy cost of the original plant, the maintenance of wire cables, and other expenses rendered it commercially a failure.

"Now, with the audion or incandescent lamp as a generator of musical tones we have on a small scale all of the possibilities of the large telharmonium, with a very small fraction of its cost. In its simplest form, used as a detector for wireless signals, the audion is a small incandescent lamp about one and a half inches in diameter, containing, besides the usual filament, a grid-shaped wire, and behind that again a small rectangular plate of nickel, these element being sealed inside the glass bulb. The bulb is perfectly insensitive until the filament is brightly lighted, whereupon it becomes, in connection with the aerial wire of any wireless receiving station, a detector of extraordinary sensitiveness. It is only with the audion that these extraordinarily long distances in wireless telegraphy and telephony are possible. The recent work of telephoning from Arlington to Honolulu was made possible by the use of the audion detector or amplifier at the receiving station.

Transforms Energy.

"Now, this same little bulb can be made to generate alternating current. It receives the energy which is expended in these currents from the dry battery or dynamo. The audion is, in other words, a transformer of energy. The alternating current, if of low frequency, can actuate the telephone diaphragm, and make musical notes which the ear can hear, and this is the germ idea in the musical instrument which I have described.

"The bulbs for musical purposes, which I have thus far used, are not larger than three inches in diameter. At present I am using one bulb for an octave on the musical scale with the arrangements of keys and switches, so that from this one bulb I can produce the notes of that octave by pressing the right keys. For the next octave another bulb is used, and so on. The output of all these bulbs is made common to one set of telephone receivers, or loud speakers, so that the total energy in the form of sound is that of all the bulbs which are operating at any one time.

"In all my work with the audion—and I can imagine no device in the whole realm of practical physics of greater fascination than this little audion principle—I have never found any phase of its unlimited possibilities quite so interesting as this of producing music. The idea of producing beautiful musical tones by an entirely new method unknown to all our great composers and, perhaps, offering to future composers new fields for their genius, has captivated me.

"In the next twelve months I hope to produce an instrument which will be nearly enough to perfect so that I can turn it over to musicians to work out the thousand and one details of musical perfection which such men alone are capable of producing."

REGISTRATION WEEK BEGINS HERE TODAY

Hours from 5:30 to 10:30 P. M. Each Day Till Saturday, Then 7 A. M. to 10:30 P. M.

NEW LAW FOR THIS CITY

Five Evenings and a Long Day Take the Place of Four Days in Two Weeks in Former Years.

Registration begins today. The polling places will be open from 5:30 P. M. to 10:30 P. M. It is New York City's first continuous week of registration. Amendments to the election law which became effective for 1915 provide for registration on six days in one week, whereas under the old law there were four registration days, two, Friday and Saturday, in the fourth week before general election, and the same two days in the third week before election week.

There will be about the same number of hours for registration. Under the old law the registration books were open in the afternoon and early evening, while under the new order for the first five days of registration week the books are open from 5:30 o'clock in the afternoon until 10:30 o'clock at night and on Saturday from 7 o'clock in the morning until 10:30 o'clock at night.

The new law applies only to New York City. In other cities of the State and in all villages having a population of 5,000 or more the system of registration on the fourth and third Fridays and fourth and third Saturdays before election week remains unchanged, with the books open from 7 in the morning until 10 at night. In smaller villages there will be two registration days, the fourth and third Saturdays before Nov. 2.

One of the reasons advanced in the Legislative debate over the change in registration dates was that of the Honest Ballot Association, which contended that the new system would result in the closing of the registration books one week sooner in New York City and given, in consequence, that much more time for the review of the names for the detection of fraud.

It was further argued that in New York City most of the registering is done in the evening, and that much of the time at which the registration places were open under the old system was wasted. The new order was advocated by New York City members, who believed that conditions here were such as to call for a change from the old hours, which suited rural districts, where most of the registering was done in the daytime. It was pointed out that the whole of Saturday would give opportunity for registering to those who did not find the latter hours of the first five days convenient.

The change was also advocated by those who fathered the measure for the use of schoolhouses for election and registration purposes on the ground that the new hours would not conflict with school hours. Classes will have been dismissed when the business of registration begins at 5:30 o'clock on the first five days of the week, and there will be no classes on Saturdays.

TWO STEAMERS ASHORE, ONE HAS GOLD CARGO

Highland Warrior, With 40 Cases of Specie, and Ville d'Arras Strike Near Spanish Coast.

CORUNNA, Spain, Oct. 3.—The French steamer Ville d'Arras and the British steamer Highland Warrior are ashore near Corunna. The Ville d'Arras, which had a cargo of coal and was bound from Swansea for Algeria, struck a rock in the vicinity of the Sisarga Islands. Her crew of twenty-four men has been landed at Corunna.

The Highland Warrior, which is ashore on Cape Prior, was carrying forty cases of gold from the Bank of England for the Bank of Spain.

The Ville d'Arras was a vessel of 1,490 tons and was owned by the Northern Steamship Company of Dunkirk. The Highland Warrior was a Nelson liner of 7,485 tons.

MINE MANAGERS FLEE.

Arizona's Governor Sends Troops to the Copper Camps.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Oct. 3.—Adjutant General C. W. Harris and forty-eight militiamen tonight started for Clifton, Ariz., to preserve peace in a strike of copper miners. The militiamen were ordered to Clifton by Governor Hunt on receipt of an appeal from Sheriff J. C. Cash, who said he feared the situation was beyond his control. Sheriff Cash said that managers of the copper mines had abandoned the district and that the strikers were parading the streets and making demonstrations. He feared that serious trouble would result.

The Governor received a telegram from Norman Carmichael, J. W. Benny, and John Clain, managers of three large copper companies, who went from Clifton last night to Lordsburg, N. M. The managers said that they fled, as they feared their presence at Clifton might lead to violence. The managers urged the Governor to use every effort to protect lives and property.

BOY AND MAN KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Yonkers Resident Steps in Front of Car at Busy 125th Street Crossing.

2 BAD WRECKS NEAR CONEY

Machine Hits Surface Car and Is Wrecked—Deer Stalks Auto Into Ditch.

Two persons were killed and many hurt yesterday in automobile accidents in the metropolitan and suburban districts.

John McGahey, 60 years old, of 4 Chestnut Street, Yonkers, was crossing 125th Street at Seventh Avenue shortly after noon when he was hit by a northbound automobile, driven by its owner, Thomas B. Crane of 215 West Twenty-ninth Street. Crane stopped, turned back, and took McGahey to the Harlem Hospital, where Dr. McGreen found that he had a fractured skull, internal injuries, and severe contusions of the body, which caused his death an hour later.

Crane was not held, witnesses having told the police that McGahey had stepped in front of the car.

Otto C. Schmidt, a lace importer, of 8,018 Bay Parkway, Brooklyn, was driving yesterday in South Ozone Park with his wife and her sister, Mrs. John Seaton, when they ran down eight-year-old John Flaherty of 15 Maple Street. The boy, with a companion, Edward Oleff, had dodged behind an automobile going in the other direction just in time to come out in front of Schmidt's car, and while the Oleff boy managed to slip out of the way the other was run down.

Schmidt picked the boy up, stopped at a nearby police booth, and took in Patrolman Cuneen and drove to St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica, five miles away, where the house surgeon, Dr. Bryning, found that the boy had died on the way. Schmidt was arraigned before Coroner Carl Voegel in the Jamaica Town Hall and furnished bail for his appearance at the inquest.

At 10 o'clock last night Siegfried Barr, a soap manufacturer of 1,960 Eighty-third Street, Bath Beach, started to Coney Island in his car, accompanied by his wife, Jeannette, James Brown, a laundryman of 6,220 Nineteenth Avenue; Brown's wife, Jane, and her sister, Rose McDonald, and seven-year-old Loretta Harrigan, Mrs. Barr's niece. In Ocean Parkway, near Sea Beach Avenue, when they came to a stretch of roadway which was torn up, the car overturned.

Barr and Mrs. Brown were taken to Coney Island hospital suffering from cuts about the body and possibly fractured skulls.

Mrs. Barr had her nose broken and was cut and bruised, Brown was lacerated about the face and body, and Miss McDonald and the little girl suffered slight injuries.

Hardly had the ambulance surgeons finished with this accident when they were called to Surf Avenue and West Fifth Street, Coney Island. Joseph Curran of 877 Metropolitan Avenue, Brooklyn, with Joseph Bauschatz of 183 Irving Avenue, his wife, Irene, and their four-year-old daughter, were driving toward Brighton Beach when they suddenly turned and started back. James McArdle of 43 Ryerson Street, Brooklyn, who had another man and two girls with him, was driving a car right behind them. The machines collided and upset.

Both the drivers escaped injury, and the three members of the Bauschatz family suffered only minor bruises. The two girls in McArdle's car, Miss May Keegan of 531 Sterling Place, Brooklyn, and Miss Helen Prendergast of 74 Steuben Street, were taken to the hospital in a serious condition, badly cut and suffering concussion of the brain.

Mrs. Alice Fox and Miss Isabelle Didelle of 19 East 130th Street were crossing Broadway at 120th Street at about 4 P. M. when they stepped from in front of a car directly in the path of a machine belonging to Emanuel Arnstein of 600 West End Avenue and driven by his chauffeur, Walter Walsh of 19 West Eightieth Street. The two were knocked down, and Arnstein took them in the car to Knickerbocker Hospital, where it was found that both were badly bruised and that Miss Didelle's right wrist was dislocated.

Thomas J. Conlin of 15 Division Street, New Rochelle, was driving east on 130th Street about 6:30 with Mrs. Nellie Lee of the Bloomingdale Hospital, White Plains, and Andrew J. Hart of 124 Locust Avenue, White Plains, in his car when he tried to cross Amsterdam Avenue in front of a southbound street car. He didn't make it, and his machine was badly damaged. Conlin and his passengers were shaken and bruised.

Archibald J. McClure of New York, who is staying at the Laurel House, Lakewood, was driving to the hotel from Toms River late Saturday night when a deer ran into the middle of the road and stood motionless, confused by the glare of the headlights. McClure drove almost up to the deer, and as it still did not move he swerved to one side of the road to avoid it and ran into a ditch. The deer, after the lights had passed it, sprang back into the woods, but McClure had to leave his car and walk back to the Laurel House.

YOUTH HELD FOR AUTO DEATH.

G. T. Kelly, Jr., Surrenders on Reading of Yonkers Fatality.

George T. Kelly, Jr., son of George T. Kelly of 280 North Broadway, Yonkers, who constructed the Yonkers City Hall, walked into the First Precinct Police Station in Yonkers yesterday morning and surrendered as the automobilist who had run down John Moran on Saturday night at Nepperhan Avenue and Chestnut Street, and had escaped in his car. A few hours after Kelly had given himself up Moran died, and Kelly was charged with homicide. He will have a hearing before Coroner James P. Dunn today.

Kelly, who is 18 years old, was a student at Fordham University until he entered business with his father. He said he thought he had struck Moran only a glancing blow, and that the man was not hurt much. Moran, he explained, had slipped from the curb and had dodged back and forth before he was hit. On reading in the newspapers yesterday that Moran was mortally hurt Kelly decided to surrender to the police. In the car with Kelly at the time of the accident was Francis Flannery of 116 Warburton Avenue.

Moran, who was a machinist, 23 years old, of 44 Linden Street, Yonkers, died in St. Joseph's Hospital of a fractured skull. Some of the crowd of 300 persons who saw him hit told the police the automobile had thrown him against a fence many feet from the middle of the street.

Several persons reported the number of the car to Policeman Charles M. Foley, but from the direction in which the car went he supposed it was a car from New York. Foley raced on his motor cycle from Yonkers to Union Square, Manhattan, in pursuit of the supposed New Yorker, speeding at a mile a minute sometimes. Several hours later he found he had been pursuing a false clue.

WASHINGTON MARKET READY

Historic Building, Completely Renovated, to Open This Week.

Sidney Goodacre, Superintendent of Markets, announced yesterday that the new Washington Market, at Fulton and West Streets, would be opened for business this week. Stand holders will begin to move in today, leaving the temporary quarters they have occupied since the renovation of the market was begun. All that remains of the old Washington Market is the shell of the building. Tiled refrigerators and tiled stands replace the old wooden stands, ice boxes, barrels and boxes which the stand holders used as temporary quarters. The wooden floor has been replaced by concrete. Everything in the new market is white, even the scales, safes and other fixtures. The cost to the city of making the renovation was $116,000.

The new market can be flushed with water. Storage room has been provided on a mezzanine floor which forms a sort of gallery around the sides of the building. On the same floor is a restaurant for market men and their patrons, as well as additional stands for dealers. Two electric elevators connect it with the ground floor.

The renovation of the market was done under the supervision of Controller Prendergast, President McAneny of the Board of Aldermen and President Marks of the Borough of Manhattan. Working with them have been Colonel Frank H. Hines, Superintendent of Public Buildings and Offices; Mr. Goodacre and John Boschen, Commissioner of Public Works. The Washington Market Association was represented by Carl A. Koelsch, M. Micolino and William Minder. Charles H. Higgins, architect, made the plans and superintended the construction.

Washington Market was opened first in October, 1812, and was reconstructed in 1884. There are now 267 stands on the main and sixty-seven on the mezzanine floors. The annual business exceeds $4,500,000, including wholesale and retail transactions, and it is estimated that more than 1,000,000 persons are supplied, directly or indirectly. Some of the market men have been on hand there every day for many years. One man has been at work almost constantly since 1855.

The Washington Marketmen's Association will hold a formal opening of the market on Oct. 25, and the celebration will continue two weeks.

HURRICANE SMASHED ALMIRANTE'S DECKS

Tore Off Hatches, Crushed Lifeboats, Wrecked Wireless as Passengers Prayed.

DODGED AN 800-POUND SAFE

Purser in Cabin for Five Hours with Plunging Menace—Liner Is Here Three Days Late.

The United Fruit steamship Almirante arrived here yesterday from Colon and Kingston, with seventy-two passengers, after being battered by a hurricane in the Caribbean Sea, which delayed her three days.

Captain Grant Farquhar, his officers and the passengers told a thrilling story of the storm in which the vessel lay helpless for hours in the trough of the sea, and narrowly escaped foundering through the waves having smashed in the Nos. 1 and 2 hatches. The barometer dropped to 27.60 inches, a notably low mark, and the wind reached an estimated velocity of 120 miles at the height of the storm, but no one was hurt except a few who were bruised by knocking against the bulkheads.

Purser S. H. Frantz, locked in his cabin in the dark, spent five hours dodging a safe weighing 800 pounds that had broken adrift from its lashings and was hurled from side to side of his cabin with each roll of the ship. The officers said that the Almirante went over at times to an angle of more than forty-five defrees.

The Almirante sailed from Colon for Kingston, Jamaica, on Thursday, Sept. 23, and at noon on Friday she ran into a northeast gale, which increased in violence and soon kicked up a heavy sea. The ship was about 100 miles south of Kingston and was to have made port late that night. Captain Farquhar signaled by wireless to the British warships in Kingston to know if they had any reports of the storm from others directions and was told that it was local. At dusk the wind shifted all round the compass and by midnight it was blowing at hurricane force, more than ninety miles. In the squalls it blew 120 miles, the Captain said.

Passengers Prayed in Cabin.

Eighty deck passengers, who were Jamaica negroes returning to Kingston from the Canal Zone with their families, had to be taken below for shelter, as no one could even crawl along the deck. The women and children were put into the cabin, where they spent the time praying, and the men were sent into the foc'sle.

Shortly after midnight the hatches were blown off Nos. 1 and 2 holds forward, and the officers were afraid that the big waves tumbling over the bows in tons would fill the hold and cause the ship to founder.

Fortunately the hurricane was so strong that waves were blown clean across the open hatchways and there was only two feet of water in the forward holds when the liner was examined in Kingston.

The port accommodation ladder, made fast under the bridge, was washed inboard with terrific force, smashing No. 4 lifeboat, staving in the side of the Marconi house, and wrecking the No. 3 lifeboat on the starboard side. The wireless apparatus was blown away and the Captain could not send any call for assistance to Kingston, where there were cruisers ready for sea.

The engines were stopped at 1 o'clock Saturday morning and the Almirante lay helpless in the trough of the sea, there being no power to keep her head to the sea. The vessel would not answer her helm. The deck cabins were flooded and the seas swept all over the ship fore and aft and carried away two iron gangway ports on the starboard side that were made fast with two-inch steel bolts, and three-inch iron stanchions. Two lifeboats, Nos. 5 and 6, on the davits at the port and starboard quarters, were smashed in by the seas, and everything movable was swept off the decks.

No food was cooked in the galley for twenty-four hours, and all the 250 passengers and crew had to sustain them was hardtack, canned corned beef, and cocoa made over a bogey stove in the firemen's foc'sle that was securely lashed to the deck. The sailors could not get forward to make an attempt to rig a cover over the hatches, as they themselves would have been carried overboard by the seas.

Safe Tore About Cabin.

While this was occurring Purser Frantz was undergoing a terrifying experience that suggested Hugo's dramatic episode in "Ninety-three," when the loose cannon plunged blindly about the deck of a French frigate. Frantz, in his cabin below, kept shouting for help as his safe tore about his cabin. He was up in his berth clinging to some iron bars overhead, ready to swing up if the iron derelict shattered the supports underneath his bunk. The sailors and stewards were busy looking after the passengers, mostly Spanish-Americans, who were being thrown out of their berths by the heaving of the ship.

After daylight broke the storm moderated, and the second officer looked in from the window on deck to see why the purser made so much noise and bumped against the bulkhead so heavily. He managed to open the window, and with the aid of a quartermaster got the exhausted purser out in safety. With a coil of rope they managed to slip a running bowline over the safe and all three men heaved hard. That did not check its wild career until a quantity of wreckage had been thrown into the cabin.

Hundreds of tropical birds of variegated plumage, which had been blown off the land by the storm, settled on the masts, spars, and deck of the ship for shelter, and many of them were caught later by the passengers and crew, as they were exhausted and could not fly away even after the storm had ceased.

The Almirante anchored off Port Royal late on Saturday night, Sept. 25, and the next morning went to Kingston, where she remained two days undergoing repairs after being surveyed by Lloyd's agent there. She sailed for New York on Tuesday, Sept. 28, three days behind time, and had good weather up the coast.

The Almirante carried mails and a cargo of bananas.

Dry Day in Hoboken.

Fearing action by Sheriff Kinkead of Hudson County, the proprietors of saloons and moving picture houses in Hoboken kept their doors closed yesterday. The cases of the eight saloon proprietors and their bartenders will probably be called this morning by Recorder Adolph Carstein, but it is not known whether Sheriff Kinkead will be present to press the complaints against them.

FUND FOR FEEBLEMINDED.

New National Organization Seeks to Arouse Public Interest.

The Committee on Provision for the Feeble-Minded, a newly formed national organization of which Mrs. E. H. Harriman, Henry Clay Frick, and Commissioner of Correction Katharine B. Davis are members, yesterday announced a campaign to arouse public sentiment to demand greater care for the mentally deficient.

Alexander Johnson, former Director of the Training School at Vineland, N. J., has been made Field Secretary of the committee and will deliver a series of lectures, the first three of which will be on "The Weakest Children of the Great Mother State," "The Menace of the Mentally Defective," and "The Defective Girl and Her Fatherless Child." The purpose of the committee is "to disseminate knowledge concerning the extent and menace of feeble-mindedness and to suggest and initiate methods for its control and ultimate eradication from the American people."

A statement by the committee, the headquarters of which are in Philadelphia, says that it does not expect to accomplish its object in one year or ten, but that results must come through increased public knowledge of what constitutes "The Menace of the Feeble-Minded." The committee says that three persons in every thousand are mentally deficient and that 85 per cent. of these are at large as a menace to society.

Among those who have contributed financially to the national campaign are Mrs. E. H. Harriman, Henry Clay Frick, Mrs. C. B. Wittpenn, Mrs. George Woodward, R. Bayard Cutting, Bleecker van Waganen, A. D. Juilliard, Frederick Foster, Mrs. R. Fulton Cutting, General Coleman du Pont, James Imbrie, Mrs. C. C. Rumsey, Cleveland H. Dodge, Mrs. A. S. Carhart, H. M. Tilford, and Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Douglas.

HELD AS WITNESS BRIBER.

Detectives Say Prisoner Offered $10 in Their Presence.

After Charles Anderson of 301 East Eighty-third Street had called on Isaac Silverstein in his apartment at 940 East 173d Street, the Bronx, and given him a $10 bill, Detectives Thompson and Tierney stepped from places of concealment in the room and arrested Anderson and locked him up on a charge of bribery.

He was caught in the trap, according to the detectives, after he had offered $10 to Silverstein if he would fail to identify Frank Gustavus, who is under arrest as one of four who set upon and beat Silverstein in Southern Boulevard on Aug. 28.

Gasologue No. 2
"What kind of gasoline do you use?"
"Don't know. Just gasoline. But I'm always careful to insist on high gravity."
"High gravity, eh? What about ignition point?"
"Ignition Point?"
"Sure. Boiling point—pretty much the same thing. That's the only real test for gasoline."
"But I thought low ignition point always went with high gravity. Doesn't it?"
"Yes, it does not. Think a moment. Ever had any trouble starting?"
"Well—of course—sometimes—"
"Thought so. Yet you always buy high gravity gasoline, don't you?"
"Yes."
"Well, what's the answer?"
"But what am I to do? Ask for low ignition point, low boiling point—"
"Ask for SOCONY Motor Gasoline. You're safe then. The ignition point is right, the boiling point is right, and what's more, it's right every time. SOCONY Motor Gasoline is always the same, wherever you buy it."
"But I've never heard of SOCONY before—"
"You've heard of the Standard Oil Company of New York, haven't you? Well, SOCONY is a new name for an old and reliable product—the best gasoline the Standard Oil Company of New York can produce."

NEARING ANSWERS TRUSTEE'S CHARGES

Denies He Advocated Doctrines Which Dr. J. W. White Attributes to Him.

CAUTIONED BY THE PROVOST

Not to Talk Against Child Labor or Poverty, He Says—Questions Other Statements.

Professor Scott Nearing of Philadelphia, who was recently dropped by the University of Pennsylvania, gave out a statement yesterday in answer to a recent statement by Dr. J. William White, a Trustee of the university, who gave the reasons why he approved of Professor Nearing's leaving the university.

Professor Nearing says:

"I have read the open letter written by Dr. White, an alumnus and Trustee, to the alumni of the University of Pennsylvania. May I call to the attention of Dr. White, and my fellow-alumni, the following statements upon which Dr. White bases his justification of the Board of Trustees:

"1. Dr. White states that 'on numerous occasions,' I presented certain views which were construed as 'fantastic' and 'extravagant,' before 'lay audiences,' that were 'quite unfit to appreciate or digest them.'

"2. Dr. White says that 'sober minded, sensible persons' believe that I advocated the ruthless redistribution of property.

"3. Dr. White suggests that these same persons were convinced that I believed 'in the personal iniquity of those who lived on incomes derived even from their own savings,' and that I 'thought that the alternative of work or starvation should be presented even to the old, the feeble and the diseased.'

"4. Dr. White states that 'Dr. Nearing had been kindly and considerately asked if he could not lessen this growing feeling * * * by a better adaptation of his arguments to the understanding of his audiences.'

"5. 'With the approval of the Board, the Provost offered to continue Dr. Nearing's salary until he decided on his future course * * *, but Dr. Nearing, with commendable independence, declined to accept the offer.'

"6. Dr. White cites an article in The Ladies' Home Journal, in which he had declared himself, or permitted himself to be described as 'Professor in the University of Pennsylvania,' when in fact he was but an instructor.

"7. Dr. White suggests that the university authorities when approaching potential contributors who 'are often not averse to being supplied with a good, ready-made excuse' find it positively harmful to be handicapped by statements like the following put forth by Dr. Nearing: 'Private wealth has been able to control political parties and the church; let it not control the school. The schools must not take a dollar from any private donor. There must be no educational donation save the tax which all the people pay * * *. So long as you have your college Presidents on the pay roll of corporation foundations, you will have the policies of your higher institutions of learning dictated by these corporation interests.'"

In answer to the above, Professor Nearing says:

"A full knowledge of the facts necessitates the revision of each one of these statements.

"1. The 'lay audiences' before which most of my public lectures have been given fell mainly into four groups—teachers, women's clubs, churches, and labor unions. I do not know which of these audiences Dr. White believes to be 'quite unfit to appreciate or digest' my views.

"2. I have never advocated a redistribution of property, ruthless or otherwise. I have talked only about the just distribution of income.

"3. I do not believe, and never have insisted upon, 'the personal iniquity of those who live on incomes derived from their own savings,' nor that I 'thought that the alternative of work or starvation should be presented, even to the old, the feeble, and the diseased.'

"4. I was asked by the Provost not to talk against child labor and poverty, as 'such agitation hurts the university.' I know of no other advice to which Dr. White can refer.

"5. Neither the board nor the Provost, nor any officer of the board, has offered me a continuance of salary. Obviously, therefore, I never 'declined to accept the help proffered.'

"6. Inquiry would have shown Dr. White that the title 'Professor' was added by the editors of The Ladies' Home Journal, who, like most people outside of academic circles, refer to all university teachers as 'professors,' and, further, that the moment the error appeared I had it corrected in the later articles of the series.

"7. Dr. White lays great stress on a statement of mine regarding private endowments to public educational institutions. He does not note that this statement was reported to have been made by me in July, 1915. My connection with the university ceased in June. It is presumably copied from the reprint of a news story based on a public lecture given in July, 1915. Such a news story does not pretend to be a verbatim report of my remarks. Prior to July, 1915, I never made any public utterances regarding private endowments.

"I find in Dr. White's entire letter no other important statement of fact regarding me. It is upon these statements, whose accuracy I have questioned, that Dr. White builds his argument in justification of the action taken by the board last June."

DEMANDS TRUTH IN NEWS.

President Hadley Urges Support of Papers Which Aim to Give Facts.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 3.—President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale, in the first sermon of the academic year, addressed to the members of the freshman class, spoke on the evils of lying, both to society and the individual. He said:

"The whole fabric of American society rests on the assumption that we are going to be honest in our dealings. Truthfulness in word and in act, strict fulfillment of every obligation, straightforwardness in meeting all promises, expressed or implied, independent of the temporary gain or loss to ourselves, are the things that give us the right and power to be members of a free Commonwealth. It is a part of our religious creed, as well as of our political duty."

Answering his own question of how to avoid the evils of lying, Dr. Hadley said:

"In the first place, we must acquire the habit of looking into evidence. We must stop buying the newspaper that tells what we wish was true, and buy the one that tries to tell what really is true. We must refuse to repeat unproved gossip or scandal merely because we like it. This will soon grow into the habit of not liking it. We shall learn to hate the unconscious lie as well as the intentional one. There may sometimes be a question whether we should tell the truth to others who cannot see it or understand it; there can be no question at all that we should tell it to ourselves. And when a man has learned to tell the truth to himself, the problem of telling it to others becomes comparatively simple."

CONFEDERATE HOSTS TO TAKE WASHINGTON

Veterans of the Gray Invited to Hold Annual Reunion at the Capital.

CROWN FOR NATIONAL UNITY

Yankee, Transplanted to Kentucky After War, Conceives Graceful Compliment.

The veterans of the columns in gray which General Robert E. Lee hurled against the City of Washington, and which were beaten back time after time by the stubborn lines of blue, have been invited now to march into the city and take possession as friends of that which they sought as enemies.

To crown as everlasting the establishment of unity between the North and the South and to follow harmoniously the reunion of the blue and the gray at Gettysburg two years ago, Colonel Andrew Cowan, commander of the First New York Battery of the Sixth Corps throughout the civil war, at a meeting of the Second Corps Society in Washington on last Friday night, proposed that the United Confederate Veterans be invited to hold their annual encampment in 1917 in the capital of the nation they sought to sever.

After Colonel Cowan had made this proposal he asked his Union audience for its opinion. "What say you?" he said. There was silence for a moment while the full meaning of the proposed invitation was sinking in, and then, realization of the significance of a Confederate encampment in Washington dawning, the soldiers of the Second Corps rose and cheered, giving the invitation emphatic indorsement.

Colonel Hilary A. Herbert of the Eighth Alabama Infantry of the Confederate Army, ex-Secretary of the Navy, and now a lawyer in Washington, was called upon, and, after reviewing the progress of peace between North and South, received the invitation for the Confederate Veterans, to whom he was commissioned to carry it.

General Nelson A. Miles, who was present, indorsed the invitation, and resolutions confirming it were passed by the Society of the Second Corps. Military and patriotic societies of Washington and the civil authorities of the city will be asked to unite in the invitation.

Colonel Cowan, who was at the Waldorf-Astoria last night, told how the inspiration to suggest the Washington reunion of Confederate Veterans came to him. Nearly fifty years ago, Colonel Cowan went to Kentucky to live. A Yankee in one of the hotbeds of secession, he at first was scarcely welcome. The hatred and bitterness of the war were still too fresh in the memory of the defeated Southerners. But Colonel Cowan stayed in Louisville; he made friends with the men against whom he had fought; and gradually he saw the hostility of Southerners receding in their hearts before patriotism for the United States.

Colonel Cowan, three years ago, was made an honorary member of the famous "Orphan Brigade" of Kentucky Confederates, and two years ago he met his Confederate friends at Gettysburg. At that time, with others, he laid plans for the erection by Congress of a monument on the battlefield of Gettysburg to commemorate the reunion, and he is still devoting much time to the accomplishment of this purpose. Then, as a consummation to the progress of peace, Colonel Cowan conceived the idea of the Confederate reunion in Washington.

"As I stood in the reviewing stand in Washington last Wednesday," he said last night, "I saw three Confederate soldiers in gray marching with a Massachusetts post, each supported on either side by a comrade in blue—and I was glad. It occurred to me, as I saw those comrades in blue and gray marching arm in arm, that it would be patriotic and inspiring, and the capstone of peace and good-will, if the survivors of the Southern armies should vote to hold their annual reunion two years hence in the capital of the nation, their capital as well as ours."

The Confederate reunion of 1917 is the earliest that may be held in Washington, as the place of the 1916 encampment has already been designated.

MISS VALLEY IS MISSING.

Henry E. Jones Asks Police to Find Nineteen-Year-Old Girl.

Henry E. Jones, who lives at the Saint Germaine Apartments, 200 West Eighty-sixth Street, told the Fourth Branch Detective Bureau last night that his sister-in-law, Miss Susan Valley, 19 years old, who has been living at his home, had been missing since last Thursday. She left the house then, said Mr. Jones, with the expressed intention of going to the Adelphi Theatre, at Eighty-seventh Street and Broadway, and did not return.

From the description given the police the missing girl is five feet seven inches tall and weighs 120 pounds. She has gray eyes and brown hair, and wore a black broadcloth suit, a black velvet hat, a red fox neckpiece, and two signet rings, one with monagram S. A. V. V. and the other marked P. H. S. 15. She carried a black leather bag.

Mr. Jones refused to say anything about the case to reporters last night, asserting that he had his own good reasons for not wishing to discuss the matter. Detective Browncatto has been assigned.

Presents Important Economies for Men

For This Anniversary Week Only

Silk Lined Sack Suits at $23

for Young Men and Seniors

But it is more than a mere anniversary event—it is an event in our Anniversary!

Our Men's Clothing Shop never publishes values, but no clothing shop in existence is more scrupulously careful as to the value of what it publishes. It is as critical of the printed word as a censor in the European war zone, and yet it approves, as being both accurate and conservative, the following statement regarding this sale:

The values in this remarkable anniversary offering are the most substantial ever offered in Saks Clothes, outside of our regular half-yearly sales.

And what is true of the values is also true of the selections. Not the limited assortments of an average sale, but a range of choice which runs far into four figures. In fact, it constitutes a substantial slice of our regular stock, in which the diversity of both models and fabrics is as liberal as you can demand or we can supply.

THE COATS

Both radical and conservative styles, straight, or curved to the figure, with flat or soft roll lapels, clever variations in pockets, and such art in the tailoring as you simply cannot find in other clothes, regardless of price.

THE FABRICS

Blues, black and white checks, brown checks, diamond weaves, black and white stripes, blue and white stripes, brown stripes, grays, browns, cheviot mixtures, and scores of others, many of which are exclusive with Saks'.

THE VESTS

Saks vests this season deserve special mention. They are shown in very snappy notch collar effects, either flat or soft roll, with flaps on the pockets, and peak pointed where the buttons end. Very individual.

All suits full silk lined—and the sleeves lined with warm, colorful silks

Braided suits in Oxford grays included in the assortments

THE FEDERAL FINANCES.

We built the Panama Canal with $138,000,000 of bond money and with over $200,000,000 of till money, that is by using cash in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated. Up to the end of the fiscal year 1913-4, the last full construction year with no offsetting receipts from tolls, the expenditures on canal account out of the general fund in the Treasury had reached the total of $214,452,055. Under the authority of existing law the Treasury may reimburse itself for this expenditure by the sale of bonds. It had been expected that Panama Canal bonds would be sold whenever the Treasury felt the need of money. Its stock of cash is now in need of replenishment. On Sept. 30 it reported an available cash balance of $40,898,894. The excess of ordinary expenditures over receipts for the fiscal year ended June 30 last was $35,864,000, and the Panama Canal expenditures increased this deficit $64,165,000. For the first three months of the current fiscal year, up to Oct. 1, the deficit was $38,756,679. It will not continue at that rate, for the receipts will be greater during the remaining months of the year, notably in the month of June, when the income taxes are paid. But the available cash balance of the Treasury must be increased and provision must be made for new and greater expenditures.

That problem will engage the attention of Congress from the very beginning of the session. There will be an onslaught from the protectionist quarter, we shall be told that the Underwood tariff is the cause of the deficit of last year and that of the current year, that nothing will put the Treasury in a sound position but the restoration of the Payne-Aldrich duties. We hear that preachment already. It is a false preachment and the appeal for a return to a policy of high tariff will be wasted. Everybody knows that the falling off in customs duties is due to the European war, which has so very largely diminished our imports. The Underwood tariff produced $292,000,000 of revenue in its first year, $22,000,000 more than the estimate. For the last fiscal year it produced $209,000,000, which was only $11,000,000 short of the estimate. It is conceivable that the unsettling of our foreign trade due to the war, due to causes that will be operative for some time after the close of the war, may make it necessary during the next half-dozen years to revise the tariff schedules. They will be revised for revenue, not for high and always higher protection. No Congress will venture to give the product of Senator Lippitt's mills the benefit of a duty, say, of 87 per cent.

The extortionate duties of the old tariff will not be reimposed. We may confidently expect that Congress will correct the blunder of the Underwood tariff in dropping the sugar duties. The sugar schedule of that tariff making a moderate reduction took effect on March 1, 1914. Sugar has not been made any cheaper to the consumer. The Government has simply thrown away the revenue. After May 1, 1916, sugar will be admitted free of duty unless Congress amends the Underwood act. The restoration of the sugar duty would be an act of the plainest fiscal common sense, and it is made almost imperative upon Congress by the condition of the Federal finances. It is impossible to make a successful argument for the surrender of $55,000,000 of revenue without a particle of benefit to the consumers of sugar. That tax should be restored.

The act imposing the so-called war taxes, passed as an emergency measure, will expire on Dec. 31. That tax added very nearly $80,000,000 to the internal revenues for the fiscal year ended June 30. Congress will of necessity continue the act in force. Beyond that, if additional funds are needed for the expenditures of the Government, recourse should be had to the issue of bonds to reimburse the Treasury for its contributions to the cost of the Panama Canal.

More revenue will be needed, money will be needed to increase the efficiency of the army and the navy. The country demands that due preparations be made for national defense, that the plans of the President and the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy be carried out by Congress. The pacifists have sought to persuade us that the great lesson of the European war is that preparation for war breeds it. This is another instance of false teaching, for nobody in this country proposes preparation upon the scale maintained by the military nations of Europe, and the lesson the American people have chiefly taken to heart from the European war is that want of preparedness imposes upon the country guilty of it an appalling cost of men and of money. We must put ourselves in such a condition for defense that our weakness will not invite attack. It will be better to spend two or three hundred millions for preparation than to be forced to run up a bill of twice that number of billions for war. The cost of our military establishment last year was $173,000,000, that of the naval establishment was $139,000,000. The expenditure of even as much as $200,000,000, to be met by the issue of canal bonds, would not be an unwise policy, but nobody proposes to spend so much as that. The country would approve expenditures to increase our preparedness as planned by the President and Secretary Garrison and Secretary Daniels. An issue of $100,000,000 of bonds to put the Treasury in a condition to meet the bill of costs would encounter little criticism save from those who do not want us to be prepared at all. The interest-bearing debt of the nation is less than $1,000,000,000, a sum small indeed when compared with the large obligations of the chief European nations even before the war, and almost trifling if we measure it against their present debts, enormously swollen by the costs of the war. The safe way, the prudent way to guarantee ourselves against the danger of having to assume such burdens as these is to spend money now with reasonable liberality for the national defense.

THE GREAT LOAN AS AN OMEN.

The great Anglo-French loan, quite unprecedented in magnitude in the history of American finance, has a significance at once deep and hopeful. On its face it is an ingenious measure to deal with the intensely confusing and baffling condition of the exchanges of the world—to meet a present and pressing need of both borrowers and lenders; in practical effect it is a measure to finance the exports and imports of the three nations concerned. In doing this it influences the exchange markets not only of these nations but of all those having relations with them, notably the food-producing countries of South America. It makes available, as would otherwise be impracticable, for the trade and consumption of the world vast resources, to the great advantage of all involved.

And this transaction, entirely nonpolitical as it is, is based on confidence that the borrowing Governments will in the course of the next five years be able to fund this short-term loan in longer-term bonds at par, which is equivalent to confidence that, if they are not victors in the war they are waging, they at least will meet with no crushing defeat. Every dollar of the loan is a concrete evidence of that confidence. Every investor who puts his money into the loan avows that belief and backs it.

Look for a moment at another phase of this important business. Apart from the confidence in the future of Great Britain and France which is the ultimate basis of the success of the loan, what was the immediate motive to which the Governments of these nations appealed? It was the general and deeply felt need of the neutral nations to trade. War had made trade nearly impossible. Here was a way to make trade again possible. It was promptly adopted. Now, as the war goes on, its interference with trade, despite this device, will in the long run increase. The interests injured will become greater and more influential and will tend to bring about peace. The forces called into play will be more powerful and intense. It is not possible to say when or how they will act, but there is no doubt as to their direction and their strength.

SUBMARINES STILL NEEDED.

Because means have been invented to combat the submarine and restrict its operations, it does not follow that the submersible boat will have no place in the navies of the future. On the contrary, the utility of the submarine has been amply proved, and it will be used as long as war lasts for defense if not for offense on the high seas. Such a record of destruction as the German submarines have made in the waters around Great Britain is not likely to be repeated. Amazement is aroused not so much by the success of the British efforts to check this destruction as by the time required to make the warfare against the submarines effective. Although this work seems to have been accomplished now, yet the submarine will not become extinct in the German Navy or any other. As an instrument of coast defense it will always be valuable, whatever its future may be in offensive operations on the high seas. The United States Navy will have use for all the submarines now authorized and many more. There are means to combat the dreadnoughts. The most powerful of the floating forts may be destroyed in action. The fastest and most heavily armored battle cruiser can be outmanoeuvred and sunk. Seamanship, firing accuracy, and strategy count for more in naval warfare than armament and speed. But we shall continue to build dreadnoughts and we must have battle cruisers.

The naval program is to be decided upon this week and there is no doubt that the need of battle cruisers of the most approved type will not be overlooked in the recommendations to Congress. Ampler appropriations are required also for naval aeroplanes, and the submarine question should be taken up and thoroughly discussed. Fewer seagoing submersibles and a larger supply of the smaller boats for coast defense will probably be authorized after this discussion. Already the wild talk about submersible battleships seems to belong to ancient history.

THE BROOKLYN BRIDGE.

Almost simultaneously with the completion of the giant span of the newest bridge across the East River, that to be used by the Pennsylvania and New Haven Railroads at Hell Gate, the need of rebuilding the first of the bridges is made public in a report to the Controller by the Bureau of Municipal Investigation and Statistics. Last year there was an appreciable decrease in the traffic over the Brooklyn Bridge and an increase on the Manhattan, Williamsburg, and Queensboro Bridges, but the traffic on the Brooklyn Bridge these days exceeds the wildest dreams of the far-sighted people who favored its erection and fought with all their energy to prevent its abandonment after it had been begun. It was opened in 1883, after many years of slow construction, which were enlivened by frequent protests from the conservative army, the members of which were satisfied that, if completed, it would never serve any good purpose and would stand for all time as a monument to reckless municipal extravagance. For many years the cost of its maintenance has been increasing, for, as the main thoroughfare between Manhattan and the mighty Borough of Brooklyn, it has been subjected to a strain its builders never provided for.

To rebuild it, to transform it into a bridge designed to meet modern requirements, seems a sensible proposal, but what could be done with its tides of traffic in the years that would be needed for the work of rebuilding? Doubtless some part of that traffic could be diverted to the Williamsburg and Manhattan Bridges without causing great inconvenience, but they have ample and continually growing traffic of their own. The strain upon the comparatively new Queensboro Bridge is already so great that the subway tracks which were to cross it are to be diverted to new tunnels under the river, and there are already four several sets of railroad tubes under that river, to predict the building of which, in the dim era when the towers of the Brooklyn Bridge were slowly rising, would have been to subject one's self to ridicule as a visionary quite devoid of practical common sense. Probably the Brooklyn Bridge will be rebuilt sooner or later, and thereafter other bridges and more tunnels will be needed to accommodate the traffic between New York and Brooklyn.

NELSON AND THE FLAG.

Down in the southwestern part of New Hampshire, in Cheshire County, there is a village called Nelson. It has 231 inhabitants. When the war of secession was going on, however, it sent 124 men to the front. There is a lawyer here in New York named Henry Melville, and a while ago it seemed to him—he was a Nelson man—that it might be just as well to present to the village a tablet commemorating its rather unusual record in the time of war. So he did, and it was unveiled not long ago, near a little old Yankee church. Not many folks there, most likely; Melville could not have gotten from it the satisfaction of having a big crowd and a hurrah; any pleasure he got from it must have been internal.

But he, or somebody else in Nelson, was not content with this celebration, and a pamphlet was published showing the record of these New Hampshire soldiers. Easy enough to do, for there were only 124 of them. Nelson, though, had given its best, its young men and its old ones, and there were husbands, fathers, and maybe grandfathers in that list. It would take a very hardened and callous man to read that record without feeling some emotions that perhaps have gone out of date in this era of pacifism and supermorality, when "My Country, 'Tis of Thee" has been replaced by "I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Soldier." "Born in Nelson" is the brief sentence appended to almost all of these biographies. There was one man not with a Yankee name; he came from Patagonia, of all places in the world, and his name was Castone. Nelson is rather proud of him; he was its foreigner. "He was not very strong, "but he could knock men down as fast "as they came to him till he had them "in a pile," says Olin N. Wardwell, his camp "buddy," who writes a few regrettably brief lines about him for the record.

Even Castone "enlisted from Nelson." There was a boy from Harrisville, but he ran away from home so that he could enlist, being under the legal age, and picked Nelson out as a place where nobody would know him. Andrew Jackson Beal his name was; the Confederates added him to their bag when they took Harpers Ferry in 1862, but the boy was exchanged or escaped, for he stayed in the army, was promoted, and was not mustered out until two months after the war was over.

"Born in Nelson" is true, too, of Thaddeus Angelo Barker, not a warrior but a musician. Still, guns go off just the same when musicians are advancing at the head of their companies, and there was a day in the Wilderness when they ordered Thaddeus Angelo Barker to the operating table. He would not go; he lay there in the scrub-oak all day long with his broken hand in a brook, and after all did not lose it. "But it was never of much use;" a right hand, much needed by a musician. There was Granville S Derby, "born in Nelson," who was one of the men who ran down Cemetery Ridge after Pickett's lines collapsed and chased the Confederates across the stricken valley. Something a little apologetic has to be said about Joseph N. Day; he was not "born in Nelson," he was an alien from Massachusetts, but he had taken the curse off by living in Nelson "for many years." He was shot and severely wounded the day that Sheridan made that celebrated ride to Cedar Creek.

Sergeant Partridge was shot one day in September, 1864, and Private J. F. Foster, "enlisted from Nelson," happened to be "near by;" so he "took hold of him to give him a lift," he says. Giving the Sergeant a lift was dangerous, and the Confederates came across the field and took Foster prisoner. Foster tells of it without any emotion or any apparent comprehension that there was anything out of the ordinary about this lift-giving; he is mainly concerned about the fact that the Confederates took away his new hat and gave him in exchange "an old one, alive with vermin." It is too bad that Foster was not born in Nelson; he seems to be a Nelson kind of man; he fought at South Mountain, Antietam, Fredericksburg, the Wilderness, Spottsylvania, Bethesda Church, Cold Harbor, The Mine, the Weldon Railroad, and Poplar Grove Church.

Grave, serious-minded men they were. When the Sumter news came to Nelson George G. Hardy turned to Edwin P. Hunt and said, "One of us will have to go." There was nothing light-minded about the way Nelson went into the war with its 124 men. Hunt was the first man to enlist from Nelson; he was young, but Hardy was middle-aged and married. Hardy went, just the same, and died in the field.

Off with your hat as the flag goes by!
  Uncover the youngster's head.
Teach him to hold it holy and high
  For the sake of its sacred dead.

And, in an era of mush and intellectual perversion, there still must be some left who can take off their hats to Nelson.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A Practice Old and Widespread.

"Hazing of all kinds is to be ended at the Naval Academy," writes Secretary Daniels in the statement announcing the dismissal on his recommendation by the President of five midshipmen, and the lighter, but still severe, punishment of twenty others.

As these boys had all been guilty of violating, as deliberately as boys do anything, what they perfectly well knew were the laws of the land not less than the regulations of the school where they were getting an excellent education at public expense, the penalties imposed upon them cannot be criticised as either excessive or unjust. It is not quite so clear, however, that the action taken was either necessary or wise, and it is far from certain that the Secretary's purpose can be achieved in this way, or any other short of putting out, and keeping out, of the Academy all boys likely to prove useful as naval officers.

"Hazing of all kinds" is an expression so broad that it includes a vast number of acts, ranging from murder and torture down or up to harmless jests in which normal boys always have indulged and always will, whenever assembled in groups of any size. Anybody who has been to college knows that not all hazing is of the same moral quality—that some of it is criminal, some cowardly, and some mere play, harmless or even beneficial to all concerned. To draw a line between decent and indecent hazing is not easy, but it is no more difficult than in many other cases where use and abuse are the two halves or possibilities of a single entity.

It must be remembered, too, that the hazing instinct or impulse is by no means confined to schoolboys and undergraduates. It is characteristic of the whole of humanity, and in one or another form and degree it manifests itself wherever and whenever experience and wontedness give, as they invariably do, a sense of superiority over the newcomer, the stranger. A "folkway" as old and as widespread as this should not be hastily condemned as either wicked or useless, and he assumes an almost hopeless task who undertakes its ending. To regulation and limitation, however, there is no bar; they are both proper and practicable. And to many it seems as though they were enough.

Men Are Learning to Teach!

Attention is called by The Knickerbocker Press of Albany to a recent and rapid increase in the relative number of male students at the State College for Teachers. Only a few years ago the women had there a majority so great that the few men were the objects of amused, almost derisive, comment. Last year, however, there were 88 of the intruders on the domain once almost exclusively in feminine possession, and this year the women are for the first time in the minority, there being only 124 of them to 131 men.

This change The Knickerbocker Press evidently believes to be in some way important, but it hazards in explanation only the suggestion that "the passion to enter the commercial life has lost some of its force." Possibly that is true, but other indications of such a wane are wanting, or at least they are not obvious.

An alternative theory of the phenomenon would be that there are not now, and are not going to be, more men teachers than formerly, but teaching has come to be a more highly specialized profession than it was in the past, and men now realize, as women did some time ago, that competence and success in it are dependent on adequate preparation for meeting its peculiar demands.

A pessimistic or discouraged observer of the times might go still further and deeper for his solution of the problem. He might see, or think he saw, in the increased number of men who deliberately devote themselves to teaching as a life work and carefully prepare for it another alarming hint of social deterioration—of fear to enter the sterner conflicts in broader arenas. In short, he might view it as a lamentable corollary of the lamentable fact that considerable numbers of collegiate undergraduates are joining peace-at-any-price societies instead of seeking high and perilous adventure, as youth should, and are making "safety first" the miserable motive of their exertions, the miserable limit of their ambitions.

Relevant to this discussion, perhaps, is the ancient apothegm, "he who can, does—he who can't, teaches." That saying approaches truth as nearly as do most broad generalizations, and no nearer, but it is a fact that the man who enters—and stays in—the "noble" profession of teaching always has been and apparently always will be, justly or not, regarded more or less askance by all of his neighbors.

Breach of Promise to Marry.

Whenever a suit for breach of promise happens to gain prominence in the news of the day there revives, at least in some commentators on current events, the temptation to protest anew against the existence of laws making litigation of this sort possible.

Of course women of sensibilities at all delicate have rarely brought actions for "damages" thus suffered. The damage may be real, but it is incommensurable with money and self-respect revolts from the thought of enforcing in the courts an agreement the very essence of which is agreement fully shared. And as it is of most dubious public advantage that there should be marriages not willingly and gladly entered by both parties, there is probably as little justification for the law to penalize a change of mind by either as there would be for it to compel the fulfilling of a marriage promise once made.

The latter error, of course, the law does not commit directly, but it goes some ways toward doing so indirectly by making it dangerous to revise an intention or desire to marry that once has been expressed with an approach to formality. Of course, when a promise to marry has been used merely as a device for the attainment of ends in one or another way evil or dishonest, it is the right and even the obligation of the law to offer a remedy, but in every such case the action could have a different title and should.

By no means all breach of promise suits come in the category of blackmail. That a good many of them do is to be learned from any lawyer, and most lawyers can, if they choose, tell of many instances where the mere threat of a suit has resulted in the purchase of silence, not infrequently when there was nothing truthful to tell. Men seem to be more afraid of ridicule than women are—a fact that explains not only why almost never do they bring themselves a suit for breach of promise, though they have at least as many excuses for doing so as women do, but also why even when no promise has been made they will sometimes pay.

Taking Movies.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As a brother director of motion pictures, I would like to be permitted to say a word in reply to the letter from Ashley Miller. I strenuously object to his assertion that general discourtesy is shown by artists and directors to the ladies and gentlemen who so kindly give the use of their grounds for motion picture purposes. There may be one or two isolated cases of the abuse of such kindness, but I for one am quite sure that it is not general. I have had the privilege of taking pictures on some of the finest estates in this country and in France and England, and I have never seen anything such as Mr. Miller depicts. It would seem to me that Mr. Miller's suggestion that a Directors' Mutual Defense League be formed for the preservation of beautiful estates has about it a touch of the ludicrous.

Ideas Alike.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have noticed the claims of Professor Parker, Mr. Chandler, and others to the proposals of "baby submarines," "skimming dishes," and so on.

Many years ago I sent through the British Colonial office to the Governor of New Zealand a far more simple and efficient arrangement, and it was acknowledged by both, as also letters sent to the King about the time the war broke out. The idea was also communicated to Earl Gray, then Governor General of Canada, and later to the British Embassy at Washington. I was not looking for any reward, did not propose any patents or other means of profit, and as the fundamental idea would have required some years of preparation, no proper notice was taken of it. That does not matter. It is certain that if proper means of the kind were taken, no hostile fleet could reach within battering distance of a shore.

JAMES MacPHERSON.

WASHINGTON—AND AFTER.

Home! and some tired, I'll allow—
  Sort of a buzz in my head!
I've got the old army grit,
  Neighbor, or else I'd be dead!

Marched? With the best of them, yes!
  Just as I did at Seven Oaks!
Say! when I think of that line,
  Somethin' right here kind o' chokes!

Me! keepin' step through them streets,
  After th' years that's gone by!
Me! once in army blue brave,
  Broad-shouldered, quick, keen of eye!

Seemed like the ghost of myself,
  Marchin' with more shadders there!
Just sort o' comradin' on—
  Not mindin' how long, or where!

Then came the word, an' we knew
  Wilson was watchin' our line!
If we wuz feeble or stiff,
  None of us gave any sign!

We just briskened up like young sprigs—
  Walked right along with new vim.
Felt that our swing an' our style
  Must seem consolin' t' him!

He an' this Nation well know—
  Though some wild talk has been said—
If he but needed t' call,
  Others would march where we led!

THE WORSHIP OF UGLINESS.

An Academician's Protest Against the Perverse Ways of Modern Art.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A letter appearing in your columns today from L. Govett calls attention to the neglect of our art schools in not emphasizing in their curriculum that branch of art cultivation embraced in aesthetics. His criticism seems to me both timely and just. For several years past it has been borne in upon me that the graduates from our best art schools were seriously lacking in those higher moral and intellectual qualities the development of which should have been as carefully nurtured as the technical facility of the hand and the eye.

Authoritative guidance is unquestionably lacking in all of our art schools. The dignity of the Royal Academy, and the high respect in which the Directors of the Ecole Nationale des Beaux-Arts are held, has a restraining influence upon the student, which saves him from being led astray into the hopeless paths of so-called "Modernism" or "Art Nouveau" that have shipwrecked so many men of talent. In view of the pernicious and monstrous developments, or rather perversions, which the misguided schools of painting and sculpture have undergone in recent years, it would seem to me right at this moment that our serious art schools, such as those of our Academy of Design and Art Students' League, should establish courses of aesthetics which the students in all the departments should be required to attend. In other words, classes where good and bad taste should be demonstrated, where beauty and grace should be defined, in contradistinction to the ugly. In past years art students were required to study the antique. Insensibly they absorbed from the contemplation of the Greek a sense of proportion that was beautiful, of refinement, of grace which became a part of their artistic equipment, and unconsciously their works were always tinctured by the great art of the past.

I am aware that this recommendation will not meet with the welcome of the present-day art student. He wishes his freedom from the "academic," "to paint the thing as he sees it"; and as he realizes that to "épater" the public is one of the short roads to prominence, he selects an instructor who does not require much drawing and teaches that to be strong is to be brutal. In this regard, will you permit me to translate from a discourse of M. Bonnat which appeared in a recent number of La Renaissance? "It is of little consequence," he says, "that the jesters have launched their sarcasms from the depths of their own incapacity. We esteem that we have done our duty to our pupils in transmitting to their hands the torch (flambeau) that we received from our predecessors—drawing and the study of form—no other path to eternal beauty. From the art of antiquity to the art of our own time in traversing all the great periods of the Gothic, the Primitives, both French and Flemish, through the wonders of the Italian Renaissance * * * it is only by the study of form, and the purity of drawing, that humanity has been enriched by countless chefs d'oeuvre. It has been necessary to descend to our own time to see these principles denied. And by whom? By the Cubists and the Futurists!" These are the words by M. Léon Bonnat, who, since 1905 is the Director of the Ecole Nationale Supérieure des Beaux-Arts de France, and who, for twenty-five years preceding, was Professor (Chef d'Atelier) and who has the great honor of being a member of the Superior Council of the Legion of Honor.

I cannot disassociate in my own mind the monstrous aberration of Germany in the present war with this awful development in my own profession. Some two years ago, in a picture dealer's shop in Paris, Vollard by name, I was horrified to find the entire collection composed of the most extreme works of the Cubists, Futurists, Pointillists, and all the insane schools of mental maniacs. I remarked to the dealer my horror and asked if he ever sold them. Raising his shoulders he replied, "I take three carloads of them to Germany every Spring and Fall and sell every one."

The Indian's Unpatriotism.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The difficulty of arousing a widespread sentiment of genuine sincerity in the effort put forth by the Society of American Indians to stimulate a national feeling among the remnants of the genuine American race seems to lie in the unfortunate lack of any real patriotic feeling among the Indians themselves. President Coolidge's eulogistic remarks, referred to in your editorial today, of their heroic struggle for homes, family, and country, would find a readier response could sufficient evidences of national patriotism be discovered among the early and badly afflicted tribes. Patriotism of this character was what the Indians lacked and it contributed fatally to their gradual extinction. The redoubtable Six Nations of New York State present one of the best examples of the recognition of national unity in our Indian history, but even here it was more of a local than a national patriotism. The various tribes of the famous Algonquin stock were by no means united.

The Indians have suffered much at the hands of the white men, and, while in agreement with your views that a holiday will hardly help the national Indian sentiment at the present day, the aim of the society is surely worthy of encouragement in recalling the virtues and hardships of the red race, combined with the effort to give the remaining Indians in our country the humane treatment which they deserve.

Mrs. Harper Reiterates.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In The Times this morning Mrs. Mary Adams Maynard calls me to task for quoting in my answer to Judge Cullen's article a sentence from it that the working women's need of the ballot "is so evident as to make discussion superfluous." She says there is no such sentence in Judge Cullen's article, and that she calls attention to it "simply to show the usual inaccuracy of suffrage statements."

In this case the inaccuracy is on the other side. The quotation marks around the sentence are Mrs. Maynard's, not mine, and they do not appear in my answer to Judge Cullen. I said: "He wisely sidesteps the demand of working women for the ballot, dismisses it with a sentence. Their need of it is so evident as to make discussion superfluous. He also shows discretion, &c."

How to Hire Men.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I wish to call attention to the third degree methods used by a certain employment bureau. The searchlight effect is intended to bewilder the applicant, and usually does. As soon as you enter the room the "chief detective" snaps, "Waddeyewant?" and if you don't sink through the floor with an humble "Yes, Sir" look on your face you have no chance whatever. Employers will some day learn that the way to get good men is not by such browbeating tactics, but by a man-to-man talk; and the sooner they realize this the better.

DRAWING GERMANY'S SUBMARINE NAVY.

Defensive Methods by Which the Anglo-French Military Ferry Has Been Made Immune May Now Become Offensive.

By J. S. RENDY.

New York, Oct. 2, 1915.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As an offensive weapon, the German submarine has been a failure. The German Government knows it has been a failure, and the truth is percolating gradually among the people. Captain Persius, writing in the Berliner Tageblatt of Sept. 9, says that submarines, "even if they are developed in far more perfect form than now, will hardly suffice of themselves alone. Their supporting bases at least must be safeguarded." What does he mean when he speaks of the necessity of safeguarding the "supporting bases"?

Since the war broke out, and particularly since the declaration made last February by the German Government of its intention to push the activities of undersea boats to their limit, the British Admiralty has been deluged with suggestions for coping with the new menace. It was this fact, among others, which led to the establishment of the Inventions Board, headed by Admiral Lord Fisher.

Looking at the geographical aspects of the Anglo-German situation from the point of view of naval strategy, the outstanding features are the shortness of the western German coast line, and its configuration. Two hundred miles in length, of crescent shape, with the Island of Heligoland floating like a star in front of it and watching "with eternal lids apart" the coast defenses of the empire; it seems as if nature had reared this prototype of the Ottoman flag to flout defiance before the threshold of England.

The German coast line seems to nestle in to the land. It is hispid with fortifications and Grusoh batteries. Hitherto it has been unassailable. Not one hostile shot has reached it from over the waters, and recent operations at the Dardanelles make it sufficiently clear why this is so. On the other hand, as a nautical base for the evolution of naval strategy, its offensive value is low. Weak in offense, in defense it is immensely strong. It is like a hedgehog balled. And in the tensity of this situation was conceived the policy of submarine frightfulness.

Take a look at the map and ask yourself where could German submarines do most damage to the naval and military interests of England and France with the least expenditure of energy. Plainly, in the Strait of Dover, which is only a couple of hundred miles away from the Kiel Canal, and across which run the arteries to the British Army in France. How much activity have the German undersea boats ever shown in the strait? How much damage have they done in that vicinity in, say, the last three months? None. Why? Because the Strait of Dover, whether from the north or from the south, is impassable to the German submarine.

Assuming this to be true, and assuming also that the North Channel, which separates the northeast of Ireland from the southwest coast of Scotland, also has been made similarly impervious, it is clear that enemy submarine boats desiring to operate in the transatlantic steamship lanes, or in the paths of any of the big transmarine lines, must twice circumnavigate the whole of the British Isles in arriving at and returning from the allotted fields of their activities. This makes an average journey of well above 3,000 miles, which is a tremenmendous handicap on their efficiency in their respective spheres of action.

The question arises now as to what means have been taken by the British Admiralty to stop the passage of hostile submarine craft through the Strait of Dover. From information gathered the writer has inferred that there are at least two, and probably more, varieties of lines of defense. Before going more fully into this point it may be taken for granted that a line of defense, if it is a long one, and if it is intended to be permanent, must run through shallow waters in order to have suitable anchorage.

Now take a glance at a hydrographic chart of the waters surrounding the British Isles. Take a line running due east from the northeast of England to the northernmost part of the German coast. This line is 400 miles long, approximately, and 55 degrees north. The maximum depth along that line is fifty fathoms, at a point thirty miles off the English coast, and the mean depth about twenty-five fathoms. Nowhere in the North Sea south of that line is there a greater depth than forty-five fathoms, and the mean depth south of that line is about twenty fathoms. As for the waters off the German coast the depth is well below the mean, a fact which is best illustrated by saying that if either the Vaterland or the Imperator of the Hamburg-American Line were to go down anywhere within fifty or sixty miles of the German coast, nowhere would the funnels be submerged, and in most places the superstructure and main deck would be awash.

The Strait of Dover is very shallow, the mean depth being about fifteen fathoms, while there are many shoals where soundings range from three to ten fathoms. Any one who closely examines the chart can see that the navigation of the strait could easily be made impossible for submarines. But this of itself would not be sufficient.

The writer has been assured that long ago the British Admiralty threw a permanent line of defense from a point north of the Thames, running southeast in the vicinity of the Goodwin Sands, to a point not far from Dunkirk. This is the northern line of defense. The southern line is south and west in the English Channel. These two lines afford protection for the great seaports on the southern coast of England and the north coast of France, including London, Southampton, Plymouth, Calais, Boulogne, Dieppe, Havre, and Cherbourg. In this connection the significance of the statement made a few days ago by the French Ministry of Marine cannot be overestimated. It was in part: "All necessary precautions were taken long ago against the aggressions of German submarines. The measures taken against them in the English Channel are so efficacious that they may be expected to be sufficient."

Of the elaborate and intricate precautions and system for insuring the safety of ships in zones which cannot so readily be circumscribed nothing more need be said than to point out that the measures adopted have coped extremely well with the menace of the underwater boat. Their adequacy is realized more fully when it is remembered that the British Navy in home waters has for a long time past been immune from attack, and that of all the ships leaving the various ports of this country laden to the Plimsoll line with ammunition and necessaries of war not one of any importance, except the Lusitania, has been sunk on the east-bound passage.

Still, the phantom presence of the diving boat continues to haunt British waters. Coastwise vessels and trawlers innumerable are being sent to the bottom. As many as 50,000 tons of good ships have been sunk in a few days. The percentage of losses is small, it is true, but the total is considerable. Does Great Britain regard that total as being sufficient to urge her to use her utmost efforts to free the seas almost entirely of the submarine? The writer has been assured that this is so, and that she already has set out to achieve this object, and also to attempt the accomplishment of another design, both ambitious and far-reaching, and of great moment to the naval and military interests of the allied forces. But of that nothing need be said now.

It is the northern defense line of the Strait of Dover and its possible development to which attention now should be particularly directed.

A defense line, whether on land or sea, if pushed toward enemy territory, ceases to be defensive merely; it becomes offensive. Granting there exists such a line as has been called the northern defense line of the Strait of Dover, it will readily be seen that if that line could be pushed forward gradually north and east it would hamper more and more the free movement of hostile underwater boats. And if that line could be thrown forward until it stretched in front of the whole German coast, it would prevent effectively the exit or entrance of German submarines from or to the west coast of Germany, and German submarine operations outside the Baltic would practically cease.

The writer knows that it is believed by naval authorities that the British Admiralty has this end in view:

The northern defense line already referred to is to be pushed forward toward the coast of Germany till it stretches from the coast of England to a point outside the territorial waters of Denmark, then south to a few miles west of Heligoland, and from there, passing outside the territorial waters of Holland, to a place near Dunkirk.

How could Germany check the advance of this line? Not by submarine attack, for it is a defense line against submarines. Anchored below, and floating at or near the surface, to be attacked by a submarine, the underwater boat would have to come to the surface, where it would surely fall a victim to the destroyer patrol operating within the protected area. Besides, the line itself is so constructed that submarines cannot easily injure it. The only way Germany could stop the slow, but sure, advance would be by sending out her ships to attack it, but that would mean a naval engagement, which is exactly what Great Britain wants.

THE RADIO PIONEERS.

Some Men Whose Contributions Should Not Be Overshadowed.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have read the highly interesting reports which have appeared in The Times describing the radio (wireless) telephonic experiments carried on over great distances by the American Telephone and Telegraph Company, using for the transmitting station one belonging to the United States Navy. Without desiring to disparage in the least the undoubtedly earnest and intelligent engineering work which has resulted in the accomplishment of this particular achievement, I feel strongly that less than due credit has been given to the many and eminent radio engineers who have done previous research work in this field, and without whose work the results just obtained would have been completely unattainable.

I have been credibly informed that what are known as oscillating gas valves have been used for generating and controlling the power used in this work. While I cannot hope to gauge the relative importance of the contributions of all the previous inventors, I certainly believe that the following gentlemen are entitled to much more than a curt dismissal of their claims and ignoring of all they have contributed to our knowledge of the oscillating gas valves. I refer to Edwin Armstrong of Columbia University, Dr. Lee De Forest, (under some of whose patents the American Telephone and Telegraph Company is already licensed,) Professor Fleming of London University, (one of the early workers in this field,) Peter Cooper Hewitt, Dr. Irving Langmuir of the General Electric Company, Dr. Meissner of the Telefunken Company, Professor George Pierce of Harvard University, H. J. Round of the English Marconi Company, Dr. Reisz and his associate, von Lieben, of the Telefunken Company, and Mr. Weagant of the American Marconi Company. Three of these gentlemen, Messrs. De Forest, Armstrong, and Langmuir, have in the order named made the results of their researches public in the "Proceedings of the Institute of Radio Engineers," and the interesting and important information which they gave has thus become available.

It is impossible for me to apportion credit for the present achievement suitably among all the gentlemen mentioned, but it is quite certain that their united contributions to radio telephony have made the Arlington-Hawaii transmission possible. It is their due to receive credit for what they have done. It is not just that the commercial organizations involved should receive full public credit and the originating engineers be hidden by enforced anonymity. It is certainly to be hoped and expected that they will receive at least the mention which they have earned.

Two Families in Need.

The Brooklyn Bureau of Charities, 69 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn, appeals for help for two families, both in urgent and genuine need.

As soon as Mr. D. became unable to work longer and was sent to a hospital for consumptives, his wife bravely faced the task of supporting their seven children, the youngest a mere baby of 2 years. From morning till night she toils at day's work and sewing, but the most she can earn is $7 a week. Can you imagine her pathetic efforts to make this amount cover food, rent, coal, and the necessities of life for a family of nine? The Bureau of Charities answered her call for help, relieved the immediate wants of the family, and is now trying to raise a fund of $100 which will allow the mother a weekly pension of $3.50. This, together with the $1.50 a week given by the church, will make an income of $12, which amount the Bureau estimates is the smallest that will support the family. Gifts toward this fund will be welcomed, and should be mailed to the bureau marked for "0236 T."

With father dead and mother in first stages of tuberculosis, the future of little six-year old Jimmie M. and his three sisters is uncertain. In order to save this mother for her children the Bureau af Charities has had her give up part of her laborious work and is trying to build up her strength. A fund of $100 is needed to allow a weekly pension for food and rent. Gifts toward this amount should be mailed to the bureau marked for "0237 T."

The bureau acknowledges with thanks the following contributions received from contributors who could not be reached by mail: Appeal 0234, M. E. M., $2; A. and B., $2; G. N. B., $1; F. H. C., $1; H., $5; J. B., $1; Cash Anon., $1; Cash Anon., 35 cents. Appeal 0235 T, Cash Anon., $1; Cash Anon., $1; Cash Anon., $1; Cash, C. C., $1; A. V., Troy, N. Y., $1; 0235 BT, Cash, Soyal C., $1; 0235 E. G. R. H., 50 cents; 0228 and 0229, from a friend in Southald, $2; 0235, from a friend, $25.

MILLS URGES GOOD IN THE CONSTITUTION

Doesn't Think That One Objectionable Provision Should Cause Its Rejection.

ANSWERS EX-JUDGE CULLEN

United Real Estate Owners Criticise Two Provisions—Labor Leaders Confer in Albany.

State Senator Ogden L. Mills deplored what he believed to be a lack of public interest in the principles of government involved in a consideration of the new constitutional amendments in a speech which he delivered yesterday afternoon at the Twenty-third Street Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association.

"We are more interested in personalities and individual struggles," he said, "than in the important principles to be passed upon next election day."

He considered the most important change of those proposed, he said, the provision for the consolidation of the 152 administrative departments and bureaus, which now exist, into 17 large departments, the heads of which would be appointed and removed by the Governor without the consent of the Senate.

"Efficiency is not made by a system of files and card indexes," he declared. "You get efficiency when you give a man authority and make him responsible.

"If the proposed amendments are adopted," he said in conclusion, "they will give the people of New York State a form of government better than they have ever had. The proposed new Constitution will do much more than this; it will give to the people of the United States a model form of government which they can afford to follow for the welfare of all."

After his speech Senator Mills was asked what he had to say of ex-Judge Cullen's criticism that the proposed Constitution did not guarantee to the citizens of the State the privilege to be tried by civil courts, when such existed, in time of invasion, insurrection, rebellion, or riot, which omission Judge Cullen believed to be especially dangerous to the laborer in time of strikes. Senator Mills replied:

"I have not had an opportunity to read Judge Cullen's article, but as a general proposition I think it very unfortunate if, because a man happens to disagree with any particular provision he should reject the Constitution as a whole, and advise others to do so. It is impossible that any one should agree with every provision, whole, it is a movement in the right direction.

No Comment from Whitman.

Governor Whitman, who was stopping at the Hotel St. Regis yesterday, was also asked what he thought about Judge Cullen's attack. He declined to comment, saying he had not yet had time to digest it.

"The Executive Committee of the Civil Service Reform Association has issued a statement approving of the proposed changes, and making a special plea for its adoption because of the advance which it makes in favor of civil service reform. It says:

"The inclusion of the State Civil Service Commission as a constitutional body is a recognition of the importance of the work of the Commissioners, upon whom devolve the responsibility for an honest administration of the merit system. It no longer can be said that the Civil Service Commission is a subordinate branch of the Government, to be reorganized with each revolution of the political wheel. Instead of being made the subject of political manipulation there is now the opportunity to lay the foundation for a real advance in the administration of the competitive system. Continuity of administration is preserved by the overlapping term feature. There will always be at least two experienced persons on the commission. The Commissioners remain, however, properly within the reach of the people, as members of the commission are subject to removal 'for cause,' and have an opportunity to be heard in their own defense."

Real Estate Owners Object.

Stewart Browne, President of the United Real Estate Owners' Association, yesterday said the association was making a thorough study of the proposed Constitution and would later announce its position. In the meantime he made, on behalf of the association, two criticisms on the instrument.

The first was that, while the present Constitution makes $1,000,000 the maximum which the State Controller can borrow in anticipation of taxes, the proposed Constitution fixes no maximum. Mr. Browne said it left it uncertain whether the Controller could borrow at all in anticipation of taxes or whether he could so borrow without limit.

Mr. Browne also said that, while the present Constitution exempted for all time from the city debt, in calculating the legal 10 per cent. maximum debt limit, all bonded indebtedness at that time existing (1894) in excess of the 10 per cent. maximum debt limit, the Constitutional Convention had adopted the same section without adding the words "existing prior to 1894."

The effect of this, he said, was that the $160,000,000 dual subway system bonds and about $30,000,000 bonds on improvements, only partly self-sustaining, are exempted in calculating the future debt limit.

Labor May Fight Constitution.

Labor leaders of the State will meet in Albany today to plan a campaign against provisions of the proposed Constitution which they regard as unfavorable to labor, foremost of which is the provision which would increase the power of military tribunals in handling strikes. Union officials say that their sentiments are well expressed by ex-Chief Judge of the Court of Appeals Edgar M. Cullen, who has called the provision an invasion of the powers of civil courts.

Several well-known labor leaders have declared they will oppose the proposed Constitution as a whole, but Corresponding Secretary Ernest Bohm of the Central Federated Union of this city said last night before leaving for Albany that the conference might declare against only those provisions regarded as harmful to the interests of organized labor.

"Before Judge Cullen advocated the defeat of the extension of the jurisdiction of military courts, labor leaders had planned a fight on this provision as a great menace to the rights of organized toilers," he said. "It is an echo of the controversy between unions and reactionary interests, which wish to destroy them. We expect former Governor Glynn to help us defeat this proposed change. The conference tomorrow will point out the sections of the proposed Constitution the labor leaders regard as hostile to labor, and will inaugurate a State-wide campaign to beat them."

President Holland of the New York State Federation of Labor said he believed more than one section of the proposed Constitution had been aimed directly against organized labor and that he would start campaigns in all parts of the State to defeat amendments he regarded as harmful to labor.

NOTED BANDS HEARD.

Creatore and Sousa Give Sunday Night Concerts.

New York had many band concerts yesterday. In the Standard Theatre Giuseppe Creatore and his band gave concerts both afternoon and night, while at night in the Hippodrome John Philip Sousa conducted his band in the first of a series of concerts to be given Sunday nights in the big playhouse during the Winter.

The programs of all three concerts contained compositions by the conductors and classical selections. Miss Grace Hoffman, soprano; Miss Florence Hardeman, violinist, and Herbert L. Clarke, cornetist, were the soloists with Mr. Sousa's organization, while Mme. Emilia Bernabo sang with Creatore's musicians.

CARDINAL'S NIECE TO WED.

Miss Farley Will Be the Bride of Charles G. Coster.

The marriage of Miss Mary Teresa Farley, a niece of Cardinal Farley, and Charles George Coster of New York will take place on Thursday, Oct. 14, in the Church of Our Lady of Victory, Throop Avenue, Brooklyn, and Cardinal Farley, assisted by the Rev. John Howlin Farley, a brother of the bride, will officiate.

The bride, who is a daughter of Mrs. Edward Farley of 104 McDonough Street, Brooklyn, will have her brother, Edward Farley, give her in marriage, and her attendants are to be Miss Mary Farrens and Miss Gertrude Leavy as bridesmaids and a cousin, Miss Marie Potts, as maid of honor.

Mr. Coster, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Coster of 64 WestNinety-fourth Street, will have J. Stanhope Coster, a brother, as his best man, and the ushers are to be J. Champion Farley and Gardiner Conroy of Brooklyn, John W. Clancy, and Henry J. Thellusson of New York.

WEDDING OF MISS PIGOT.

Brooklyn Girl to be Bride of Thomas Nolan on Oct. 20.

Marie Pigot, a daughter of Augustus Pigot of Brooklyn, will be married to Thomas Nolan of New Orleans on Oct. 20 in St. Joseph's Church, Pacific Street, Brooklyn. The wedding will be followed by a reception at the bride's home, 132 St. Mark's Avenue.

Miss Adele Pigot, a sister of the bride, is to be the maid of honor, and the bridesmaids are to be the Misses Marie Mallon, Grace and May Furey, and Elizabeth McGrath of New York. Mr. Nolan will have Joseph Worrell of New Orleans as best man, and the ushers are to be Ernest Hessman of New York, Alfred Farrell and Raymond and Jay Pigot, brothers of the bride.

Pennoyer Joins London Embassy.

Richard Pennoyer, a member of the United States Diplomatic Corps, sailed yesterday on the St. Paul to become Second Secretary to Ambassador Walter Hines Page in London. Mr. Pennoyer has been in the State Department offices at Washington the last year, and previous to that was attached to the South American branch of the service. On his departure from Washington he was entertained at dinner by Sir Cecil Spring Rice, the British Ambassador, and the other members of the British Embassy.

Partridge-Bridewell Wedding.

The wedding of Miss Jeannette Bridewell, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Bridewell of Flatbush, and Raymond M. Partridge of 106 Eighth Avenue, Brooklyn, is set for 8 o'clock Wednesday evening, Oct. 27, in St. Paul's Church, Flatbush, and the reception will be held at the bride's home, 676 East Twenty-first Street.

Engagements Announced.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Catherine Louise Terry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Appleton Terry, to Rev. William Neely Ross, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. Ogden Ross. Miss Terry is a graduate of Bryn Mawr College, Class of 1912, and has studied for the past two years with Miss Ebele, the sculptor. Mr. Ross was graduated from Columbia in 1911 and Union Theological Seminary in 1915. Shortly before his graduation he was called to the pastorate of the Chelsea Presbyterian Church, New York City.

Miss Madeline C. Denison, a daughter of Charles H. Denison of 1,015 East Fifteenth Street, Brooklyn, has become engaged to Charles Demerle Jenkins of Baltimore, Md. The wedding is to take place early this Winter.

Miss Marjorie Walbridge Brown, a daughter of Mrs. Howard McWilliams of Plainfield, N. J., by her first husband, is to wed Kenneth Hamilton Condit, a son of Colonel Oscar H. Condit of East Orange, N. J. Mr. Condit is an instructor at Princeton.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Angela Sause, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Edmond J. Sause, and Dr. John G. Williams, formerly of Branford, Canada, now of Brooklyn, and connected with St. Mary's Hospital. The wedding will take place in November, but the date has not been set. Miss Sause, whose home is at 481 Fourth Street, Brooklyn, is a niece of Miss Hannah M. Sause and a sister of Miss Mary Sause and Edmond F. and David M. Sause.

An engagement just announced in Detroit and of much interest in New York and Brooklyn is that of Phelps Newberry, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Truman H. Newberry (Miss Hattie Barnes) and Miss Crestina Van Husan, a daughter of Mrs. C. M. Van Husan of Detroit. Mr. Newberry is a grandson of the late Colonel Alfred C. Barnes of Brooklyn of the publishing house of A. S. Barnes & Co., and has many relatives in Brooklyn and this city. His brother, Barnes Newberry, married a short time ago Miss Elizabeth Goddard Binney of Providence, R. I., and his sister, Miss Carol Newberry, married Frank Brooks. The date for the wedding has not been announced.

HITCHCOCK AND FOY LOST IN THE MOVIES

Film Gives Comedians Little Chance to Display the Qualities That Won Them Fame.

"THE COWARD" WINS FAVOR

Southern Life in War Times Well Portrayed at the Knickerbocker—"Zaza" at the Strand.

Two serious and two comic pictures make up the second Triangle program, shown for the first time yesterday afternoon in the Knickerbocker Theatre. Each is an excellent example of the art of the cinema, and together they illustrate both the broad scope and the limitations of the new art.

The limitations seem to be more sharply defined in the comic pictures, for neither "Stolen Magic" nor "A Favorite Fool" is excruciatingly funny, while "Old Heidelberg" and "The Coward" unfold dramatic tales in a fairly engrossing manner. Raymond Hitchcock is the star of "Stolen Magic," and Eddie Foy and the numberless little Foys cavort in "A Favorite Fool."

When the silent nature of the moving picture is considered the problem of the director who produces a funny film becomes more apparent. Mr. Hitchcock in real life is exceedingly funny because of his facial expression, his voice, and his personality. On the screen he is entirely bereft of the second of these qualifications, and partially of the last-named. For, however much the movie-mad may protest, the flickering screen shadow is cold compared to the living presence. The author of the spoken play relies largely on dialogue for his humor, and this the screen comedy must do without.

Considering these manifold handicaps it is not strange that the dramatic pictures were far superior to the farcical ones. A kick properly adjusted, a hard fall into a rain barrel, or a glimpse of garments exposed to the public view only in shop windows is the plot of the unconventional scenario. Mr. Hitchcock and Mr. Foy were amusing when their pantomimic powers were disclosed in close-ups, but that was about the only opportunity they had to display their abilities. The movie directors have yet to distinguish the difference between vulgarity and humor.

John Emerson adapted Wilhelm Meyer-Forster's romantic melodrama, "Old Heidelberg," for the screen and produced it under the supervision of D. W. Griffith. It is not probable that many who saw the rich production of this play at the New Theatre will prefer the movie presentation, but the probabilities are that few who saw the former will witness the latter. The sentimental story of the Prince who loved the innkeeper's daughter lends itself well to screen exposition. Wallace Reid, who will be seen soon as the Don José in Geraldine Farrar's "Carmen" pictures, is attractive as the Prince. The Griffith touch is noticeable in some panoramic battle scenes.

Thomas H. Ince's picture, "The Coward," however, is the best of the new bill. It tells the story of a Southern lad, forced to join the Confederate ranks against his wishes, who deserts when beside himself with fear. But the blood of his ancestors finally regenerates him, and single handed, he routs the staff of Yankee officers in war council in the room below the attic where he has been hiding, steals their plans and turns defeat into victory.

Not only is the picture photographically excellent, but the atmosphere of the South has been preserved in the smallest details. And then it is cumulative in interest and quite dramatic. There is one scene in which the coward, turned hero, pursued on horseback, plunges from a narrow bridge into the stream below. It is a daring feat that draws an audible gasp from the audience. Frank Keenan gives one of his rugged characterizations of the fine old Southern father of the boy, although there is a bit too much of Mr. Keenan standing point-blank before the camera, turning his head slowly from left to right, breathing visibly the while.

In the Strand Theatre the beautiful Pauline Frederick was shown in a picture version of "Zaza." This was one of the films that underwent a baptism of flame in the fire that destroyed the studios of the Famous Players. It was in the vault and was left untouched.

Theda Bara, in a melodramatic picture entitled "Sin," was the feature shown in the Academy of Music. William E. Shay acted the principal man's rôle for the picture, which was taken in the studios of William Fox. "The Song of the Wage Slave" was the feature offering in the Eighty-first Street Theatre. "The Majesty of the Law," a picture designed to exhibit the capacity of George Fawcett for acting vigorous types, was projected in the Plaza Theatre.

Baby Born to Sallie Fisher.

Sallie Fisher, the musical comedy actress, who was last seen here in "Watch Your Step" at the New Amsterdam last Spring, is the mother of a baby girl born Saturday. In private life Miss Fisher is Mrs. Arthur Houghton. Mr. Houghton is also associated with the stage, being one of Charles Dillingham's managers. Young Miss Houghton has a little brother several years her senior.

London to See "Chin-Chin."

"Chin-Chin" is to be produced in London. Alfred Butt, director of the Palace, has completed arrangements with Charles Dillingham for the English rights to the musical comedy, and it will be presented in London about Dec. 1. In order to copy the Globe production as closely as possible, moving pictures of the performance will be taken and the musical numbers will be recorded on talking machine disks.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

"Behold Thy Wife" has been chosen as the title of the new play by William Harlowe Briggs which Henry W. Savage has accepted for production. Rehearsal has been called for next Monday under the direction of George Marion.

"Our Children," Louis Anspacher's comedy, which ended its engagement on Saturday night in Maxine Elliott's Theatre, may not leave New York. Negotiations are under way for another theatre and after several changes in cast, if present plans carry, the engagement will be resumed.

"Ill-Starred Babbie," a comedy by Will W. Whalen and Bartley Cushing, will have its first performance next Monday night at Lebanon, Penn. Later it will be offered in New York.

Donald McDonald and Bert Gilbert have been engaged by E. A. Weil for important roles in "A Bare Idea," a musical play in which Dorothy Arthur will be starred.

A new scene showing the launching of a dreadnought at the Brooklyn Navy Yard with the attendant crowds will be added to "Town Topics" at the Century tonight. Adelaide and Hughes's dance, "The Cat and the Canary," which was deleted after the dress rehearsal, will be given a place again in the revue.

The company that will be seen here later in Frank Mandel's farce, "Sherman Was Right," will go to Rochester today, where the first performance will be given on Wednesday night. Hale Hamilton, Sam Sidman, Ben Hendricks, Martin Alsop, Jeffrys Lewis, Georgie Laurence, and Ernest Cossart are among the principals.

About the time the "Carmen" picture, for which Geraldine Farrar acted makes its appearance at the Strand, another film, based on Prosper Merimee's immortal story will be shown. It is the result of a year's work in the studios of the Fox Film Corporation. Theda Bara acted the title rôle for this version.

SHAKESPEARE CELEBRATION

Many Clubs Make Plans for Tercentenary Anniversary.

Plans for the city-wide celebration of the ter-centennary anniversary of the death of Shakespeare are assuming definite shape. The celebration is being arranged by the New York City Shakespeare Committee, and among the bodies that will participate are the Drama League, the Players, the English Folk Dance Society, the Philharmonic and New York Symphony orchestras, and various schools and colleges of the city.

The celebration will begin with performances during the Winter of the plays of Shakespeare and other Elizabethan dramas in colleges, schools and clubs. It will culminate with the presentation by the Players of a community masque written by Percy MacKaye. This will be given on or about April 23, the anniversary day.

While these events are benig held in New York there will be similar celebrations in the larger cities of the country under the auspices of the Drama League. This organization hopes to present the masque at some of its other centres.

There will be special music programs and a prize will be given for the best composition on a Shakespearean subject. A series of morris and sword dance competitions and of English country dance balls will be held under the auspices of the English Folk Dance Society, organized recently to spread the knowledge of the dances of Shakespeare's time. Walter Damrosch of the New York Symphony and Josef Stransky of the Philharmonic have announced programs of music inspired by Shakespeare, and the libraries will place the scores and books dealing with the age so they will be easily accessible to their readers.

SPANISH COMPOSER COMING.

Enrique Granados to Hear Premiere of His Opera at the Metropolitan.

The Metropolitan Opera Company yesterday issued its prospectus for the coming season. Among the promises is the presence of Enrique Granados, the Spanish composer, for the premiere of his opera, "Goyesca," the first Spanish opera to be given at the Metropolitan. The new productions mentioned are Borodine's "Prince Igor" and a revival of Bizet's "Les Pecheurs de Perles."

The season will begin on Nov. 15 and will last twenty-four weeks, the first twenty to be devoted to opera and the remaining four to the productions of the Diaghileff Ballets Russes. The regular subscription performances will take place on Monday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings and Saturday afternoons. There will be a Saturday night series later in the season, an afternoon cycle of Wagner's "Der Ring des Nibelungen," some special performances of "Parsifal," and some special matinée performances of the novelties and certain other operas.

Among the new engagements not already mentioned is that of Jan Hythekke to be stage director for the German répertoire.

The new singers listed are Maria Barrientos, Ida Cajatti, Julia Heinrich, Edith Mason, Helen Warrum, and Erma Zarska, sopranos; Flora Perini, contralto; Giacomo Damacco, tenor; Giuseppe De Luca, baritone, and Pompilio Malatesta and Henri Scott, basses. Giuseppe Bonfiglio has been newly engaged as premier danseur.

The new conductors are Gaetano Bavagnoli and Arthur Bodansky.

WANTS ALIEN ACTORS TAXED

Wilton Lackaye Assails Rule Exempting Their Incomes Here.

When Wilton Lackaye goes to Washington next week he plans to visit the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and ask him why he made a ruling recently that foreign actors playing in America were to be exempted from paying an income tax, while native-born players must remit. Mr. Lackaye announced his intention at a meeting of the Woman's American Club, at which he was the principal speaker, last night in the Hotel Majestic. The motto of the club is "America for Americans," as Mrs. Beatrice Goldie, its President, announced, and this proved an excellent cue for Mr. Lackaye, who is never happier than when extending fists across the sea.

Mr. Lackaye said he did not object to artists of any country who had anything to teach us marketing their art here, but he did object to the class he termed "noisy adventurers who came to exploit America, get a hatful of money, and then return home to make fun of us."

When Mr. Lackaye assailed the Commissioner's ruling a murmur went up from the women and with the actor's instinct for the psychological exit Mr. Lackaye sat down. Then Mrs. Goldie read a copy of resolutions the club had sent to New York managers asking that they give preference to native players, and answers from several managers. Among the other speakers was Howard Kyle of the Actors' Equity Association.

COCKATOO A 'QUICK STUDY.'

Boy Wins an Engagement for His Pet in Cast of "Treasure Island."

A double-crested cockatoo that proved a quick study obtained the engagement for the rôle of Captain Flint in the forthcoming production of a dramatization of Robert Louis Stevenson's "Treasure Island" at the Punch and Judy Theatre. Charles Hopkins, who will produce the play in his little playhouse this month, advertised Saturday in THE NEW YORK TIMES for a parrot that could be taught quickly three words.

A clever youth who knew his "Treasure Island," with the mental agility of a stage detective, jumped to the conclusion that those words must be "Pieces of eight, pieces of eight," rehearsed his bird in those lines, and walked away with the engagement.

Broadhurst Play Tonight.

George Broadhurst's new play, "What Money Can't Buy," will be presented in the Forty-eighth Street Theatre on Tuesday night of next week. The first performance will be given tonight in Baltimore. The central rôle of the drama was written for George Fawcett, and it is said to provide him with excellent acting opportunities. His supporting company includes Anne Meredith, Sydney Shields, Edith Campbell Walker, Adelaide Russ Whytal, William B. Mack, Frank Kemble Cooper, Robert Cain, Calvin Thomas, and William Devereux.

Farewell to "Grumpy."

Cyril Maude will end his return engagement in "Grumpy" at the Empire on Saturday night, although the size of the audiences in the three weeks he has been there has indicated that he might stay indefinitely. When it was seen that notwithstanding the fact that the play was in its third year, its drawing powers were unimpaired, an effort was made to change Mr. Maude's bookings, but it was found impossible to substitute others for them, and he will begin his tour next week.

Tris Speaker in a New Role.

The audience at the Century saw a baseball hero in a new rôle last night. When Will Rogers had finished his performance with the lariat he led from the wings a man whom he introduced at Tris Speaker of the Red Sox. Mr. Speaker then proceeded to do some of Mr. Rogers's twists with the rope, with almost as much dexterity as the cowboy himself. The audience liked the idea of the player, who is to take part in the world's series, performing with a lariat and applauded enthusiastically.

MEN BURIED 6 DAYS FOUND ALIVE IN MINE

Workers Entombed in Pennsylvania Colliery Crawl to Top of Chute to Escape Drowning.

TWO DAYS WITHOUT FOOD

One Saved Dinner Pail When Crash Came, Preventing Starvation of Prisoners—All Will Recover.

LANSFORD, Penn., Oct. 3.—The nine miners who were entombed last Monday in the Foster Creek tunnel of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, at Coaldale, by a slide of coal dust, were taken out alive at 4:25 this afternoon. They were found on top of a chute in which they had crawled to escape a flood of water that had broken from an abandoned working and caused more than 300 feet of gangway roof to fall, shutting off means of escape. The men are now in the hospital, and reports from there tonight hold promise that all will recover. None of them, however, was in condition tonight to tell of their harrowing experience.

The rescued men are Elmer Herring, Peter Lermick, Joseph Murphy, John McAndrew, Dominick Holcheck, John Bononus, Michael Bodoidy, Joseph Lagonis, and Charles Matchakis. Two fellow-mine workers, William Watkins and George Holleywood, made their escape from the underground prison on Tuesday after crawling through holes made in the fallen rock and coal.

The rescue was accomplished after two hundred mine workers and company officials had battled for six days against discouraging conditions in the choked-up gangway. Their task was made more difficult by a three-foot stream of water which flowed from an adjoining working and which could be regulated only by the constant operation of many pumps.

After blasting and tearing away more than 300 feet of solid rock, coal, and timbers that had been wedged tightly into the gangway by the fall of the roof, rescue forces early today reached an open space, down which a stream of water poured from the undermined source. Once more their work was checked by the presence of an even deeper flow of water. A wooden platform resembling a large raft was built above the surface of the water, and the rescuers advanced toward the chutes where the entombed miners had taken refuge.

At the top of Chute No. 27, down which the coal from upper veins is thrown to the loading cars, the men were found huddled together. All were terribly weakened by their 150 hours' imprisonment, but when they saw the lights of the rescuers they hailed the party in weak voices.

The relatives and friends of the entombed men, who had been constantly at the mouth of the shaft since Monday, awaiting news from their beloved ones, did not know that the men were found until the first of the stretcher-bearers came out of the tunnel and lifted their burden into the ambulances. The report quickly spread, and soon 5,000 persons from the surrounding towns were gathered at the mine shaft.

Several of the rescued men talked cheerfully to their stretcher-bearers while being taken from the mine and from them it was learned that fish oil and a few crushed chicken bones had made up their principal diet until Thursday, when the latter "delicacy" gave out and the fish oil composition proved to be the only item on the bill of fare.

Each of the men had in his pockets several cakes of a fish oil substance that is used by mine workers in lamps and which gives a smokeless flame. One of them, John Bononus, saved his dinner pail when the slide occurred and this is probably what saved the men from starvation. In the pail Bononus had a large quantity of bread, other articles of food found in most miners' cans, and the greater portion of a roast chicken.

All of the food was shared among his companions, but the chicken was saved until the last. Not knowing how long they would be held prisoners, the men partook of their food in small quantities. For the past two days, however, they had been without food.

193 DIVORCE PLEAS UP TODAY, UNOPPOSED

Many Nationalities in Long List in Which the Defendants Offer No Protest.

When Justice Newburger takes his seat in Special Term, Part III. of the Supreme Court today he will face a calendar of 193 undefended divorce cases. Today is the opening of the Fall Term and the divorce actions represent the accumulation of cases filed since the close of the June Term added to those continued from the previous term.

How many of the cases Justice Newburger will hear depends upon the evidence ready and upon the number of cases in which the plaintiffs are prepared to proceed. The roll of the plaintiffs will be called and it is certain that counsel for many of them will ask for adjournments, but others will be ready to go ahead. Those adjourned will be put on the calendar for some future day and the Juctice will hear the evidence in as many as possible of those ready.

As the actions are undefended, the evidence will all be on one side. It will consist, for the most part, in the rehearsal of grievances by plaintiffs, and, if history is repeated, a majority of the plaintiffs will be women, so the Justice will be the audience for chapter after chapter of domestic infelicity.

A glance at the names in the list of the seekers for divorce indicates that no particular race or nationality predominates, Deutsch, McGrath, De Sibbo, Csenger, MacFarland, Montecuollo, Wilheme, Markowitz, Takacs, Di Franco, Solomon, Classon, Kwiatek, Williams, Morris and Jones are picked at random from the list.

J. Wesley Johnson.

J. Wesley Johnson, a noted horseman and breeder of New Jersey and founder of the firm of J. W. Johnson, Silverware, of 32 Maiden Lane, New York, died yesterday at his home on Wachung Avenue, Plainfield, N. J., in his seventy-second year. He was born near that city and founded his firm, first in John Street, nearly fifty years ago. Mr. Johnson was one of the oldest commuters of Plainfield, and was the first to advocate the establishment of the "club car" on the Jersey Central Railroad.

Justice John P. Elkin.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 3.—John P. Elkin, Justice of the Pennsylvania Supreme Court and formerly one of the most prominent figures in the politics of this State, died in a hospital here tonight following an operation for liver trouble. He was 58 years old, and was elected to the Supreme Court eleven years ago. From 1896 to 1899 he was Chairman of the Republican State Committee, and was defeated for the Gubernatorial nomination in 1902 by Judge Samuel Pennypacker, through the efforts of Senator Matthew S. Quay. His home was in Indiana, Penn.

Reynold Kohlhaas.

Reynold Kohlhaas, a pioneer silk loom builder of Paterson, N. J., died on Saturday in St. Joseph's Hospital in that city in his sixty-third year. He was born in Paterson and was one of the best known textile machinery men in this country. Mr. Kohlhaas started in business with his father, who owned a small factory in the old Gun Mill district. During the past forty years he had invented many improvements in silk machinery.

CLINTON STEPHENS DEAD.

Founder of Clason Point and Engineer Expires on Long Island.

Clinton Stephens, known as the founder of Clason Point, whose property there is said to be worth more than $1,000,000, and who was formerly widely known as a railroad and bridge builder, died on Friday on the farm where he was born, in South Bay, L. I., in his eighty-second year.

Soon after becoming a civil engineer, Mr. Stephens built parts of the Erie Railroad and the Albany & Susquehanna Railroad. He also built the Hawks Mountain, Haverstraw, and Shawangunk tunnels. In 1879 he received the contract to build the San Hilario tunnel in Mexico, which was to drain great silver mines. During the following year his camp was attacked, his four American foremen killed, and he barely escaped with his life.

In later years he became a member of the contracting firm of Stephens & O'Rourke, which built a section of the aqueduct and the New York & New England Railroad. Sixteen years ago he retired and bought eighteen acres of land at Clason Point and founded the Summer resort and the Clason Point Amusement Park.

Benjamin Myer Brink.

Special to The New York Times.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Benjamin Myer Brink, an author and authority on the history of this State, died today at his home in Katsbaan, Ulster County, in his sixty-eighth year. He was a lineal descendant of Huybert Lambertse, who came to this country in 1658 and whose son, Cornelius, adopted the name of Brink and became the first of that family in America. Mr. Brink was the author of "The History of Saugerties" and for many years was editor of "Olde Ulster," a historical and genealogical magazine.

RED SOX WILL LEAD PHILLIES IN FIELDING

World's Series "Dope" Shows Both Infield and Outfield of Boston to be Stronger.

By HUGH S. FULLERTON.

Whitted 780	652	770	752
Lewis 774	665	762	749

INFIELD AND OUTFIELD VALUES.

Infield—
Phillies ...2936	2729	2841	2808
Outfield—
Phillies 2255	1993	2229	2219

With the comparative figures of Whitted and Lewis, left fielders of the rival teams, we reach the finish of the study of the regular teams, and with rather surprising results. The fact that Philadelphia's outfield shows so well when studied in comparison with the famous Red Sox trio is astonishing, and shows that Moran's team has a lot of strength for which it has not received credit. While the Red Sox outfigure the Phillies by a rather heavy margin in both the infield and outfield, it is not enough to offset what advantage may be gained through comparison of pitchers alone.

The Phillies are not outclassed. We find that their pitchers will have to pitch about 7 per cent. better ball than the Red Sox to equalize the difference in hitting power, and that the fielders will have to do about 8 per cent. better than they do regularly to bring them to the Boston standard, unless the Red Sox fall off that much in their work. Figures show that neither team is likely to hit as hard as it does in season, because the opposing pitchers "dope out" to cut down its batting and reduce the attacking strength all round. But to the final comparison of the regulars. There is a big surprise in those figures. You would not suspect that Whitted, cast off by the Boston Braves, ranks so closely up to Duffy Lewis this Fall that there is small choice between them. Neither did I until I studied the dope carefully and analyzed each man's work.

Whitted Keeps Team Happy.

When you come to figure an individual ball player you must make allowance for his disposition, if that tends either to enhance the value of his work or to detract from it. Whitted is an odd ball player. He has disposition. Last year he was one of the most valuable of the Braves. He was the happy disposition, the fellow who turned serious situations into a joke, who laughed off rows between players, smoothed over difficulties, stood between some of the athletes and Stallings, often taking the scoldings of the irascible manager upon himself to shield some more sensitive person. Stallings used him when he wanted to vent his ire upon the team, and Whitted grinned and passed it off with a jest. On the Phillies' team he has been invaluable in keeping up the team spirit during discouraging times. He has cheered the players along, furnished the "pep" and the punch that some of them needed, and made Moran's way easier by his tact in straightening out those little internal clashes that so often injure a ball club.

Whitted is a dangerous man on the attack, resourceful, quick to switch his plan, and he can hit. He bumps that old grape fruit to the tune of about .280, gets on a lot of times, and is one of the top-notchers in run scoring for his team. His fielding is not brilliant, but it has been satisfactory, and with a steady job assured he has really done better work this year than he did last. On the bases he is not a speedy man, but he is tricky, trying to outguess pitchers, and he steals a fair number of times, principally by catching the other team unprepared. He is just a little above the average in mechanical ability for outfielders. He watches batters closely, and he works hard and fights all the time. It is his spirit and punch that make him compare so well with his rival.

Duffy Lewis is one of the problems of the series. We are so accustomed to refer to Boston's wonderful outfield that at times we take it for granted that it is flawless. Carrigan does not figure things that way. He sits down there on the bench and sees a lot of things that are forgotten by the fans. There was a time late this season when it seemed as if Lewis would be benched and that Hendrickson would get a steady job in left field. It was rumored through the American League that the change was certain, but it did not take place, as Lewis braced considerably in his work, especially in his hitting.

Lewis is not the greatest outfielder. He is scarcely above the average as a mechanical fielder, but he has strong points, too. His ability to throw and to cut off hard drives that go foul after crossing third base on the Boston grounds, and to retrieve the ball before it gets into that embarrassing corner is one of his strong points which will come in handy even on the Braves' new field. He has a rather short field near the foul line, and he can get to anything inside the barrier. He has nerve and courage in going against fences and stands for fly balls. He is inclined to make his worst breaks at the most important moments of games, possibly through ill-luck, more probably through over-anxiety to make the play. Every ball player calls this luck, but I have a suspicion that there is a psychological reason for muffs and fumbles at important times.

Lewis a Good Hitter.

One thing is certain—you never can say Whitted isn't trying, and that charge was brought against Lewis late in the season because he seemed to lack his old confidence and looked discouraged. I know that a lot of ball players who hold iron-clad contracts did not try hard this year beyond protecting themselves. I have seen outfielders deliberately stop batted balls, let them fall to the ground, and then toss them back to the infield instead of trying to scoop them cleanly and make a play. I heard Lewis accused of this, but his own team-mates indignantly denied it. They said "Duff" just had a little slump in his work. He can hit. He is one of the best of his kind of hitter, and is liable to clean up at any time with a terrific smash to left. He hits the left-handers well, and he hits good pitching. I have before me the clipped scores of a dozen games in which Boston made few hits off opposing pitchers, and Lewis in almost every case was one of the few who scored hits, especially up to July 15.

That is an interesting feature of doping these fellows. I took all the box scores of the season and sorted them in reference to the number of runs made by the Red Sox—shut-outs, one-runs, two runs, and so on. Then I studied through each man's record to see what kind of pitching he was hitting, and whether he hit the good ones, the bad ones, the left-handers, and so on. There were some revelations in the process. Then I took the opponents' scores in the same order and studied the pitching of the Red Sox from that angle, studying what kind of batters hit them and what kind they fooled. In that way one gets a pretty fair line on the ability of the men against all sorts of pitchers, and it will be a surprise to you to see how well Whitted has done against classy pitching. Whitted ought to hit fairly well against Boston's pitchers, and be one of the chief contributors to Philadelphia's scoring. Not that he will hit hard, or that the Phils will score many runs, but he is liable to deliver the timely blow that may settle a close game.

Tomorrow we pass along to the catchers, and reach the more important stage of the dope.

Detroit Beats Cleveland in Last Game of the Season.

DETROIT, Oct. 3.—Detroit, playing its last game of the season, defeated Cleveland 6 to 5, and established an American League record. The Tigers won 100 games this year, something no club in the league, which finished in second place, had previously accomplished. Cobb also set a base stealing record. His theft of second base in the second inning gave him an unofficial total of ninety-seven stolen sacks. The Tigers won the game in the eighth when Burns scored on Dubuc's sacrifice fly. Score:

White Sox Make Clean Sweep.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Chicago made a clean sweep of the series with St. Louis today when they won their final game of the season, 6 to 2. The locals hit Hamilton opportunely, Felsch and J. Collins each making home runs. Faber pitched in fine form until the eighth inning, when he weakened and gave way to Russell, who held the visitors safe. The fielding of Shotton and Sisler was a feature of the game. Score:

RED SOX MAY TAKE TRIP.

To Play at San Francisco if They Win World's Championship.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—The Red Sox will go to San Francisco to play a picked team in a special series, if they win the forthcoming world's series, President J. J. Lannin said today. Whether the Philadelphia Nationals will make the trip in the event of their success in the big series, is still uncertain, President William F. Baker told the National Commission in New York yesterday.

President Lannin said that according to the plans under discussion the new world champions will play a team selected from the best players in both major leagues. Games are to be played on the way West, the trip lasting about one month.

CLOSE GAMES FOR BASEBALL TITLE

Twenty-three Series Have Been Played for the World's Championship.

Although thirty-one years have elapsed since the first battle for the baseball championship of the world was won by the Providence (R. I.) "Grays," there were several years in which the struggle was not repeated, so that the coming contest between the Boston Red Sox and the Philadelphia Nationals will be the twenty-fourth series to be played for the world's title. The inaugural contest in 1884 was won by the Rhode Island team, then champions of the National League, in three straight games from the Metropolitans, the standard bearers of the old American Association of that year. Unavoidable lapses occurred in eight of the subsequent seasons. There was no competition in 1891 or 1893. There was also a five-year lapse from 1898 to 1902, inclusive, but in 1903 the Boston Americans beat the Pittsburgh Nationals five games to three. The following year's championship was claimed by the Boston Red Sox by default, as the New York National League Club would not permit its 1904 pennant winners to play the American League champions.

In 1905, however, the two major leagues arrived at an understanding after the matter had been thoroughly discussed during the Winter months, and the world's championship competition was placed on a solid basis. The National Commission assumed control of the annual series and made it compulsory for the pennant winning clubs in each league to have their teams play a series of games. Rules were adopted by the National Commission which governed everything connected with the post-season battles. Arrangements were completed regarding the disbursement of the gate receipts between the winning and losing players, the club owners and the National Commission, and everything was done to the satisfaction of everybody interested.

Under these new conditions the post-season games were resumed, and they have been played every year regularly since 1905. In the Fall of that year the New York Giants defeated the Athletics of Philadelphia four games to one, and scored the first winning of the world's title under the new régime. The rival Chicago clubs had the issue between them in 1906, Comiskey's White Sox winning the honors by four games to two. The Detroit Tigers won the American League pennant for the next three years in succession, but failed to add the world's title to their string of victories, as they were beaten in the post-season battles of 1907 and 1908 by the Chicago Cubs, and the following year they lost to Pittsburgh, when the Pirates nailed both the world's championship and National League pennants to their mast. Connie Mack and his Athletics were dominant factors in the two following years. They scored a four to one victory over the Chicago Nationals in 1910, and in the 1911 series they squared their defeat by the Giants in 1905 by taking McGraw's players into camp four games to two in the battle for the world's title.

Then followed the great eight-game series between the Boston Americans and the Giants. Probably for a long time to come 1912 will be remembered as the "banner year," as, in addition to a tie game, the Red Sox players, several of whom are still in the Boston line-up, went the limit and forced Manager McGraw to a four to three defeat. The Athletics scored a third world's victory in 1913, with the Giants again losers, the New York team winning only one game out of five. Last year the Boston Braves made a clean sweep in the post-season games, taking four straight from the Athletics, after a sensational spurt and final victory in the National League race. The results of the world's series follow:

Cubs Defeat St. Louis and Finish in Fourth Place.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—Vaughn pitched the Chicago Cubs to a 7 to 2 victory over St. Louis today in the final game of the season, the result giving the locals fourth place in the league standing, while the visitors were dropped to sixth place by virtue of Pittsburgh's victory over Cincinnati.

Sallee was knocked out of the box in the second inning when two errors, a pass and three hits came together, yielding four runs. Meadows finished and was hit for three runs in the same inning. The score:

Herzog's Errors Help Pirates.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Oct. 3.—Herzog's three errors and Adams's good pitching were responsible for Pittsburgh's victory here today, 5 to 3. The locals made three runs off Kantlehner in the third inning, and he was relieved in the fourth, after passing one man. Pittsburgh scored four runs in the fifth off an error, two singles and two more errors. They made another in the ninth off three successive singles. Score:

WINS FLAG BY A POINT.

Chicago Takes Federal League Pennant by Narrowest of Margins.

CHICAGO, Ill., Oct. 3.—Joe Tinker's Whales won the Federal League pennant yesterday by defeating Pittsburgh in the second game of a double-header by a score of 3 to 0. Chicago lost the first game 5 to 4, after an exciting eleven-inning engagement. By winning from Kansas City, St. Louis, Fielder Jones's team, jumped up within a point of Chicago, while Pittsburgh went down to third place. Only four points separate the three teams, the Whales leading St. Louis by a single point.

The margin of Chicago's victory is probably the smallest ever known in a big league pennant race. Chicago has 86 games won and 66 lost, a percentage of .566. St. Louis won 87 games and lost 67 and has a percentage of .565, while Pittsburgh's standing was 86 won, 67 lost and a percentage of .562. Another remarkable state of affairs for a big league race is that only 39 points separate the first five clubs. Such a blanket finish has never been seen in the National or American League.

The outcome of the Federal League race has been problematical for many weeks and the advantage has see-sawed from one team to another time and again. It has been a hard fight right up to the last game and Joe Tinker's following here is much elated over the success of the North Side Federal Leaguers.

The final standing of the clubs is as follows:

	W.	L.	PC.
Chicago	86	66	.566
St. Louis	87	67	.565
Pittsburgh	86	67	.562
Kansas City	81	72	.530
Newark	80	72	.527
Buffalo	74	78	.487
Brooklyn	70	82	.461

FEDERAL LEAGUE.

Chicago Splits Double-Header and Leads Pittsburgh.

CHICAGO, Oct. 3.—In the tightest league race on record, the Chicago Federals narrowaly captured the flag by winning the second game of a double-header from Pittsburgh after having dropped the first game.

Darkness held off just long enough to permit the Chicago team to take the title and put Pittsburgh in third place. Three runs in the sixth inning of the second game, however, settled the ownership of the emblem. The enormous crowd went wild over the victory.

The scores were: Pittsburgh 5—0, Chicago 4—3. The first game went to eleven innings, while the second was called after the visitor's half of the seventh inning.

Newark Divides Double-Header.

Newark wound up its Federal League season yesterday at Harrison Park, N. J., by dividing a double-header with the Baltimore Terrapins, the scores being 9 to 5 and 6 to 0. Fifteen hits off four Pep pitchers tell why the invaders won the first game, while in the second contest Ed Reulbach had the Baltimores completely baffled, holding them to a trio of hits, and striking out twelve. ST. ANSELM'S VICTORS.

15,000 See Catholic League Champions Win at Polo Grounds.

The St. Anselm's team, winner of the pennant in the Catholic Baseball League, defeated the All-Stars 6 to 4 at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon in the presence of about 15,000 fans. The annual game between the winners of the pennant and the pick of the other teams in the league is the banner attraction of the season in the Catholic League, and yesterday there were a numbr of prominent men in the stands. Colonel John Whalen, Treasurer of the New York Baseball Club, threw out the first ball, and among those who occupied boxes were Mayor Lennon of Yonkers, District Attorney Francis Martin of the Bronx, Judge Mulqueen, Judge Rooney, Harry Hempstead, and Jim Corbett.

St. Anselm's batters went right after Murphy, who was pitching for the All-Stars. Murphy's wildness, coupled with a couple of hits, gave the league champs two runs in the first inning. They added three more off Murphy in the third. Then Murphy was taken out and Shea went in to pitch. In the sixth he was relieved by O'Brien, who held the St. Anselm's clan scoreless during the rest of the fray.

Lee, the star pitcher of the St. Anselm's club, was on the firing line against the All-Stars, and he did not allow a hit until the fourth inning. The All-Stars were able to get men on bases in nearly every inning, but Lee would tighten up his left-hand delivery when the All-Stars seemed about to win. The score by innings:

Motor Speedway Racing Dates.

The Philadelphia Motor Speedway Association track now nearing completion near Philadelphia will open the 1916 racing season on April 23. This date has been awarded the association by Chairman Kennerdale of the A. A. A. This date is given with the one provision that, should the Vanderbilt Cup race be held in the East next year, the Philadelphia opening date be two weeks prior to the Vanderbilt race. The A. A. A. Contest Board decided on dates for New York's Spring and Fall meetings for 1916 as May 13 and Sept. 30. Chicago date will be June 14. Other dates granted were: Des Moines, July 4; Sioux City, July 5; Omaha, July 15; Tacoma, Aug. 5; Elgin, Aug. 18 and 19; Providence, Sept. 16. Indianapolis, as usual, will have May 30 for the date of its big event.

GOLF CHAMPIONS IN FOUR-BALL MATCH

Smith and Nicholls Defeat Hagen and McNamara at Great Neck, 3 and 2.

Alec Smith, former open and Metropolitan champion, paired with Gilbert Nicholls, present Metropolitan title-holder, won from Walter Hagen, holder of the Massachusetts Open Championship, and Tom McNamara, Western Open Champion, in a four-ball match yesterday at Great Neck, by a score of 3 up, 2 to play. It was truly a meeting of the mighty, as these four men have long been reverenced as wizards of the links, and they played yesterday for real money. The match was thirty-six holes, but as the last nine holes of the Great Neck course are in poor condition, the men circled the first nine holes four times, and this seemed to make McNamara so dizzy that toward the last he started putting in circles. Some moving picture men, who wished to get a picture of the balls dropping on the green across the water hole, set up their camera on the green at the side of the pin, but Alec Smith's first shot drove them to cover. The cards:

Oulmet Fails to Lower Record.

Francis Ouimet, former open champion, tried to lower the amateur record for the Knollwood Country Club golf course yesterday, but his scores were 70 and 69 for the morning and afternoon rounds, while the amateur record is 69. The course was not in the best of condition because of the recent heavy rains. Ouimet used thirty-seven strokes for the nine holes, going out on the morning round. His score coming in for the morning round was 33, which was the best score he made for the nine holes. In the afternoon round, his scores were 35 and 34 going in and out.

Big Squad in Long Walk.

Thirty-six members of the Walkers' Club of America took part in the weekly walk yesterday, and the big squad tramped from City Hall to Sea Gate and return, a distance of fifteen miles. The walkers started from City Hall Plaza at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, and after crossing Brooklyn Bridge, went along Fulton Street and Flatbush Avenue, and then through Prospect Park. From the Park the walkers went over Ocean Parkway and Surf Avenue to Sea Gate. Fifteen members of the club, after yesterday's journey, have completed 100 miles in the weekly walks, and are entitled to one of the mileage prizes. Next Sunday the club members will walk from Columbus Circle to Flushing and return, and the annual West Point walk will be held on Sunday, Oct. 31.

Forty-Nine in Weekly Walks.

Two squads from the American Walkers' Association took part in the weekly walks yesterday, one squad tramping from Long Island Plaza to Valley Stream and return, a distance of twenty-nine miles, while the short distance squad journeyed to Jamaica and return, a distance of about fifteen miles. The members of the Walking Club of the New York Evening High School accompanied the association members on the trips and there were forty-nine walkers in the two squads. Next Sunday, the walkers will start from City Hall and walk to Coney Island, and the long distance squad will return by another route.

Dead Heat in First Road Run.

The Fall road racing season in the Metropolitan district was ushered in yesterday by the Pennant Athletic Club with an invitation race over a course of approximately four miles through the Bronx streets. Charley Blankenburg of the Bronx Church House, and Charley De Stefano, unattached, ran on even terms over the entire course and broke the tape simultaneously in 21.42 making a new record for the course. J. Dolan of the Mohawk A. C., finished third in 22.07. Other contestants finished in the following order: O'Connor, Millrose A. A.; Robenson, Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A.; Baker, Pennant A. C.; Mulinos, Greek-American A. C.; Velotto, Ozanam A. A.; Shippel, Holy Cross Lyceum, and Rault, Bronx Church House.

FIRE DEPARTMENT WINS.

Errors Cause Police Defeat Before 25,000 Persons at Ebbets Field.

A record crowd of 25,000 people turned out at the opening game of the annual series between the baseball teams of the Police and Fire Departments at Ebbets Field yesterday. The fire laddies won the game, 6 to 3. The second game will be played at the Polo Grounds next Sunday.

The big gathering of spectators included the friends and relatives of the men in these two branches of the city's service. The police contingent, with their band, held forth back of first base, and the firemen and their band occupied seats back of third base. Numerous city officials occupied the boxes. Police Commissioner Arthur Woods threw out the first ball. Fire Commissioner Robert Adamson was in a box on the Fire Department's side of the field.

The Police Department did not get very busy until the ninth. Tienken singled and Malcolmson walked. Barry forced Malcolmson at second, and Connelly's single scored Tienken. Barry went home on a wild pitch, and Connelly advanced to third. He scored on Grotheer's sacrifice fly. The score:

WEST SIDE TENNIS FINALS.

E. S. Moore and H. P. Guiler Win on Forest Hills Courts.

Two classes in the men's singles events for the championship of the West Side Tennis Club were decided yesterday on the clay courts at Forest Hills, L. I. E. S. Moore defeated S. E. Davenport, Jr., in the final round of Class E, after five hard sets, at 3—6, 7—5, 5—7, 7—5, 6—4, and H. P. Guiler triumphed over A. N. Milne in Class C in straight sets at 6—0, 6—4, 6—0.

The contest between Moore and Davenport for the Class E title, was one of the longest drawn out matches played on the West Side Club courts this year. Fifty-five games were played in the five sets, and extra games were required to decide three other sets. There was little to choose between the pair, but the steadiness and stamina of Moore pulled him through. Guiler's victory over Milne was too onesided to be interesting.

The Class C doubles were advanced to the final round, with G. T. Hill, Jr., and A. C. Postley to play H. P. Guiler and H. P. Guiler, Jr., for the title. In Class B, Gatcomb and Henry qualified for the final round. The summary:

West Side Tennis Club Class E Championship.—Semi-final Round—E. S. Moore defeated Seymour Johnson, 6—4, 3—6, 6—2.

Final Round—E. S. Moore defeated S. E. Davenport, Jr., 3—6, 7—5, 5—7, 7—5, 6—4.

Class C.—Fourth Round—H. P. Farrington defeated G. B. Rossman, 6—3, 6—0.

Semi-final Round—A. N. Milne defeated E. C. Conlin, 6—4, 9—7; H. P. Guiler defeated H. P. Farrington, 6—1, 6—1.

Final Round—H. P. Guiler defeated A. N. Milne, 6—0, 6—4, 6—0.

Men's Doubles, Class B.—Second Round—L. Woodbury and H. C. Worth defeated C. A. Sparks and J. Granville Burr, 6—2, 6—3.

Semi-final Round—R. B. Gatcomb and Mr. Henry defeated L. Woodbury and H. C. Worth, 6—2, 6—3.

Class C.—Semi-final Round—G. T. Hill, Jr., and A. C. Postley defeated O. L. Becker and P. S. Hildreth, 6—2, 2—6, 6—3; H. P. Guiler and H. P. Guiler, Jr., defeated A. N. Milne and H. P. Farrington, 6—3, 6—2.

SPEEDWAY MATINEES.

Light Harness Amateur Horsemen Begin Fall Series of Races.

The Fall matinée racing season of the Road Drivers' Association of New York opened on the Speedway yesterday with a series of six races. A heavy track made the times slow, but the competition was spirited. Local light harness stars did not have things their own way, for entrants from New Jersey and Long Island were among the victors. The matches between Clover Patch and O'Brien Boy and Fair Maiden and Oakland Boy were called off because their owners declined to take chances with the muddy course.

George Stamberger, Vice President of the Road Drivers' Association, added Joe Mapes in the 1:06 pace, and the bay gelding captured two straight heats in the fast times of 1:06¼ and 1:05¾. In the first heat the Stamberger entrant triumphed by a head over Master McKerron, and in the second trial Bright Direct was the runner-up. Della Patch took third prize.

W. F. Mangan's chestnut mare Regents Ghost scored in two heats in the 1:11 trot, taking the first heat from Acoro in 1:10¼ and the second from Lee Wilson in 1:11.

In the 1:11 pacing class Happy Bill, M. F. Kearin's bay gelding, defeated Exultant and Jack Dillon, entered by S. Post of Mineola, in 1:13 and 1:12¾, respectively.

Lena B., a brown mare owned by J. P. McCaffrey, proved best among the 1:15 trotters, Estelle Cord finishing second in each of the two heats. J. Doty's Julia Sanderson won the 1:08 trot.

Y. M. H. A. Closes Athletic Season.

The Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A. track team closed its outdoor season yesterday with the most successful meet of the year. The games were held at McCombs Dam Park, and the ideal weather brought out a large attendance. Joe Berger, a 16-year-old boy, broke the junior high jump record of the association, making an actual leap of 5 feet 4 inches, which only earned him second place owing to a six-inch handicap given to the ultimate winner, M. Stark. The three-mile run was won by M. Friedheim, who had a handicap of two minutes. The scratch men, Freirich and Lictenberg, could not overcome the large handicaps, and finished fourth and sixth, respectively. The half-mile brought out a field of twenty-four boys, and resulted in a beautiful race. D. Goldman was on the honor mark, giving away marks up to sixty yards, but could not quite pass the entire field. The track was very slow and mushy, which prevented the possibility of good time in the track events.

Boxing Bouts for the Week.

There are two boxing bouts which stand out prominently this week. One is scheduled for tonight at St. Nicholas Rink between Al Reich and Gunboat Smith, and the other at Madison Square Garden Thursday night will bring together Johnny Dundee and Willie Ritchie.

The match between the heavyweights, Reich and Smith, should prove an interesting encounter and will give followers of the game an opportunity of seeing whether the former has improved since his bout with Coffey. Reich is confident that he will redeem himself by winning quickly from Smith. In the semi-final, Alf Mansfield of England will box the east side boy, Abe Friedman. The opening bout will also be a heavyweight encounter, Andre Anderson of Chicago being matched with Jim Johnson.

Ritchie and Dundee have both been training for some time in preparation for the bout at the Garden Thursday night, and both men are in good condition. Ritchie expected to enter the ring weighing about 136 pounds, but he will probably be nearer 138. Dundee tried a course of training whereby he hoped to increase his weight, but he will probably tip the beam at about 132 pounds Thursday night.

Frankie Conifrey and Charlie Perrelli will furnish the ten-round bout at the Olympic Club tonight. Conifrey, who is a great favorite among the fire fighters of the city, will try hard to defeat Perrelli, as about 300 firemen have made reservations for the bout. Johnny Moran and Sailor George Volk will furnish the ten-round semi-final.

The ten-round bout between Jack Dillon of Indianapolis and Jim Savage of Orange, which was to have taken place at Ebbets Field last week, but was postponed because of rain, will be staged at the Broadway Sporting Club tomorrow night. Both men have been training to keep themselves in the best of condition and should furnish a fast bout. In the preliminary bouts Terry Mitchell is scheduled to box Frankie Notter and Larry Hansen will box Mickey Donnelly.

Willard to Box Next Week.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Oct. 3.—Jess Willard tonight announced that his first fight to defend the title of world's champion heavyweight pugilist which he won from Jack Johnson probably will take place in New Orleans in March, the challenger to be the "logical contender" for the title, selected by the sporting writers of the country. He said he would accept the offer of New Orleans promoters for a twenty-round match there during Madri Gras.

Another Wrestling Tournament.

Samuel Rachman, the man who promoted the wrestling tournament in the Manhattan Opera House last Spring, will hold another tournament this season as soon as he can arrange for a place to hold it. Among those who will be asked to enter are Charles Cutler, Henry Ordeman, Gus Schoenlein, Dr. Roller, Jess Westergard, Yusiff Hussane, Strangler Lewis, Alexander Aberg, George Lurich, George Eberle, Waldek Zybyske, and Stanislaw Zbyske.

COLORED RUNNERS WIN POINT TROPHY

Salem-Crescent Sprinters Lead in the St. Bridget Lyceum Games at Jersey City.

The strong team of sprinters representing the Salem-Crescent A. C. yesterday scored an easy triumph for the point trophy in the games of St. Bridget's Lyceum contested on the Montgomery playground, Jersey City, before 6,000 persons. The colored athletes registered 19 points, more than doubling the aggregate of the Hungarian-American A. C. which registered 8 points. Other clubs figuring in the scoring were Irish-American A. C., 7; T. A. B. Society, 5; St. Peter's A. C., 5; Mohawk A. C., 5; Bronx Church House, 5; Millrose A. A., 3; Montclair A. C., 3; Newark Y. M. C. A., 2; New York A. C., 1; Knights of St. Anthony, 1; Trinity A. C., 1; St. Christopher A. C. 1.

Willie Gordon, the New York A. C. distance runner, captured the Cassidy 800-meter invitation race. It may have been because of an undersized track, or perhaps to poor timing, but Gordon went the route in 1:54 3-5, only a few seconds behind the world's record of 1:51 9-10 made by Ted Meredith in the Stockholm Olympics and regarded as one of the best marks on the book.

Gordon ran one of the best races of his career. He finished ten yards in front of Willie Anderson, another Mercury Footer, after passing him on the turn leading into the home stretch. E. J. Garvey, an unattached runner of Newark, ran strongly in the early stages but his strength wilted at the finish and he was beaten by fifty yards.

Frank Zuna carried the Irish-American A. C. emblem to victory in the three-mile handicap in which he had an allowance of 65 yards. Nick Giannakopulos, the Greek athlete of the Millrose A. A., marked his reappearance in track competition here by running second from scratch, finishing about 100 yards in the wake of Henry da Silva of Trinity Club, who received 160 yards start. Zuna journeyed the route in 15:13.

Three men breasted the tape almost deadlocked in the medley relay, with the decision going to Bronx Church House. Second place went to the Mohawk A. C. and third honors to the first team of the Salem-Crescent A. C. The Bronx quartette, H. L. Buhler, 220 yards; Edward Haupt, 440 yards; William Weise, 880 yards, and Kiely, the mile, were clocked in 8:12 3-5. They had an aggregate handicap of 28 yards. The Mohawk A. C. was represented by C. Gutmann, H. Biddle, G. Pinckney and George Carson and the Salem-Crescents by P. J. White, Oscar Adamson, Johnson Brunson, and Oscar Hawkins.

In the 1,000 yards handicap, John Brunson, Salem-Crescent A. C., with 25 yards, got away to an early lead and was in front at the finish, though hard pressed by Wilson Adams, Montclair A. C., handicapped at 22 yards. George Buttner, Irish-American A. C., with 55 yards start, was third in 2:18 2-5.

Smith First in Three-Mile Race.

Harry Smith of the Bronx Church House, former two mile champion, took the measure of High Honahan of the New York A. C., in a special three mile match race staged as a feature of the Pastime A. C. games at Dal Hawkins's Roadhous in Westchester yesterday. The race was decided on the real merits of the men, with Smith winning by three yards in 15:21 2-5. It was not until the final hundred yards that Smith pulled away from Honahan. At one stage of the final century Smith had ten yards advantage.

Scratch men were victors in the closed events, Dan Shea, H. Greene, Dick Reiner, and Myles McHugh scoring from the back marks. L. Shea, a brother of Dan Shea, showed up well, winning the 100 yards dash from five yards in 0:10 2-5, finishing third in the 1,000 yards run and second in the 300 yards handicap. In the latter event he was just beaten by his brother, from scratch, in 0:36 1-5. McHugh, another back marker, was third.

Dick Remer, the veteran pedestrian, gave a fine performance in the mile walk, which he annexed in the good time of 6:54. He was pressed closely by B. Jacoby, 45 seconds, and K. Hearns, 16 seconds.

Myles McHugh ran away with the 1,000 yards handicap from scratch, going the distance in 2:21, with S. Richter second and L. Shea third.

There was a thrilling ending to the two mile run, in which H. Greene, the back marker, just got down in front after passing Ray Ferguson in the last twenty yards.

Cycling Title for Kramer.

By defeating Alf. Goullet of Australia in the five-mile professional championship at the Newark Velodrome yesterday afternoon Frank Kramer of East Orange won his fifteenth consecutive national championship of America. This event was the culmination of a series of twenty-six races for the title in which Kramer was forced to battle single handed against all of the American and Australian riders. A month ago the teaming against Kramer became so strong the National Cycling Association was forced to change the rules limiting the number of starters in semi-finals and finals to two riders in order to eliminate teaming. At the time this change was made Kramer was far behind in the number of points scored in title races, but he lost only one race under the new rules. When Kramer tied Goullet's point score a series of three match races was put on to decide the championship. Kramer took the quarter-mile and five-mile.

Lock Wins Bicycle Races.

William J. Lock won the mile and half-mile championship races held over the Hudson County Boulevard yesterday by the Century Road Club of America. Heisig was a few inches behind Lock at the finish of the mile scratch race. Kudrle was a close third. On the half-mile race, Kudrle was second and Schmidt third. L. A. Fraysse won the ten-mile unpaced race in 26:45. Heisig was second and J. Schmidt third. Lock has not been defeated in a scratch race in the last two seasons, and was the winner of the club championship last year. He won this year's handicap championship with 32 points, Heisig was second with 17 points. In the scratch races Lock had 30 points, Heisig 22, Kudrle 18, and Schmidt 16 for the year.

Papesca Leads in Races.

Jimmy Papesca, last year's champion of the New England Wheelmen, won the championship of the Unione Sportiva Italiana yesterday by scoring 19 out of a possible 20 points. Papesca finished first in the one-mile, three-mile and five-mile races and was second in the ten-mile race. The races were held over the Eastern Boulevard and the course was in good condition, fast time being made in every race. Papesca, by his victory, will represent his club in the Inter-Club League championships, to be held next Sunday.

Aickelin Takes Championship.

The New England Wheelmen held their championship races over the Eastern Boulevard yesterday and E. Aickelin was the winner of the three-mile and five-mile races. In each race there was a close finish. Aickelin was also the winner of the club championship for 1915, with 40 points; C. H. Tonjeo was second, with 23 points. Aickelin will represent the New England Wheelmen in the interclub championships to be held next Sunday.

TO OPEN CORNELL FIELD.

Presentation and Acceptance Saturday Prior to Williams Game.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 3.—Cornell will celebrate the opening of the new Schoellkopf football field Saturday, when the team plays Williams. The program which has just been completed includes a parade of the trustees, faculty, and undergraduates from the quadrangle to Schoellkopf Oval. George W. Bacon of New York, Chairman of the Alumni Field Committee, and Paul Schoellkopf, representing the Schoellkopf family, which contributed the funds for the field and stadium, will make addresses. President Schurman will accept the field for the university.

Cornell's coaches are fairly well satisfied with the showing made by the men in Saturday's game against Oberlin, though the team as a whole is still slow and crude. Shiverick, the regular right half, who has been out for a week because of injuries, will resume practice tomorrow. The balance of the squad is in good condition. No changes in the personnel of the 'Varsity are indicated.

Tie in Brooklyn A. A. Games.

As the outcome of the competition in the final members' games of the Brooklyn A. A. at McCarren Field yesterday, a tie has resulted for the club point trophy between Benjamin Finklestein and Herman Browser, each of whom complete the season with 25 points. It is undecided how the trophies will be awarded. Nick McGuire, who had been in front throughout the season, finished third with 22 points, and probably would have won the first prize, but for an injured leg which prevented him from competing.

The last of the series provided the best sport of the season for the Brooklynites. In the seventy-five yards dash Finklestein added materially to his score by winning from George Trefrey and B. Clementi.

Harry Schetzen took the half mile run with the big allowance of eighty-five yards in 2:06 4-5. He defeated C. Sherman and J. Webster, each of whom had a large handicap.

Finkelstein was also successful in the running broad jump, his distance being 19 feet 2½ inches. De Clementi and M. Gross were second and third respectively. In the eight-pound shot put M. Prince was returned winner with 42 feet 6 inches, defeating De Clementi and Trefry. The two-mile run went to H. Gross, off 325 yards, with J. Rose second, and C. Rojas third in 10:18⅕. The winning relay team was composed of Browser, Schetzen, McGuire, and Webster.

Cross-Country Run in Brooklyn.

The Brooklyn A. A. opened the cross-country season in Brooklyn yesterday with a four-mile invitation chase over the Highland Park course. There were eighteen runners in the field that started from the barrier and Herbert Whitney of the Loughlin Lyceum set the pace from start to finish, and won in 24:30. Al Rigby, the former New York A. C. harrier, and R. Christ of the Oakdale A. C. had a spirited 100-yard [illegible] for second place, and Rigby won by a few inches. Frank Schultz of the Long Island A. C., who has not taken part in any racing in several months [illegible] his togs again yesterday and finished fourth.

THE FINANCIAL SITUATION IN AMERICA AND EUROPE

Were the financial situation a simple instead of a complex thing it could be said to have consisted last week in the surprisingly successful underwriting of the $500,000,000 loan to Great Britain and France. Practically all other events from a financial point of view centred around that one, and before the week was over it was made abundantly plain that the country was becoming conscious of the very great step forward which it was taking in freeing its foreign trade from the danger of inanition through a lack of credit on which to carry it on beyond the limited point to which it could be carried on a cash basis. Trade sentiment is notably more hopeful, and it is so to no mean extent because of the fact that we have found our way to doing for our trade with other markets what European markets for so long did for our trade with them. There were other factors, of course, some of them of far-reaching consequence, but it was this one which did most to give greater vitality to the others and to make it possible for the United States to say that it had won its spurs in international finance.

It is only an accident that we are doing this financing for countries at war. If one could conceive of a similar exchange situation in a time of peace with not even a threat of war it would be as imperative for us to make this loan as it is today. It might even be said with justice that it would be still more imperative, for the reason that a certain large amount of our present trade could be done no matter what the difficulties in the way of paying for our products might be. But that, after all, is a minority part of our commerce with other nations, and it would have been shortsighted in more ways than one had we made the belligerency of these borrowers a reason for refusing the credit to which they are entitled and for which they are paying a price eminently attractive to American bankers. That it is attractive is shown clearly enough by the very quick response which was made to the informal offering of participation in the underwriting. A chance to participate was offered to the entire country, and it needed only the incentive of the attractive price finally agreed upon between the Anglo-French commission and our bankers to bring the loan all the support it needed, and even more.

American finance will be a very different thing after the making of this loan than it has been up to now. No investment market as powerful as ours, no money market with resources as great as ours, has ever been as provincial as ours. In making a $500,000,000 loan to Great Britain and France for the purpose of fostering our trade with those countries directly and indirectly with all of the rest of the trading world, we are shaking off that provincialism and laying claim, and justly, to a really important share in international finance. The transaction which does this is epochal. The term fairly characterizes this up-to-now greatest financial undertaking in which our bankers have ever engaged.

If this loan is to make us greater financially than we have ever been, and there can be no reason to doubt that it will, it is only reasonable to expect that its favorable influence will ramify into all the high roads of our commerce and into many of its byways. It is because that is true that this loan has been able to command the support which has come to it. Granting a course of events as favorable as recent events have been for the nations obtaining this loan it will be surprising indeed if the popular demand for these five-year 5 per cent. bonds of Great Britain and France does not assume very large proportions. In the first instance the loan is being underwritten mainly by those in a better position than most individual investors to realize the far-reaching ramifications of this financing, but if what is reasonably to be expected happens the market for these five-year notes, yielding to private investors 5½ per cent. or more, will pass into a second stage which will consist in a market predominated by country-wide appreciation of the desirability of an investment which carries the joint obligations of two of the greatest industrial nations; which has priority over all their home borrowings, and which at the option of the holder is convertible into a fifteen to twenty-five year 4½ per cent. bond, which will give the buyer of these notes a hold on the credit of these great nations for a period long enough to make possible in all probability a marked recuperation from the handicap under which war has placed the borrowing power of these countries. The inconsequential effect exerted by the opposition to this loan which sought to prevent it entirely points very clearly to the fact that the need of making the loan was very clearly understood in most sections of the country, if not in all, and that its terms were regarded as most attractive.

Directly many other factors seemed perhaps more closely related to last week's stock market than the success of this international financing, but in perspective it is more than likely that the market which we have recently had will be connected with the flotation of this great loan more intimately than with any other one thing. There was plenty of opportunity last week to speak a word of caution to speculators, and the opportunity was not neglected, but any view of the course which financial affairs are taking—and the stock market is but an incident in a much larger situation—which neglects to take count of the far-reaching favorable effect of many existing factors in the American situation would amount to neglecting the part played by the mainspring because of giving too great attention to some other less primary part of the financial mechanism. There can be no doubt that the avidity with which speculators seized some of the opportunities which were offered to them last week to bid up stocks rapidly, and no doubt in some instances recklessly, caused more conservative traders to pause. The fact must not be neglected, however, that underlying such market effervescence is the solid sub-strata of the present business situation, which is in many phases most favorable as it certainly is exceptional.

The very fact that we are called upon to lend $500,000,000 to two of our best foreign customers is proof of the enormous scale on which we are trading with other nations. The record of the steel trade has been reflecting chiefly this foreign business, but it is coming more and more to show the effect of increasing home business as well. The great bulk of our crops, now that the opportunity is open for a free foreign market for our surplus production, becomes an even more important factor than it previously was in the commercial outlook. We cannot move crops as great as those which we are harvesting, nor can we export manufactured goods on the scale on which we are now exporting them without a great deal of traffic coming to the railroads over and above their reducible minimum of home demand. We cannot be extraordinarily prosperous in our foregn trade as we are without our home trade in many different ways deriving advantage from it. The demand for labor is increasing without a normal addition to the labor supply through immigration, and by force of circumstances we are steadily reaching toward a position of greater industrial independence. In addition to all this we are beyond question in the strongest position financially which we have ever occupied. Were all of these favorable facts present without the uncertainty of the after-effects of war we would be in a position so extraordinarily favorable as to exclude all doubt about a long period of great activity in affairs commercial as well as financial. The fact that the security market has been moving forward as it has been doing is one of the several things which go to show that the great majority of people believe that notwithstanding these war uncertainties our position is sufficiently favorable to warrant the expectation of the attainment during the present period of activity of new high points in commercial enterprise, and to attain along with those a broader field in international trade and finance than the United States has ever been privileged in the past to occupy. That is the real meaning of the optimism which is manifesting itself more and more widely in the stock market as elsewhere, but by no means in the stock market exclusively.

LOAN GRATIFIES LONDON.

Market Now Hopes for Steadiness in Exchange.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 3.—The week was eventful in the city, with the success of the Anglo-French loan crowding other important developments into the background. Some criticism was heard of the terms, even though it is fully realized here that the need for action to correct the exchange situation was urgent and that the United States had been asked to assume a novel position for her, as she had never before been a lender to foreign nations on a broad scale. The cost of the funds to be raised, too, was considered stiff, in view of the fact that American industrial and farming interests will benefit greatly from the greater purchasing power of the borrowing nations.

However, the conclusion of negotiations was hailed with satisfaction, and it is hoped that a result will be a cessation of violent fluctuations in the exchange market. The stability of international rates of exchange is considered far more important than the interest charged for the loan.

Attempts to persuade the British public to subscribe are vigorously discouraged, as such action would tend to defeat the real purpose of the loan. The reason the loan was sought under generous terms was to confine it strictly to American lenders.

The financial situation here was not affected by the conclusion of the loan negotiations, although there are pronounced signs of greater stringency in the money market. Cheap credit is growing scarce, and the banks are able to lend as freely as they desire at 4½ per cent. Changed conditions are partly due to the payment on Tuesday of an installment of the war loan amounting to about £30,000,000, and also to the payment of £3,500,000 India bills the same day. Another factor was the demand that has existed for the 4½ per cent. Treasury bills, due in three months, at the Bank of England. Many buyers are anxious to obtain them, as they mature within the current year.

The half-yearly Treasury statement to Sept. 30 should show that national expenditures exceeded receipts, the Exchequer balance being reduced to £64,000,000. Last year's war loan is still to be reduced by about £70,000,000, and as Treasury bills for an amount estimated to be about £70,000,000 mature in October, it is believed that the Government will shortly advance the rate for new bills.

The stock market was quiet throughout the week, and generally firm under the influence of successful military operations and the final launching of the American loan. Sellers of large calibre have not been active, but are expected to put out considerable stock next week in view of Secretary Grey's statement that German officers are directing operations of the Bulgarian Army. The situation in the Balkans is considered grave.

BETTER TONE ON BOURSE.

Improvement Follows News of Successes of Allies' Armies.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 3.—The settlement terminated satisfactorily without assistance from the Bank of France, and with a carry-over rate of 6 per cent. An improved tone in securities followed news of the brilliant successes of the French and British Armies, but trading was light in spite of the better feeling. Rentes were an exception, selling down to 66f. 50c. for cash and 66f. 85c. for the month-end settlement, the recession being due to the desire of many holders to convert their bonds and buy Russian securities at good prices.

Domestic railroad shares were somewhat irregular as the week ended, but American issues were firm, notably New Haven, Pennsylvania, and the copper stocks which were affected by the tone in London and New York.

The terms of the Anglo-French loan gave satisfaction and the announcement was followed by a fall of exchange rates. The rate on London was quoted at 27.30, and cable rate on New York touched 5.77. Quotations grew steadier today.

The Bank of France has now retired over half the premoratorium acceptances, against which 100,000,000 francs was advanced. The note issue to finance the war totals 13,458,000,000 francs, and extension measures will soon be necessary. The present limit of the issue is 15,000,000,000 francs.

DEPOSITS OF $213,000,000.

Bankers Trust Co. One of Three Passing $200,000,000 Mark.

The Bankers Trust Company's deposits have advanced well above the $200,000,000 mark for the first time in the history of the institution. In response to the last call of the State Controller the trust company reported total deposits of more than $213,000,000.

The only other institutions in the city with deposits in excess of $200,000,000 are the National City Bank and the Guaranty Trust Company.

INTERNATIONAL MERCANTILE MARINE COMPANY

To Holders of Preferred Stock:

The Committee, as a result of the examination being made on its behalf of International Mercantile Marine Company, is now in a position to make the following announcement:

It appears from the records of the Marine Company that during the month of March, 1915, it was in a position to pay all interest then in default upon its bonds, and that by order of its board of directors the Chairman of the Reorganization Committee, who is President of the New York Trust Company, the Trustee under the mortgage, was notified of this fact. Such a default cannot be made the basis for declaring the principal of the bonds due, and the Committee is advised that the pending foreclosure suit can be successfully defended; that the present receivership was unnecessary and that it could have been avoided by the board of directors of the Marine Company.

The preliminary report of Messrs. Ernst & Ernst, the accountants for the Committee, states:

(1) Exclusive of depreciation and new war tax, and also exclusive of undivided earnings of the Thompson & Co., Limited, Shaw Savill and Albion Co., Limited, Holland-America Line, but after deducting all current interest charges, including bond interest (amounting to $2,232,776), the earnings of the Marine Company for the seven months which ended July 31, 1915, were over $11,000,000; in addition the Marine Company's share of the earnings of the Leyland Line for said period were over $7,000,000; for the month of July, 1915, (the latest figures available,) such earnings of the Marine Company, including the Leyland Line, were over $3,500,000.

(2) The Marine Company was at all times during the month of March, 1915, and thereafter in a position to pay all back interest and current interest on its bonded indebtedness. On March 31, 1915, the last day to cure the six months default in the payment of interest on the 4½% bonds, there was on deposit in cash to the credit of the Marine Company, and subsidiary companies, $8,538,394.

(3) Many of the assets and particularly investments in other steamship companies are carried on the books of certain of the Marine Company's subsidiary companies at values far below their real worth.

(4) The property and assets of the Marine Company, including ships, securities and cash, but excluding good will, trade routes and the like, are, excluding inter-company accounts, obviously of a value largely exceeding the bonded debt and other indebtedness of the Marine Company and its subsidiary companies.

The Committee does not intend to permit this valuable property to pass under the present reorganization plan which presents to the bondholders the entire property, with its present enormous earnings, except the insignificant portion of the equity left to the stock. The examination of the affairs of the Marine Company is proceeding, and arrangements are being made for the defense of the pending foreclosure suit.

Holders of preferred stock who desire to protect their rights from sacrifice, and who do not intend to surrender their property at the invitation of the bondholders so that they (the bondholders) may reap substantially all the benefit of the earnings, are urged to immediately deposit their preferred stock and thereby aid the Committee in its efforts. Deposits should be made with CENTRAL TRUST COMPANY OF NEW YORK, at its office, 54 Wall Street, New York City. Certificates of deposit will be issued for all deposits made. Copies of the Deposit Agreement may be obtained from the Secretary of the Committee. A substantial amount of preferred stock has already been deposited.

Dated, September 29, 1915.

REORGANIZATION

OF THE

Street Railway and Electric Light Systems at Kansas City

UNDER THE PLAN DATED JULY 30, 1915
PREPARED BY THE HONORABLE WILLIAM C. HOOK

The undersigned Reorganization Managers announce that more than 90% of all the matured indebtedness embraced in the Plan has been deposited thereunder and under the Protective Agreements for the deposit of certain thereof. In order that holders of bonds and notes who have not already deposited may avail themselves of the benefits of the Plan, Judge Hook has extended the time for the deposit of all bonds and notes embraced in the Plan, except the bonds of the Kansas City Elevated Railway Company and of the Kansas City and Westport Belt Railway Company, to October 9, 1915. Judge Hook has stated that he will announce later the terms upon which further deposits of bonds of the Kansas City Elevated Railway Company and of the Kansas City and Westport Belt Railway Company will be accepted.

Dated October 4, 1915.

FOR FREE CHECK COLLECTING

Reserve Bank Transit Managers to Discuss Plan Tomorrow.

The transit managers of the twelve Federal Reserve Banks, including H. L. Hendricks of the New York bank, will meet in Chicago tomorrow to consider measures for the extension of the system of free collection of checks. They will report their conclusions to a meeting of the Governors of the Federal Reserve Banks to be held on Oct. 20.

At present, the only checks received for immediate credit at par by the Reserve Bank here are those drawn on the Reserve Banks of Boston and Philadelphia and those drawn on member banks in this district that have voluntarily entered the collection system. There are now 125 of these and about 7,000 items a day are handled for collection here.

It has always been the purpose to extend this system as rapidly as practicable and it is understood that plans for the collection of items drawn on member banks in other districts will soon be formulated.

FEAST FOR $1.00 A YEAR.

If you have a friend who is fond of books and all that is said and written of books, provide him with a literary feast for a whole year in the form of The New York Times Book Review, which will be mailed to any address in the United States for One Dollar. Times Square, New York.—Advt.

The "Personal Trust" —and our Banking Department
For years we have specialized as "Trustee for Personal Trusts." Our record, and the personnel of our Directorate, have brought many persons of wealth and prominence to us for the administration of personal trusts, such as executorships and trusteeships. Many wills in which we are named as executor or trustee, and securities of estates which we are managing, are in our vaults for safekeeping.
Is not the confidence which these thoughtful people impose in us in leaving their post-mortem affairs to our management the strongest reason why your active banking account should be here?

RATES SET BY LAW UNFAIR, FELTON SAYS

Chicago Great Western President Asserts Year Was Most Trying in Company's History.

MORE FREIGHT TONNAGE

But Revenue Showed Decrease—Net Income for Six Months Amounted to $2,243,205.

The Chicago Great Western Railroad Company, for the year ended June 30, suffered decreases in operating revenue for eleven months out of the twelve. June, the last month of the year, showed a slight increase over the same month of the previous year. The year is referred to in the annual report by Samuel M. Felton, President of the Great Western, as "the most trying, in many respects, since the company's organization." President Felton contends that the average freight and passenger rates allowed by law are unreasonable, and that the changes effected since 1914 prevented the company from making the best showing in its history.

Total operating revenues of the Great Western were $13,722,881, a decrease of $436,252, or 3.08 per cent. Expenses were $10,446,566, a decrease of $477,067, or 4.37 per cent. The net income was $868,193, a decrease of $27,776, or 3.10 per cent., and equivalent to 1.98 per cent. on the preferred stock outstanding.

The ton miles of freight carried during the year actually showed an increase of 1.06 per cent., according to President Felton, whereas the revenue from freight showed a decrease of 3.12 per cent.

"The fact remains," says Mr. Felton in the report, "that the company was obliged to transport this additional tonnage with a reduction in the revenue per ton mile from 7.3 mills in 1914 to 7 mills in 1915. If the revenue per ton mile in 1915 had remained the same as in 1914, the total revenue from freight would have been $10,063,084, the largest freight earnings in the history of the property.

"A similar situation appears in connection with the passenger traffic. The revenue per passenger mile was but 1.95 cents in 1915, compared with 2 cents in 1914. If the rate per passenger per mile had been the same in 1915 as in 1914 the revenue from passengers would have amounted to $3,154,423, or $80,373 more than the actual returns. Taking both passenger and freight together the total decrease in revenue on account of the decrease in the average rates amounted to $497,930, an amount equal to 1.13 per cent. on the preferred capital stock of the company. This shows how seriously the slightest reduction in the average rate affects the revenues of the company.

"The average net income for the last six months has amounted to $2,243,205. The decisions of the courts have indicated 7 per cent. as a reasonable return on railroad property. If this amount is capitalized at 7 per cent. it would mean that the value of the road and its equipment is but $22,726 a mile. A physical valuation of the property, when completed by the Interstate Commerce Commission, in all probability will disclose a value of at least double that amount. The forty-one railroads in the Western Rate Case showed a return at 7 per cent. on but $28,048 per mile in 1914. It would seem, therefore, that the efforts of the officers of this company and others in the Western territory to secure increased rates were duly warranted. This situation has been placed before the various commissions and taxing bodies, and yet no substantial relief has been secured."

President Felton says in his report that he sees no encouraging signs of immediate business improvement ahead, so far as the Great Western is concerned. July earnings showed a slight gain, but August and September, he predicts will show a loss.

PROPOSALS.

SEALED BIDS WILL BE RECEIVED BY the Board of Water Supply, at its offices, twenty-second floor, Municipal Building, Park Row, Centre and Chambers Streets, New York City, until 11 A. M. on Tuesday, October 19th, 1915, for CONTRACT 166, for the erection of two steel frame buildings, galvanized-steel-covered, for the drainage chambers, at Shafts 11 and 21, of the City Tunnel of Catskill Aqueduct, New York City. Both buildings are of, approximately, the same size, the larger one being about 48 feet by 40 feet by 83 feet. The substructures or foundations of these buildings are being built under other contracts.

At the above place and time the bids will be publicly opened and read. Pamphlets containing information for bidders and contract drawings can be obtained at the above address, at the office of the Secretary, by depositing the sum of ten dollars ($10) in cash or its equivalent for each pamphlet. For further particulars apply to the office of the Principal Assistant Engineer at the above address.

INCREASES FOR NEW HAVEN.

Net Earnings for Two Months Shows Gain of $680,138.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company in the month of August had gross operating revenues of $6,264,053, an increase of $507,144 compared with August, 1914. The net earnings, despite an increase of $25,000 in expenses and a falling off of non-operating income of $66,000, was $678,537, an increase of $291,278. The gross earnings of the New Haven for the first two months of the new fiscal year were $12,511,712, an increase of approximately $1,000,000, and the net earnings for the two months were $1,425,030, an increase of $680,138. The report for the year so far indicates that the New Haven has completely turned the corner of business depression.

Out of thirteen of the New Haven's subsidiaries, six made net gains for August and seven showed slight losses, the greatest losses being noticeable in the trolley lines still held in trust for the company. The New England Steamship Company had net earnings of $150,000, an increase of $40,000. The New York, Ontario & Western had net earnings of $222,000, a decrease of $11,000. The Central New England Railway Company had net earnings of $82,00, an increase of $78,000.

The New York, Westchester & Boston Railway is still unsupporting. Its bonds and notes are guaranteed by the New Haven and interest has been paid regularly by the mother company. The month of August showed an improvement of $4,000 in gross earnings, however. The deficit, exclusive of the interest charge on the guaranteed securities, was only $5,036, compared with $12,825 in August, 1914. The deficit for the two months of the fiscal year was $11,713, compared with $21,134 for the same period last year.

86 SHIPS HELD AT PANAMA.

Clearing of Last Big Slides Expected to Take Some Time.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PANAMA, Oct. 3.—The arrivals at both the canal terminals yesterday and today increased the number of ships awaiting passage through the canal to eighty-six, with little prospect of their getting through at an early date. Canal officials now decline to hazard any prediction as to when there will be sufficient channel to permit ships to make the passage, and there is little hope that the slides will permit dredges to complete the work within a short time.

There is now a clear passage only ten feet in width between the banks. The slides often make the water so shallow as to permit a man to wade across. Even barge traffic ceased after the newest slide last Friday, thus considerably hampering dredging operations. Of the vessels thus delayed, forty-four are anchored in Gatun Lake, while the remainder lie off the fortified islands. At that point six ships, laden with general cargoes, destined for Vladivostok, are anchored, which it is presumed here are carrying munitions for the Russian Army.

Lays St. Bridgid's Cornerstone.

WESTBURY, L. I. Oct. 3.—Ten thousan persons witnessed the laying of the corner stone of the new $50,000 St. Brigid's Roman Catholic Church this afternoon. The new church is in Post Avenue, near the present church which has become too small. There was a parade of Sunday school children, members of the Holy Angels and of the Holy Name Societies. The Right Rev. Maurice Foley, Bishop of the Philippines, laid the cornerstone, assisted by the Very Rev. John Moore, President of St. John's Seminary. The pastor of the church is the Rev. Dr. William McGinnis. There were about fifty clergymen from all parts of the diocese present.

DOUBLES ITS SILK OUTPUT:

J. H. & C. K. Eagle, Inc., Increases Capital to $20,000,000.

An important development in the silk manufacturing industry of the United States is represented by arrangements which have just been completed by the firm of J. H. & C. K. Eagle, Inc., to greatly extend its manufacturing and merchandising facilities. In connection with these plans the corporation has increased its capital from $1,500,000 to $20,000,000, all of which has been subscribed by the present holders.

The Eagle firm has doubled its output this year and its present production will again be doubled within the next year. Several new mills are now being built in different parts of the country and will go into operation as soon as they are completed. These new mills will represent the last word in the manufacture of silk and will give employment to 3,000 additional workers.

FOUR BATTLESHIPS MAY BE 1916 PLAN

Administration Likely to Ask Congress to Double the Usual Dreadnought Program.

CONFER ON DEFENSE TODAY

Guesses at Added Naval Appropriation Range from $50,000,000 to $200,000,000.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—President Wilson will have a conference tomorrow with Josephus Daniels, Secretary of the Navy, and Representative Padgett of Tennessee, Chairman of the House Committee on Naval Affairs, with regard to the naval program to be submitted to Congress.

The President now has before him the report of the General Board of the Navy recommending increased expenditures for naval construction and development. He also is in possession of the views of the ranking officers of the navy as to what should be done to improve the navy. These reports were prepared as a result of the letter which the President wrote to Secretary Daniels last July directing him to call on the responsible officers of the navy for their views as to what should be done to perfect it for adequate national defense.

Neither at the White House nor the Navy Department is any hint obtainable as to the program, but it is understood that the navy officers have indicated frankly their views as to what is needed to put the navy on a firm foundation.

The President is understood to be of the opinion that the time has arrived for definite steps toward strengthening both the army and the navy, but the length of the stride to be taken in that direction has not been determined. The conferences which the President is to have with Secretaries Daniels and Garrison during the next few weeks will determine the size of the defensive appropriations they feel justified in asking Congress to grant.

The navy now costs the nation about $150,000,000 annually. There has been much talk of adding $100,000,000 or even $200,000,000 to naval expenditures, but observers in Washington detect no signs that there will be any such increases. The conservative opinion is that the navy will be fortunate if Congress adds more than $50,000,000 to the budget.

Four Dreadnoughts Probable.

There is a growing belief in Washington that the Administration will recommend that this year's naval bill provide for the construction of four additional vessels of the dreadnought class. The usual provision is for two battleships. Two additional dreadnoughts would cost about $30,000,000. If two additional dreadnoughts were authorized, in order to make provision for a total of four such vessels, the additional charge for this year's bill would not be more than about $10,000,000, however, for the reason that the construction of such vessels is usually spread over three years. One-third of the cost would be advanced annually. It is believed that several of the larger units recommended will be of the battle cruiser type.

It is expected that the department will recommend a large number of submarines and there are evidences that there will be considerable sentiment in Congress in favor of these little vessels. The consensus of opinion here appears to be that not fewer than thirty submarines will be authorized. These would cost about $15,000,000.

Thus, it was pointed out tonight, with an extra expenditure of $10,000,000 as the first year's contribution toward the construction of a third and fourth new dreadnought, and $15,000,000 for submarines, there would be at least $25,000,000 still available out of any $50,000,000 increase that might be asked or authorized.

Need Scout Vessels.

The recent naval war game showed the weakness of the navy in scout vessels. A theoretical enemy fleet managed to defeat and elude the Atlantic fleet in the war game through superiority of scout ships. It is believed that the department will recommend the construction of some speedy vessels of this type. The navy is greatly in need of men. Although it is enlisted up to its full authorized strength it lacks about 18,000 men of the number necessary to properly man all the vessels now in the navy if they were to be placed in commission. It is not understood that Secretary Daniels will ask for the full 18,000, but it is believed that the Administration will ask for not fewer than 5,000. It is planned to add about 300 midshipmen to the classes at the Naval Academy, and this will call for increased appropriations for the academy.

The Marine Corps, which is cared for by the Naval Appropriation bill, is believed to be greatly in need of enlargement. There are only about 10,000 men in this branch of the service. During the past few years, with marines serving in Nicaragua, Mexico, Haiti, China, the Philippines on shore duty and on battleships at sea, the Navy Department has, at times, been at its wits' end to find men enough for marine expeditionary duty. The country, in fact, has almost been denuded of its marines now for foreign service. An increase of a substantial character in the Marine Corps, it is understood, will be asked.

Important increases for the Ordnance Department will be recommended, it is believed, including additional money for torpedoes, reserve ammunition and projectiles, and for necessary improvements in existing vessels, and for remodeling several submarines.

BAYSIDE'S BIG DAY OCT. 10.

Actors and Cartoonists to Play Ball and Eat Clams.

Special to The New York Times.

BAYSIDE, L. I., Oct. 3.—On account of the postponement of the Astor Cup race at Sheepshead Bay to next Saturday, the clambake and field day which was scheduled here for next Saturday, under the auspices of the Bayside Boosters, will be held, rain or shine, on next Sunday afternoon. The Boosters include local business men and many actors and newspaper men who make this suburb their home.

One of the features of the day will be the ball game between the cartoonists and writers and the actors. James J. Corbett is the manager and Captain of the actors' club. T. A. Dorgan—"Tad"—will Captain the newspaper team. Montgomery and Stone will be the battery on the actors' team. Alfred J. Cohen (Alan Dale) and Franklin Pierce Adams, "F. P. A.," will umpire the game.

One of the field sports, open to the world, will be a lobster race, in which the partisans will be obliged to run on all fours, with a backward movement. Other events will include corn eating and clam broth swallowing contests.

Shaving, He Cuts His Throat.

After he had almost severed his throat with a razor in the bathroom of his home at 551 West 174th Street yesterday morning, Harris Lipsky, 43 years old, a clothing manufacturer, in business at 28 East Fourteenth Street, was taken a prisoner to Washington Heights Hospital, charged with having attempted suicide. Members of Mr. Lipsky's family believe the injury was accidental. Lipsky announced he was going to shave and a moment later Mrs. Lipsky heard groans issuing from the bathroom and found him lying on the floor with his throat cut.

PLAN FOR PEACE CONGRESS.

Pro-German Propagandists Not Invited to Attend.

The League to Enforce Peace, which advocates a union of nations to compel by force the observance of treaties, will take a leading part in the International Peace Congress which convenes at San Francisco next Sunday, according to an announcement made yesterday by the Church Peace Union, which was established and endowed with $2,000,000 by Andrew Carnegie last year. The announcement says:

"The committee in charge of the program desires that it be made clear that members of the so-called peace organizations who have been active as Pro-German propagandists will not participate in the proceedings of the congress. In this connection it is pointed out that even those members of the peace societies who were regarded high in peace councils, but who since the beginning of the war in Europe have identified themselves with the German cause, are not associated with those who are responsible for the holding of the present congress."

The congress will be held under the auspices of the American Peace Society, of which ex-Senator Burton is President, and of the Church Peace Union, of which Bishop Greer is President. The announcement says:

"The discussions will not centre around the present European conflict or the relations of this country to any of its phases, except in an incidental way, but are expected to deal in a broad way with the general question of settling international disputes in some other way than by resort to arms.

"Incident to this, the activities of the League to Enforce Peace recently formed by ex-President Taft, President Lowell of Harvard, and others, are to be features, the entire afternoon of Monday, Oct. 11, being given over to that organization in a joint meeting with the World's Insurance Congress."

WANT SUBWAY EXTENDED.

Riverdale Broadway Association to Appear Before Service Board.

Representatives of the Broadway Extension Association of Riverdale, including Joseph P. Day, McDougall Hawkes, and Frank J. Hackett, will appear before the Public Service Commission on Wednesday at 11 o'clock, to urge the extension of the Broadway Subway under ground in Van Cortlandt Park, paralleling Broadway from the 238th Street station to 263d Street. It is proposed to have stations at 242d Street, 253d Street, Mosholu Avenue, and at Broadway and 261st Street.

At a hearing held last Wednesday, it was held by advocates of the plan that the extension merely carries out the original plan of extending the subway to the city line. Florence J. Sullivan of 27 Cedar Street is President of the association, and Houlder Hudgins of Riverdale is Chairman of the General Committee. William S. Bennet and S. Stanwood Menken will represent the petitioners as counsel.

Chandler for Bowers.

Local Progressive leaders showed alarm last week when they learned that Representative Walter M. Chandler, the only Progressive in the State elected to Congress a year ago, had come out openly for Frank K. Bowers, Republican candidate for Sheriff. William Halpin is the Progressive nominee for that office. Many Republicans regarded his action as a forerunner of a general stampede back to the Republican fold.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 3.—The Eastern disturbance has passed beyond the field of observation. The fall in temperature covers the entire country west of the Missouri River, except the Pacific States, but to the eastward temperatures are higher, especially over the central valleys and the South. There will be rain Monday in the north upper lake region, extending Tuesday into the upper lake region generally. In the Atlantic States the weather will be fair Monday and Tuesday. It will be colder Monday in the southwest and on Tuesday in the Gulf States, the Central Valleys, the Upper Lake, and West Lower Lake regions. It will be warmer Monday in the East Lower Lake Region and New England.

Winds for Monday and Tuesday—North Atlantic, moderate shifting, becoming southeast; Middle Atlantic, moderate east and southeast; South Atlantic moderate, mostly southeast; East Gulf, West Gulf, moderate South.

FORECASTS FOR TODAY AND TUESDAY.

West Pennsylvania—Fair Monday. Tuesday cloudy, colder.

West New York—Fair, warmer Monday. Tuesday partly cloudy and colder.

Southern New England—Fair Monday, warmer interior. Tuesday fair.

East Pennsylvania, East New York, New Jersey—Fair, warmer Monday. Tuesday fair.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at midnight, taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

	1914.	1915.		1914.	1915.

THE MICHIGAN WINS NAVY CHAMPIONSHIP

Dreadnought, in Command of Capt. Niblack, to Fly Efficiency Pennant for Second Time.

GEORGIA LEADS IN GUNNERY

President's Yacht Also Takes Honors—Atlantic War Game is Under Way.

The dreadnought Michigan, Captain Albert P. Niblack, commanding, is the new battle champion of the United States Navy, an honor held until a short time ago by the fleet flagship Wyoming. The news that the Michigan would fly the red pennant with the black ball in the centre for the next twelve months came from Washington yesterday, and within the next few days, somewhere between Sandy Hook and the Capes of Virginia, the pennant will be hauled down from the Wyoming and hauled up on the Michigan. The battle efficiency championship is the greatest of all fleet honors, and the Michigan is the first ship to win that honor twice. Six years ago she was the champion, when Captain N. R. Usher, now a Rear Admiral, was her commander.

The Michigan won the championship with a record of 73.614 points. The superdreadnought Texas is second with 71.992, the battleship Georgia third with 71.101, and the Kansas fourth with 69.458. The New York stands eighth, and the old champion, the Wyoming, ninth in the list of merit.

The destroyer Patterson is the battle champion of the vessels of that class, with a record of 90.907. The McDougal is second with 85.272, and the Fanning third with 84.503. Of the submarine flotilla the battle efficiency championship has been won by the K-8, with the wonderful record of 98.200, with the C-3 second with 77.018, and the B-3 third with 75.011.

In gunnery alone the Georgia leads the first-line ships with a record of 89.347, the Texas second with 67.886, and the Wyoming third with 61.321. The Michigan is fourth in gunnery with 58.314. The battle efficiency record takes in everything, target work, torpedo work, day and night manoeuvres, and engineering efficiency.

The Patterson also holds the gunnery record of the vessels of the destroyer classes with a percentage of 87.075. The McDougal and Fanning are second and third respectively, with records of 73.307 and 71.108. The K-8 is the submarine gunnery champion with 88.026. The B-3 is second with 60.612, and the C-3 third with 54.309.

The cruiser Galveston is the cruiser gunnery champion, with 94.172, while the Mayflower is the gunboat champion, with an almost perfect record. The President's yacht is credited with 99.063.

Special to The New York Times.

NEWPORT, R. I., Oct. 3.—The second movement in the war game of the Atlantic Fleet was marked this afternoon, when the submarine tender Ozark, with the submarine G-1 and the destroyer McDougal put to sea followed by the destroyers Cassin and Cummings. Some of the vessels will join the Blue, or home fleet, and others the Red, or enemy fleet, which sailed Saturday.

The tender Tallahassee, with the submarines K-2, K-6, and K-5 arrived from the New York Navy Yard today, joining the Columbia, flagship of the submarine flotilla, which will sail tomorrow morning with other submarines to join the Blue Fleet, under Admiral Fletcher.

All eyes are turned toward the submarines, which have not been in active operation with the fleet since the last war game in June. The little vessels are under the flag of Rear Admiral Albert W. Grant.

The Flagship Brooklyn sails in the morning with the umpire of the game and the Commander in Chief of the enemy's squadron, Rear Admiral Austin M. Knight.

The fleet under Admiral Fletcher sails on Tuesday from Hampton Roads. Submarines are to be stationed from the vicinity of Hampton Roads to Narragansett Bay, forming a defensive line for the coast.

BOSTON, Oct. 3.—As a preliminary to testing out the defenses of this city in a war game planned by officials of the War Department, the harbor forts today took count of their resources. It was determined that 1,200 additional men would be required to man all the defensive machinery of the port.

Companies of the Coast Artillery Corps to this number were ordered detached from their stations at Portland, Maine, and Portsmouth, N. H., to take up duty in Boston forts for the coming week, bringing the forces of defense up to 2,700 men.

The "enemy" will be represented by four torpedo boat destroyers, in command of Lieutenant Claude B. Mayo, commanding officer of the destroyer Reid.

RAT COSTUME HITS PIANIST.

Thrown at Him, He Insists, but He Is Seized as Thief.

Walter Reschna, a pianist, of 324 West Thirty-fourth Street, was arraigned before Magistrate Krotel in Yorkville Court yesterday, charged with having stolen a rat costume, the property of Charles Dillingham, manager of the Hippodrome. The complainant was H. A. Cornell, clerk of the Hippodrome.

Cornell said he detected Reschna leaving the Hippodrome with the costume under his coat, and caused his arrest. The prisoner pleaded not guilty, and explained that he had gone to the Hippodrome and had trouble finding his seat. After being shunted from gallery to gallery, he said, he finally got into a room where his presence was strongly objected to. Some one picked up the rat costume and threw it at him, he said.

"It stuck to me, your Honor, and I could not get rid of it," he declared.

The Magistrate held him in $500 bail for trial.

START VOTERS' DIRECTORY.

Citizens' Union Tells of Importance of 1915 Election.

Secretary W. E. Youler of the Citizens' Union announced yesterday that work has been started on the annual voters' directory of all Democratic, Republican, and Progressive candidates for the Assembly and Board of Aldermen. Letters have been sent to all candidates asking their attitude on important questions. He said:

"Under the proposed grant of home rule to cities contained in the new Constitution the next Board of Aldermen will be a powerful factor as a legislative body in this city. The Assembly will have to pass measures vitally affecting the judiciary, cities and counties, and entirely reorganizing the executive departments of the State. It will be by far the most important session the State has known. Too great stress cannot be put upon the importance of electing good men."

COMPETITION THAT IS NOT ALLOWED

Laws by Which Canada, South Africa, and Australia Now Prevent "Dumping."

MARKET VALUE AS A TEST

Similar Enactment May Be Made Here, Though One Was Stricken from Underwood Act.

How other countries prevent "dumping" by foreign manufacturers for the purpose of stifling domestic industries is set forth in a statement prepared by the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce. The bureau has issued this statement at this time in view of the general and widespread interest in proposed legislation by Congress, probably at the forthcoming session, to safeguard the American dyestuff, and other industries, given a new impetus as the result of the shutting out of European imports by the war.

Canada, South Africa, and Australia have all enacted legislation along the lines of that proposed here. In Canada, for instance, the anti-dumping law and regulations are made a part of the customs tariff, and their administration a part of the work of the customs authorities. The Canadian tariff law as long ago as 1907 contained a provision that an ad valorem duty not exceeding 15 per cent. should be levied on all articles exported to the Dominion if the export or actual selling price to an importer was less than the fair market value of the same article when sold for home consumption in the usual and ordinary course in the country whence exported to Canada.

From time to time since 1907, regulations by Order in Council and by the Canadian Department of Customs have been issued on the subject of special duty, or "dumping duty," as it is called. For some years the Canadian regulations provided that, when it appeared from the invoice that the purchase price was more than 7½ per cent. (or 5 per cent. in the case of some iron and steel products) lower than the fair market value, the dumping clause should be immediately invoked. For certain products no exemption allowance at all was granted.

New regulations were put into effect Sept. 1, 1914. The dumping duty was made applicable in all cases when the difference between the fair market value and the selling price of the goods to the importer in Canada should exceed 5 per cent. The dumping duty under the customs tariff applies, without exemption allowance, to articles of a class or kind made in Canada when admitted free of ordinary duty, and also to round rolled wire rods of iron or steel.

The bureau's statement points out that the amount of any advance in the market value of goods between the time of their purchase by the importer and the date of their exportation to Canada is not subject to dumping duty, provided the goods have been exported in the usual course, and the actual date of purchase is established to the satisfaction of the Collector of Customs by contracts or other sufficient documents produced for his inspection and attested to.

In computing the difference for customs duty purposes between the "fair market value" in the country of export and the "selling price to the importer in Canada," the fair market value of goods is estimated on the usual credit basis, except when the article is universally sold in the country of export for cash only, in which case the fair market value is estimated on a cash basis. A bona fide discount for cash not exceeding 2½ per cent., when allowed and deducted by the exporter on his invoice, may be allowed in estimating the fair market value of goods for duty purposes.

The Canadian law and the regulations under it were taken as a model for the anti-dumping clause which was introduced into the Underwood tariff bill for consideration in 1913. This section was included in the bill as it passed the House of Representatives, but was cut out by the Senate Committee on Finance.

In 1914 the Government of the Union of South Africa included an anti-dumping clause in its new tariff act. This clause, likewise, was modeled almost exactly after the Canadian law. In brief, the South African law provides that in the case of goods imported of a class or kind made or produced in the Union, if the export or actual selling price is less than the true current value of the same goods when sold for home consumption in the usual and ordinary course in the country from which they are exported, there may be collected, in addition to the duties otherwise provided, a dumping duty equal to the difference, which dumping duty shall not in any case exceed 15 per cent. ad valorem.

The Australian Government took drastic action against dumping as long ago as 1906. The Australian provisions are included in what is known as the Australia Industries Preservation act, which provides against monopoly and unfair competition in general. Under that act unfair competition has in all cases reference to competition with those Australian industries the preservation of which, in the opinion of the Controller General or a Justice, as the case may be, is advantageous to the Commonwealth, having due regard to the interests of producers, workers, and consumers. Competition is deemed to be unfair unless the contrary is proved.

An interesting feature of the Australian law is that, in determining whether foreign competition is unfair, the Government takes into consideration the management, processes, the plant, and the machinery employed or adopted in the Australian industry affected by the competition, and these are required to be reasonably efficient, effective, and up to date.

ROB STORE IN 125TH STREET

Burglars Make Eighth Raid in Two Years on Davega's Harlem Shop.

Some time between midnight Saturday and 7 o'clock last night a robbery was committed in the Davega Sporting Goods Store in the one-story building at 125 West 125th Street, near Seventh Avenue, in the busiest part of Harlem. The window shades are left up all day Sunday, and lights burn brightly at night all through the store, but nobody saw the robbery. It was discovered last night by the manager, David E. Jacobs, who was walking past and saw some handballs on the floor. He telephoned from a near-by lunchroom to Police Headquarters, and Lieutenant Austin of the West 123d Street Station sent out a dozen men to surround the store. Their actions drew a crowd of several thousand people who followed the police with interest as they discovered that the front door was locked, and then that the robber had gained entrance by cutting the wire over the skylight, opening the skylight, and descending by a wire which he had apparently brought with him. He had escaped through the skylight, which he reached by a stepladder found in the store, and the police traced his footprints up a fire escape and across neighboring roofs. But the burglar was not caught. He got about $30 in cash, wrecked a $650 cash register, and took thirty watches worth from $1 to $3 each.

This is the eighth robbery of the store in two years.

Public Health Service Recruits.

Physicians between the age of 23 and 32 years will have an opportunity on Nov. 1, 1915, according to a circular just issued by Surgeon General Rupert Blue, to demonstrate their fitness for admission to the grade of Assistant Surgeon in the United States Public Health Service. There are several vacancies in the Government corps. In order to be recommended to the President for a commission a physical and professional examination first must be passed. Examining boards will be convened at Washington, Boston, New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Louisville, New Orleans, and San Francisco, but permission to take the examination must first be obtained from the Surgeon General in Washington.

Gertrude Cutter, deceased; the heirs and next of kin of A. Gertrude Cutter, deceased, and persons named as executors, testamentary trustees, guardians, legatees, devisees and beneficiaries in other papers purporting to be wills of said deceased filed in the Surrogates' Office, Send Greeting:

Whereas, Messmore Kendall has lately applied to the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York, to have a certain instrument in writing dated March 11th, 1914, relating to both real and personal property, duly proved to be the last Will and Testament of A. Gertrude Cutter, who was at the time of her death a resident of the County of New York, deceased.

Therefore, you and each of you are cited to show cause before the Surrogates' Court of our County of New York, at the Hall of Records in the County of New York, on the 25th day of October, one thousand nine hundred and fifteen, at half past 10 o'clock in the forenoon of that day, why the said Will and Testament should not be admitted to probate as a will of real and personal property.

In Testimony Whereof, we have caused the seal of the Surrogates' Court of the said County of New York to be hereunto affixed.

Witness, Hon. Robert Ludlow Fowler, a Surrogate of our said County of New York, (Seal) Clerk of the Surrogates' Court.

PAUL M. HERZOG, Esq., Attorney for Petitioner, Office & P. O. Address, 233 Broadway, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York.

PUBLIC NOTICES.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, SOUTHERN DISTRICT OF NEW YORK, SS.:

WHEREAS, a petition was filed in the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York on the 5th day of June, 1915, by Actieselskabet Ocean, owner of the steamship Jos. J. Cuneo, her engines, etc., for a limitation of its liability in respect of any claim or claims for loss, destruction, damage, or injury arising out of the collision between the steamships Jos. J. Cuneo and Ryndam on May 26, 1915; and,

WHEREAS, the value of the petitioner's interest in the steamship Jos. J. Cuneo has been duly appraised at the sum of $45,000, and her pending freight at the sum of $155.30, with interest from May 27, 1915, and the petitioner has filed a stipulation, duly approved by the Court, to abide by and pay the moneys awarded by the final decree rendered by the District Court or by the Appellate Court if an appeal intervene, to the amount of said appraised value with interest as aforesaid;

NOW, therefore, in pursuance of the monition issued by said Court to me directed and delivered, I do hereby cite all persons claiming damages for loss, destruction, damage, or injury occasioned by the said collision to file and make due proof of their respective claims before Edward L. Owen, Esq., United States Commissioner, at his office, No. 71 Wall Street, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on or before the 4th day of October, 1915, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, and also to appear before said Court at the Post Office Building, Borough of Manhattan, City of New York, on the said 4th day of October, 1915, at 10:30 o'clock in the forenoon, and answer said petition; otherwise they will be defaulted and barred from participation in this suit.

Dated, New York, June 28th, 1915.

GETS $25,000 A YEAR FOR LITTLE RICH GIRL

Guardian of Virginia Loney, 16 Years Old, Makes Appeal to Justice Pendleton.

PARENTS DIED ON LUSITANIA

Child Needs Third of Her $75,000 Income for Her Upbringing in a Befitting Manner.

The story of a real "Poor Little Rich Girl," written into the formal language of the Supreme Court, has come to public notice with an application filed with Justice Pendleton asking that he allow $25,000 yearly for the maintenance and education of Miss Virginia Bruce Loney, 16 years old, whose parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen D. Loney, were lost with the torpedoed Lusitania. The Justice has announced that he will grant the request.

The application, made by Miss Loney's general guardian, Miss Mary B. Chamberlaine, sets forth the plans for the girl's future and the spending of her allowance, which is only a part of the income of her estate of more than $1,000,000.

Mrs. Loney might have had a premonition of the disaster because she made a will just prior to boarding the liner, and gave the entire estate to the daughter, except an income of $90 a month which was to go to the girl's maid, Elise Boutelier, who also lost her life with the sinking of the Cunarder.

Miss Chamberlaine's affidavit recites the story already published in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Miss Loney's swimming away from the suction of the sinking liner, of her looking back and seeing her parents waving farewell from the deck of the ill-fated ship, and of the wave that submerged the swimmer who, when rescued, was too late to see the ship take its last plunge. The parents and the maid had no chance of entering a lifeboat.

Total Annual Income $75,000.

The income from the young woman's estate is in excess of $75,000 yearly, Miss Chamberlaine recites in connection with a request that the court allow the guardian $5,000 a year for services and expenses in caring for her ward. George McKesson Brown, Mrs. Loney's brother and executor, makes affidavit that he considers the guardian's request "eminently proper." Miss Chamberlaine says she will need the amount to dress and live in a manner befitting a chaperone of Miss Loney.

Miss Loney's nearest relatives, the application sets forth, are uncles and aunts and the petitioner, who is a first cousin to the girl's father. Miss Chamberlaine has been intimate with the family, she says, and with the expressed ideas of Miss Loney's mother, in regard to the girl's education and social surroundings. The guardian talked and advised with Mrs. Loney "as to the social position the infant should maintain, and just before sailing her mother explained to the petitioner that she (Mrs. Loney) had just made a new will making the petitioner guardian, and in case anything happened to her and her husband, she desired the petitioner to take charge of the infant and maintain her in the sane style she had planned for the infant."

Miss Chamberlaine goes on to say that Mrs. Loney had been accustomed to spending practically her entire income of about $75,000 yearly in maintaining her household, entertaining, and in traveling and living expenses. Miss Loney had done much traveling, the petitioner says, spending a great part of her lifetime abroad, for her mother maintained a country estate in England, where they spent the greater part of each year. They regarded New York as their home, and lived at the Plaza and the Gotham Hotels.

Miss Loney has been reared in luxury always, the affidavit states, and always has had a nurse or maid. When going abroad or visiting, the girl has been accompanied by a maid or chaperone and her friends and acquaintances always have been persons of high social standing. Last year, her ward attended a fashionable school in East Sixtieth Street, Miss Chamberlaine says. During that period, Miss Loney lived with her parents at the Gotham Hotel, and walked from the hostelry to school, always accompanied by either her mother or a maid. She intends to continue at this school for the coming year, Miss Chamberlaine says, and is thinking of renting a $6,000 apartment nearby in Park Avenue.

Horseback and Motoring.

"The infant has been accustomed to ride horseback in England," the guardian says, "where her father and mother maintained from fifteen to twenty horses for hunting and riding, and three of them belonged to Miss Loney and were used by her exclusively. She will want to continue riding in New York as it is a desirable form of exercise for her. She is also accustomed to the use of automobiles, as her mother had three."

Miss Chamberlaine recites that she is not a woman of means, but for several years has lived with her sister at Skaneateles, N. Y., where Miss Loney has spent the Summer. It will be necessary for the guardian to give up her present home, she says, and devote all her time and efforts to the detailed care of her ward. She submits the following list of annual expenditures as necessary for the girl's proper care:

Park Avenue apartment	$6,000
School, music, languages, books	2,500
Maid	600
Three servants	1,200
Food and household supplies	4,000
Clothing	3,500
Doctors, dentists	500
Auto and chauffeur	2,000
Amusements, including horseback riding	1,500
Summer vacation and traveling	2,500
Insurance and storage	200
Incidentals	1,000
Total	$25,000

Speaking of Miss Loney's orphaned isolation Miss Chamberlaine says in part:

"As a result of the loss of her father and mother the infant finds herself at 16, the most important and formative period in a young girl's life, absolutely alone in the world, with few friends in New York, as she has spent the greater part of her life in England and in traveling on the Continent, and with only a small number of relatives, two uncles on her mother's side and two aunts and two uncles on her father's side, and with none of whom she could live satisfactorily.

"It is very important therefore that she should have a nice home of her own in which she would receive and entertain friends, and that she should have every opportunity to make friends and have good associates who will help her in her social career. She must therefore live and be maintained according to her station in life, and after a thorough consideration of the matter the petitioner is of the opinion that it will not be possible to maintain and educate her and give her the opportunities she should have for less than $25,000 a year."

EXPECT ARREST SOON IN $75,000 GEM THEFT

Robbery of the Widow of Senator McMillan Blamed on Member of Household.

It became known yesterday that detectives have been working for several weeks on the theft of $75,000 worth of jewels from Mrs. James McMillan, widow of the former United States Senator, which were stolen from her Summer home at Manchester by the Sea, Mass., on the night of Aug. 7.

The jewels include a pearl necklace worth $13,000, a diamond watch chain valued at $6,000, and three rings whose worth is estimated at $4,000 each. From present indications there is reason for believing that the affair was an "inside job" and that an arrest may be expected soon.

The jewels were laid away on the night of Aug. 7 in a safe, which is kept in a large wood cabinet near Mrs. McMillan's room. The location of the key to the cabinet and of the paper on which the combination for the lock of the safe was written was known to several persons in the house. The next morning the jewels were gone, and everything in the safe had been taken along with them.

The case was put at once into the hands of a private detective agency, which worked on it for five weeks and got no results. Its heads then withdrew, and the case was turned over to the Aschner Detective Agency of 225 Fifth Avenue. Morris H. Aschner, the head of this latter organization, has been looking into the theft since about the middle of last month, and it is understood that an arrest will probably be made before long involving some one who was in the house at the time the robbery was committed.

WOULD AID JEWS ABROAD.

Many Organization Delegates in Discussion at Hotel Astor.

About twenty-five delegates of various Jewish organizations and institutions met yesterday in the Hotel Astor to discuss what steps can best be taken toward obtaining for the Jews in belligerent countries their civic and religious rights. The purpose of the meeting was to bring together those who believe there should be a congress of American Jews to discuss ways and means for advancing Jewish interests in the international situation growing out of the world war; those who advocate instead of a congress a conference of a limited number of representative American Jewish organizations and those who are not in favor of either congress or conference. No action was taken and another meeting will be held.

Among those present were Louis D. Brandeis, Dr. Cyrus Adler, Oscar S. Straus, and Louis Marshall. These organizations were represented: Central Conference of American Rabbis, United Synagogue of America, Order B'rith Abraham, Union American Hebrew Congregations, National Jewish Workingmen's Alliance, American Jewish Historical Society, Jewish Publication Society, Jewish Theological Seminary of America, Independent Order Free Sons of Israel, Federation of Galician Jews, Hebrew Union College, American Jewish Committee, Independent Order B'rith Abraham, Independent Order B'rith Sholom, Federation of American Zionists, Provisional Executive Committee for General Zionists' Affairs, Federation of Rumanian Jews, Union of Orthodox Congregations, The Mizrachi Zionist Organization, Association of Orthodox Rabbis, Arbeiter Ring, Independent Order B'nai B'rith, and Council of Young Men's Hebrew Associations.

A delegate said that Mr. Brandeis led those who desired a congress and that the conference plan was advanced by Louis Marshall.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise, at the Free Synagogue yesterday, advocated the holding of a congress. He said:

"The demand for a Jewish Congress is impersonal and objective. The personal aspect is due to those who act as if their personal domains were being invaded, as if some rashly venturesome intruder were violating the sanctity of their private possessions.

"The fundamental question that is involved turns around the right of any self-chosen group of men, however admirable, to act for multitudes without mandate on the one hand and without even having taken counsel with them on the other. It is a critical hour which at last finds the people resolved to rise to the dignity of self-mastery and self-determination."

OPPOSES WIRT SYSTEM.

Rabbi Says It Will Break Up Democratic Spirit.

Rabbi Nathan Krass of Temple Israel of Brooklyn has written to the Board of Education to protest aainst the Wirt system which is being introduced into some of the Bronx schools as an experiment in which the pupils are to go to different religious instructors, according to their beliefs. Rabbi Krass expressed himself as opposed to any system which would connect religious education with the public schools.

"Of all our institutions the public school is the most democratic," Rabbi Krass said in his letter. "There, at least, all children are on a level of equality—rich and poor, Jew and Gentile, believer and unbeliever. The scheme proposed will have the very deleterious effect of stirring into vitality the very thing we ought to be anxious to have dormant until the arrival of manhood and womanhood. It will call into being 'creed consciousness,' for no matter what the theoretic merits of the proposed scheme may be, practically Jews will be forced to segregate, Christians will be forced to separate according to the denominational divisions. And what of the ethical culturist, and the agnostic, or even the lonely atheist? Just think what it will mean. How hatreds, needless distinctions, and the breaking up of the democratic spirit will inevitably result."

$100,000,000 PAID ON NEW SUBWAYS

19,748 MEN NOW EMPLOYED

Ten Million Cubic Yards of Excavation Completed of 12,800,000 Yards to be Taken Out.

Already in the construction of the new subway system, according to a statement given out by the Public Service Commission, there has been actually paid out by the city, including the contributions from the Interborough and the B. R. T., more than $100,000,000, while the amount of the contracts already signed is $163,670,858. To this must be added $15,000,000, the cost of the elevated construction work, which is being done by the companies for themselves.

This means that about five-sevenths of the total value of the work is now under contract, and that only twenty-two of the eighty-six construction contracts remain to be let.

The total estimated amount of material to be excavated on the new city-owned lines is 12,800,000 cubic yards, and up to the present about 10,000,000 cubic yards have actually been removed. It is reckoned that the quantity of concrete to be used will be 2,850,000 cubic yards, of which about 1,500,000 cubic yards had already been put in place by Sept. 1. Of structural steel 620,000 tons will be required, and of this about 360,000 tons have already been erected or delivered. The ties and timber alone to be used for the new roads will cost nearly $2,000,000, and after the Fourth Avenue Subway and Centre Street Loop had been equipped the city placed a single order for ties and timber amounting to more than $1,200,000.

The total number of men employed on the subway work on Sept. 1 was 19,748, of whom 16,089 were working on the city-owned lines and 3,659 on the contracts let by the companies.

The "cut-and-cover" system of construction, which was used on the sections on which the recent fatal accidents occurred, was first applied to subway work in 1902, and has been used on the Brooklyn extension of the present subway from Bowling Green to Atlantic Avenue, and on the Centre Street Loop and the Fourth Avenue line, as well as one the dual system work. In all since 1902 about seventeen miles of streets have been opened under the "cut-and-cover" system at a cost of about $75,000,000.

A good deal of sewer work is being done as an incident of the subway construction, as nearly every section of the new lines directly affects the sewer system. In building the Fourth Avenue line alone it was necessary to built about seven miles of new sewers, and in carrying out the dual system the Public Service Commission has had to spend about $3,500,000 in building about forty miles.

When finished the dual system will consist of 620 miles of single track railroad, including the 296 miles which were already in existence in the old subway and elevated lines. The total cost of constructing and equipping this system has been estimated at $330,000,000.

WALL ST. WORKS ON SUNDAY

Clerks Try to Catch Up with Last Week's Big Trading.

Lights in the tall office buildings of the financial district were shining late last night for the first time on a Sunday since the great Northen Pacific corner in 1901.

The more than million share days of the last week have resulted in such a congestion of business that the office forces of the brokerage firms have been working day and night to catch up. Thousands of clerks who have never seen such a rush were working all day and the greater part of the night yesterday, getting ready for the opening of the Stock Exchange today.

On Friday it was suggested that the Exchange be closed for a day this week, preferably today, in order to allow them to catch up. This was done for a day after the Northern Pacific corner in 1901, but it was decided that it would be unwise because the public would have received too short a notice. As the result the brokers' clerks for the first time in years were forced to work on Sunday and it was very late last night that the last of them left Wall Street for their homes.

BROADWAY CARS RUN AGAIN.

Traffic Resumed Early This Morning Over Subway Break.

Broadway cars resumed running between Thirty-sixth and Thirty-eighth Streets at 1:10 A. M. today, after permission had been received from James Shipman, Division Engineer of the Public Service Commission, which was transmitted to the New York Railways Company through Chief Inspector Schmittberger's office.

The order was received in the main office of the company at Fiftieth Street and Seventh Avenue at 1:06 A. M., and four minutes later the cars were running over the tracks which had been blocked.

It had been expected that the roadway would be safe for car traffic yesterday afternoon, but after his inspection Mr. Shipman suggested that a little additional shoring up should be done at Thirty-sixth, Thirty-seventh, and Thirty-eighth Streets to make everything thoroughly secure.

COMSTOCK'S WORK TO GO ON

Anti-Vice Society Announces Appointment of John S. Sumner.

The Society for the Suppression of Vice issued an announcement yesterday of its plans and needs for the future, in which warning is given that the work of the late Anthony Comstock will be carried on vigorously.

"A few newspapers," it says, "have expressed the opinion that dealers in bad books, prints, &c., upon learning of the death of Mr. Comstock, will attempt to be more active in their diabolical trades, not realizing that the society has been preparing to meet any emergency that might occur. It is hardly necessary to say that the work of the society, which has been carefully fostered through all these years, will be continued and that no effort will be spared to increase, if possible, its efficiency."

The society also announces the appointment of John S. Sumner, for three years Associate Secretary of the society, to be Acting Secretary, to succeed Mr. Comstock. Of Mr. Sumner it says:

"He was born in Washington, D. C., Sept. 22, 1876, and is a son of Rear Admiral George W. Sumner, U. S. N., retired. He was educated in the schools of Washington and Brooklyn, and enlisted in the 114th Regiment, New York State Militia, May, 1898, to go to the Spanish-American war. He was admitted to the bar of New York State in 1904, prior to which time he was connected with the banking and brokerage firm of Henry Clews & Co.

"Mr. Sumner is married and resides at Freeport, L. I., where his good standing among men is attested by the fact that he is now serving his third term as President of the Men's Club of the Episcopal Church and his second term as regent or presiding officer of the local council of the Royal Arcanum."

The present officers of the society are: President, Fred. E. Tasker; Vice Presidents, the Rev. Dr. James M. Buckley and the Rev. Dr. Josiah Strong; Treasurer, William H. Parsons; Counsel, William C. Beecher; Acting Secretary, John S. Sumner; Chairman of Finance Committee, C. Clarence Swift; Financial Secretary, William R. Rowlands.

The Executive Committee is composed of A. F. Libby, Chairman; William H. King, William H. Parsons, Theodore L. Beck, C. Clarence Swift, Frederick H. Doremus, Landreth H. King, and Wilson E. Tipple. The offices are at 140 Nassau Street.

An appreciation of Mr. Comstock was delivered yesterday by the Rev. Dr. Daniel Russell of the Rutgers Presbyterian Church, Broadway and Seventy-third Street.

Mr. Comstock, Dr. Russell said, had two hatreds—gambling and impurity. His first efforts were directed chiefly against gambling and were crowned with "the suppression of the Louisiana Lottery by means of the amendment to the Postal Law which he framed."

Of Mr. Comstock's crusade against vice and impurity, Dr. Russell said:

"His record abides in the important legislation preventing circulation through the mails of obscene matter and matter pertaining to gambling. During his term of service, he destroyed more than fifty tons of vile books, more than 25,000 pounds of stereotyped plates, more than 2,500,000 obscene pictures, and more than 12,000 negatives."

ROOSEVELT AIDS SUFFRAGE.

Writes Letter to Montclair Women Advocating Their Cause.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Oct. 3.—The Equal Suffrage League here, which is conducting a campaign that is expected to give a vote for woman suffrage in this town that will be larger in proportion to population than that of any other municipality in New Jersey on Oct. 19, is giving publicity to a message it received yesterday from former President Theodore Roosevelt.

"I want to speak to the men who have the right to vote and who are recreant in their duty if they don't see that the women share it with them," said Colonel Roosevelt in his message to the Montclair suffragists. "I ask every decent, self-respecting citizen who has the right to vote to join the movement to secure for women the suffrage now denied them. We have woman suffrage in the Western States. I don't think that the East will permanently lag behind. Civilization is spreading.

"Vice and crime are conducted by a portion of the population in which there are ten men to one woman. And when you see men who make a business of that which is foul and base rallying against a cause, you may be convinced that it is pretty good common sense to stick to that cause. Mind you, I don't believe that getting votes for women will cure all our ills, but I give it as my deliberate and careful judgment that in every State where suffrage has been tried there has been, as far as I know, no single instance where it has produced damage. And there has been case after case where it has worked to the universal betterment of social and civic conditions."

ASTOR CUP RACE FOOD MAKES THE POOR GLAD

Eight Wagon Loads of Salads and Sandwiches Go to Brooklyn Hospitals and Needy.

Hundreds of the sick and poor of Brooklyn, many of whom probably never heard of the Astor Cup Race, were made happy on Saturday and yesterday by the postponement of the event.

P. H. Reid, who has the food and drink concession at the track, had prepared for 65,000 people and had 47,000 sandwiches and two wagonloads of chicken and lobster salad at the track Saturday morning. When the big race was called off it meant a loss of about $8,000 to Mr. Reid, who had perishable food worth that much.

He consulted wtih the authorities at St. John's Hospital, and they gladly agreed to take half a wagonload for their patients and to assist him in distributing the rest among the needy of Brooklyn.

Eight wagonloads of sandwiches and salads were sent from the speedway to the hospital, and what was not used for the patients was distributed to poor families of the borough.

Because of the disappointment expressed by many who traveled long distances to see the race over the fact that it was put over to next Saturday instead of running it today, Manager Thompson of the speedway sisued a statement yesterday, in which he said that, although it would have pleased visitors from dstant points to have the race run today, there were tens of thousands of New Yorkers who would be unable to see the race on any day other than a Saturday.

Several drivers of racing cars were on the track yesterday, but no fast time was made, none of the drivers doing better than eighty miles an hour.
